WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—After turning down by a decisive margin a proposal to pay the soldiers' bonus in new currency, the senate late today deferred until Monday the virtually certain passage of the coalition bill to discharge the $2,000,000,000 debt in cashable small bonds.

A sudden change in plans by democratic leaders delayed the action just as it appeared a final vote was in sight. Another 15 minutes probably would have disposed of the issue.

As Senator King, democrat, Utah, arose to present the final amendment, to pay only the cash surrender, or present value, of the adjusted service certificates, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, called attention to the hour and remarked that since the bill was to be passed anyway, nothing would be lost by putting off a final vote.

Executive Session Downed.

Democratic leaders conferred hurriedly and the signal "no decision today" was given when Majority Leader Robinson, of Arkansas, asked for an open executive session to pass on nominations, customary last-minute business of a legislative day.

Packed galleries sprinkled with ex-soldiers in uniform that betrayed their age, saw the debate start at noon, then halt for another harking back to World War policies, and resume again only to send the issue to a third day for decision.

The new currency amendment, proposed by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, was rejected, 64 to 27, with many republicans who previously had favored a similar method of payment in last session's vetoed Patman bill, including Senator Borah, voting in opposition.

Only three republicans, 22 democrats and the two farmer-labor members voted for the amendment. Nineteen republicans, 44 democrats and the progressive La Follette, answered "No."

Son of R. MacDonald
Suffers 'Black Eye'

DINGWALL, Scotland, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Malcolm MacDonald's effort to re-enter parliament brought him a black eye tonight.

The son of former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was being cheered by his supporters at a meeting when a snowball flung by a member of a rival party hit him in the right eye, breaking his spectacles and cutting his nose.

MacDonald's eye was heavily bandaged when he addressed the meeting later.

CLARK HITS BRYAN,
DEFENDS WILSON
ON SENATE FLOOR

Says 'Commoner' Betrayed
His Father, But Speaks in Defense of Man Who Profited.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The son of the man from whom Woodrow Wilson wrested the democratic presidential nomination in that bitter Baltimore convention of 1912 stood before the senate today to defend an inquiry into the record that Wilson wrote in the White House.

It was Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, who was carrying on the acrid debate begun yesterday. Then, Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, one of Wilson's cabinet members, charged that Wilson's cabinet members at Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, of the munitions committee, Nye had said Wilson had "falsified" in saying he did not know about secret European treaties for sharing war spoils.

Clark said he was not actuated by animus toward Wilson because of the defeat of Champ Clark at the Baltimore convention.

"It is true that I am a senator," he said, "it was toward another man, William Jennings Bryan, who betrayed my father at the Baltimore convention."

Successful Challenge Made.

The wind-up of the debate was a successful challenge, thrown by Senator Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, and accepted by Nye, to put before the senate the question of paying out more money for the munitions inquiry.

While this was occupying the senate, the State Department was striking at 20 munitions makers it said were violating the requirement of the neutrality law that they register.

Secretary Hull said he had turned over to the attorney-general for "appropriate" action the names of 20 or 30 companies. Their names, among which were one or two called "important," were withheld.

Clark, a member of the munitions committee, told the senate the committee's investigation was worthy of effort to find a basis for true neutrality.

Taking the floor after Clark, Byrnes, chairman of the committee on contingent senate expenses, challenged the munitions investigators to put up to the senate whether the $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 needed to complete their work should be granted.

Estimate To Be Made.
Nye said the committee would make its estimate after a week-end conference and present its request.

"It will be reported in five minutes," Byrnes retorted.

Clark reviewed the findings of the committee and traced the financial involvement of the United States in the war during 1915 and 1916.

The senate ire of yesterday at a disclosure that the committee had traced $28,000 of $80,000 allotted it by the New York Work Relief Administration was met by Clark with the assertion there was "no impropriety" in it.

"It is better for those on WPA projects to be engaged in useful work than to be engaged in boondoggling," he said.

WAR TO DRIVE OUT
'BUG' RACKETEERS
MAPPED BY BOYKIN

City To Furnish 10 or

for Intensive Campaign Against Numbers Game

Solicitor-General John A. Boykin will launch a "five designed to crush number racket operators in Atlanta within the next few days, it was learned yesterday.

Atlanta's police committee will provide crack detectives, selected by the solicitor himself, Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, announced.

The committee chairman said yesterday he had not yet been apprised of the exact number of men Boykin would ask, but asserted he and other members of the committee "stand ready to co-operate with the solicitor in any way possible."

Boykin was quoted as having asserted he could crush the bug game with 10 men within 30 days, but was offered their services for 90 days.

Bridges said if Boykin will really crush the number game "he can have the 10 men from now on."

Discussed With Councilmen.
The solicitor yesterday was out of the city, but it is known he has discussed the matter with various members of the police committee of city council. The projected clean-up drive was also under discussion during grand jury investigations of police department affairs last month, it was reported.

"When the matter was broached in the grand jury, we told the solicitor and grand jury members we were interested in breaking up the bug racket as anyone else would co-operate to the limit," Bridges said.

KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND.

MOORE DECLINES TO LEAD CAMPAIGN
WAR AGAINST POLIO
PRAISED BY F. D. R.

Wife's Serious Illness Causes Atlanta's Decision Not To Serve.

Because of the protracted serious illness of his wife, Wiley Moore, Atlanta citizen, yesterday declined the offer of National Chairman James A. Farley that he head President Roosevelt's re-election campaign in Georgia.

Mr. Moore made known his decision in a telegram to Senator Walter F. George following a series of conferences with Mrs. Moore's physicians.

The Atlanta said that he made the decision with extreme regret, but stressed that it was final. He declared himself 100 per cent for President Roosevelt's re-election and promised to give the Roosevelt cause every possible assistance.

Senator George will call the Georgia delegation in congress, which recommended Mr. Moore, in another caucus Monday, at which another choice will be made.

Telegram to George.
The telegram of Mr. Moore to Senator George follows:

"I greatly appreciate the honor offered to me by Mr. Farley, but the condition of my wife, which is very critical at this time, I cannot accept. However, I want to assure you that I am for President Roosevelt 100 per cent and will do all I can in his behalf."

Senator George telephoned Mr. Moore late Friday night and made the offer to him in behalf of Chairman Farley and the state's delegation in congress. At that time, Mr. Moore declined the offer, but a statement he indicated that there was grave doubt as to his acceptance.

Consults With Physicians.
Early yesterday the citizen went into consultation with Mrs. Moore's physicians and after a series of such conferences he announced that he would be unable to accept. The doctors pointed out to Mr. Moore that Mrs. Moore's condition has not responded to long treatment and they are said to have advised him not to enter into anything which would be likely to keep him from home for a considerable length of time.

It also is generally understood that Mr. Moore requested that his husband not to accept the appointment.

Mr. Moore is a lieutenant colonel on Governor Talmadge's military staff and his selection as the Roosevelt campaign manager was praised by the Governor. It is known that the oilman and the Governor have understood each other's views on the national administration thoroughly for long.

ELLSWORTH TELLS

ABOARD THE DISCOVERY 11
IN BAY OF WHALES, Jan. 18.—At last the trans-antarctic flight has been accomplished, but not without some difficulty. We were forced to land four times on the way and were held up once for seven days—three days of which a blizzard raged. On a previous landing we had been delayed for two days by bad visibility and snowstorms. Finally our fuel gave out at Latitude 78.45 S longitude 163.38 W, which is about 25 miles from Little America.

We remained for four days with the plane doing our best to get in communication with the outside world but our radio set proved ineffective and we had no more gas with which to run either the plane engine or the emergency engine for the radio. Failing to receive response from our signals we pecked our sleds, hauled it to Little America. There we found the radio shack in first-class condition and in it we lived comfortably until yesterday when the roar of an airplane overhead let us know that our lonely wait was over. We realized that our plane radio set had failed shortly after 10:15 (11:15 a. m., E. S. T.) on the day we started but that it was nothing we could do about it in the air and all we could do was to continue.

Shortly after passing the plateau beyond the Herring land coast range we crossed another range which extended for 75 miles and the peaks on it ranged to 15,000 feet. Beyond that to Little America we were above an enormous fairly level plateau of ice and snow. We found our food and equipment excellent. The polar star performed wonderfully well and Kenyon and I

MAY BE DEFINED IN LEAGUE SPEECH

'28 Democratic Nominee Expected to Reveal Attitude on New Deal to American Liberty Body.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Political strategy in both major parties appeared tonight to be approaching a bed-rock basis at last.

Conflicting claims and protests had rung as usual through the week. But less spectacular, isolated events told together of the inevitable time when words would no longer suffice.

On the democratic side, an immediate aim evidently was to keep factional strife in important states to a minimum. Conferences at the White House prompted new tactics in California and Georgia. Ohio and Illinois leaders arrive next week.

The New York situation also is getting attention. What eventuates there depends to an extent on how Alfred E. Smith defines his anti-New Deal position to the American Liberty League dinner here a week from tonight.

Leaders Fear No Big Bolt.
Whether the 1928 presidential nominee will hint of any determination to participate actively in the Philadelphia convention is especially awaited. Party leaders profess no concern over the danger of a formidable bolt, but acknowledge that convention proceedings may not be all harmony.

W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the national committee, spoke of the possibility in a radio address advertising the convention.

"We democrats have a great many charges and complaints hurled against us during our many years of national life," he said, "but no one yet has ever accused us of being false, some or dull."

"When we have a family disagreement, we speak right out in meeting," he said, "and we explain, but we do not back out of our promises."

On the republican side, Senator Borah, of Idaho, has put it up to other possibilities for the nomination by widening the field in which he will accept for the "Veto" campaign.

The London Sunday Dispatch declared a council of state will be appointed for the duration of the king's illness, as was done when he was believed in danger in 1925.

The announcement of no change in his majesty's condition was taken as an indication he had failed to show any signs of rallying.

When dusk fell across the Norfolk countryside a group of anxious-eyed countryfolk, waiting at the palace gates, read with sinking hearts a late bulletin which told of a grave turn in the condition of the king's neighbor, "his majesty, the aquire."

The bulletin said:

"His majesty, the king, had some hours of restful sleep, but the cardiac weakness and embarrassment of circulation has slightly increased and give cause for anxiety."

"Embarrassment of circulation" was interpreted to mean the heart action was growing weaker.

One of England's greatest heart specialists, Sir Maurice A. Cassidy, was called to Sandringham today from London. Oxygen was administered to the king last night, but it was explained that this is a modern treatment for a catarrhal condition.

Men and women outside the royal palace waited for news.

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 18.—(Sunday).—King George V, suffering from a cardiac weakness and a bronchial ailment, was sleeping peacefully at an early hour this morning.

The last official bulletin issued last night said there had been no change in his condition since an early evening announcement, which stated that "the cardiac weakness and embarrassment of circulation has slightly increased and give cause for anxiety."

A statement that there would be no further bulletin during the night, barring a sudden change for the worse, served somewhat to allay apprehension over the condition of the 70-year-old monarch, but there was great anxiety throughout his far-flung empire and the whole world.

As members of the king's family gathered at Sandringham house, the royal residence, a high source stated a crisis may be expected within about 48 hours.

Cardiac Weakness.
Bronchial catarrh, it was said, has affected the coronary lungs and nose, causing hoarseness, feverishness and sore throat. Cardiac weakness has been caused, it was stated, by a pulmonary inflammation which affected the lungs and Gossett Says Trade School Supplies Strike Breakers.

Federal investigation of the Atlanta Opportunity School, which is operated partly through federal funds, was demanded yesterday by Albert Gossett, vice president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

Gossett's demands were addressed to Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of the Department of Labor, at Washington, in a telegram which charged the American Hat Company, which is now having strike troubles, has been enlisting pupils of the school to fill vacancies caused by the strike.

Charles H. Kiehl, principal of the school, said yesterday: "There is nothing to this at all. I have been trying to find Mr. Gossett and explain this to him. None of our girls have gone to work in the American Hat Factory."

Alleged Holdup Men

GO ON TRIAL THURSDAY

Pair Charged With Grant
Company Robbery To Face
Fulton Jury.

Joe Waylan Patterson and Henderson Gamble, arrested recently in Little Rock, will go on trial Thursday in Fulton superior court charged with the $3,900 W. T. Grant store bank messenger holdup.

The two were indicted by the grand jury after their capture was announced here.

James Odum, charged with the murder of Nicholas Neely, is to be tried Tuesday before Judge E. D. Thomas. Odum was arrested in Bluefield, W. Va., and brought back by Special Investigator George Pound.

Paul Swain and G. J. Smith, jointly indicted with Odum, have already received life sentences for Neely's murder, and Nettie Spruill, white woman, entered a plea of guilty to accessory after the fact in the same case and was given a 12-month probation sentence. Neely was killed July 1 and his battered body was found July 4 in Maddox park.

R. E. Hareless is scheduled to be tried Thursday before Judge John D. Humphries on a charge of involuntary manslaughter, which grew out of the automobile accident resulting in the death of Miss Rynell Vaughn, who died of injuries she received when the truck in which she was riding with E. E. Gentry collided with the car of Hareless at Glen Iris drive and Angier avenue.

Wayman W. Mason, society burglar, and H. J. Gray, who were indicted on 15 counts of burglary by the grand jury, are on the calendar for the week of January 27. Mason entered a plea in DeKalb county to 12 burglary charges and was sentenced to serve from 12 to 60 years. Gray is held in Fulton tower.

Alvin Downs, who shot and killed his father, C. C. Downs, and Mrs. Myrtle Carter last May, is scheduled to go on trial again the week of February 4.

MEETING IS PLANNED

BY FREIGHT BUREAU

Atlanta Freight Bureau will hold its 34th annual dinner-meeting Monday night, January 27, at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Principal speakers will be Harrison Jones, of Atlanta, and Marion M. Caskie, of Washington, D. C., member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Directors will be elected.

In addition to two addresses, there also will be two informal talks by Mayor Key and Edgar Watkins. George Winship will preside, and the Rev. W. W. Memminger will give the invocation. Officers who will report include I. A. Hirschberg, treasurer; E. L. Hart, secretary, and Mr. Winship, chairman.

"Transportation Rates as They Affect Atlanta Industrially" will be the subject of the address by Mr. Jones. Mr. Caskie will discuss the new era of transportation. E. L. Hart, secretary of the bureau, is in charge of the dinner, which will begin at 6:30 o'clock.

Training Group.

The Georgia Baptist Training Union announced yesterday a five-year plan of progress which includes a campaign to add 25,000 members in the state.

This would bring total enrollment to 80,000 by 1940, officials said.

Grady A. Lee, state president, in announcing the plan, said this week marks the tenth anniversary of Edwin S. Preston's connection with the organization as secretary of the training union convention.

The 10-year period report shows an increase of 1,072 unions in the state and 116,314 study course awards issued. Lee said.

Another accomplishment listed within the period was establishment of the state Baptist's Young People's Union encampment, at Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, in 1929.

PUBLIC LIKES FACTS

Reading Habits Change

Cited by Publisher.

Books dealing with facts, human problems and theories for the betterment of conditions find the largest response today among the book-buying public, George P. Brett Jr., president of the Macmillan Company, said here yesterday.

"For their more casual reading, people today go to the lending libraries, and a single copy of a novel may have 20 readers. To command a large sale, a book must be outstanding," he said.

A few years ago, books by such writers as F. Marion Crawford, Charles Major or May Sinclair were sure of large sales, and non-fiction sold less. Today, the books that are bought are those dealing with facts, human problems and theories for the betterment of conditions.

The spring list of fiction of Mr. Brett's publishing firm includes "Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell, who is Mrs. John Marsh, of Atlanta. The book is a story of the War Between the States and the reconstruction period.

CATTLE SHOW PLANS

MADE BY COMMITTEE

Display of Livestock Will
yards April 30.

Plans for the first annual fat beef cattle show and sale, to be held in Atlanta April 30 and May 1, were outlined at a meeting of the committee held at the Chamber of Commerce on January 17. Rules and regulations were adopted, the time and place at which the show is to be held were selected, plans for a meat cutting and grading demonstration were developed and the financing of the activity was discussed.

The committee is composed of Atlanta businessmen, bankers, cattle dealers and agricultural men, both breeders and agricultural extension workers. The expressed desire of these present was that the show should be held for the benefit of the agricultural area and for the purpose of stimulating the breeding of beef cattle, which will result in increased profit to cattle raisers.

R. E. Davis, of the extension division, State College of Agriculture, Athens, announced that a number of farmers had already started feeding and indications are that a substantial number of them will enter beef cattle in the show. He also reported that 4-H Clubs from the northern part of the state had already made arrangements for making a substantial number of entries. Although cattle raisers will receive individual invitations to make entries, the committee is extending to them through the press of the state an invitation to participate in the Atlanta show and requesting that all those who are interested communicate with their respective county agents.

The committee decided to hold the show at the National Stockyards here.

The co-sponsors of the show are the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia Cattle Association.

T. C. Law was elected permanent chairman of the committee and W. R. Ulrich was named secretary-treasurer.

SKATING ON STREETS
PERILOUS, SAYS CHIEFFollowing Two Accidents,
Sturdiant Warns Children
To Stay on Sidewalk.

"Use the sidewalks to skate on, not the streets," Chief of Police T. O. Sturdiant yesterday warned Atlanta children.

Pointing out that it is a violation of city ordinance for children to skate in the streets, the chief called on all parents to bring the law to the attention of their children.

The chief at the same time issued an order to all police officers to see that children are not allowed to skate in the streets. "When a skater steps into the street he violates the law," the chief instructed all officers. "It is your duty to instruct children not to go into the streets on skates and if you tell them of the dangers of the practice I do not believe you will have any further trouble."

The order was issued as a result of two serious accidents Friday involving motorists and children on skates.

The injured children are Sarah Morgan, 15, of 214 Hurt street, N. E., who was injured at Waverly-way and Inman Park when she skated into the path of an automobile driven by H. W. Whitten, of 814 Edgewood avenue, N. E., and John Mercer Bearden, 13, of 111 Ormond street, S. E., who collided with a car driven by Thomas C. McLaurin, of 906 Cherokee avenue, third ward alderman.

The Morgan child was reported last night as in a serious condition at Grady hospital. She had a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. The Bearden child suffered several cracked spinal vertebrae. His condition, however, is not regarded as serious. Several other children on skates were injured last week when they collided with automobiles.

DR. VAN TIL NAMED
SMYTH LECTURERPhiladelphia To Speak at Columbia Seminary Week of January 20.

Dr. Cornelius Van Til, professor of apologetics at the Westminster Theological Seminary, of Philadelphia, will deliver the annual Smyth lectures at Columbia Theological Seminary during the week of January 20-26, according to announcement yesterday. Dr. Van Til's subject for the series will be "God and Human Knowledge."

The Smyth lectures are delivered annually upon the foundation established by the will of the late Dr. Thomas Smyth, formerly the pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, S. C. The foundation has been the means of bringing a succession of distinguished speakers and scholars to the institution since the initiation of the lectureship in 1911.

Dr. Van Til's selection as Smyth lecturer for 1936 was made, according to seminary directors, because of his outstanding scholarship in the field of philosophy of religion.

The week devoted to the Smyth lectures will also be marked by special short-term courses offered for students and ministers by visiting instructors.

Sir Willmott was born at Cardiff, Wales, and educated at European universities. After some newspaper training in England, he went to China during the Boxer Rebellion and later to Japan, where he covered the Russo-Japanese War for the New York Her-

SLASH IS ORDERED
IN U. S. TAX FORCEProcessing Tax Personnel in Georgia To Be Reduced by 75.

Announcement was made yesterday by W. E. Page, United States collector of internal revenue, that he had received orders, effective February 1, to reduce the processing tax force.

He said the orders from Washington would mean the elimination of approximately 75 employees and that due to this reduction zone offices at Augusta, Macon, Rome and Valdosta would be eliminated entirely. Employees who are retained in the department who are at present assigned to the zone offices that will be eliminated, the announcement said, "will be transferred to other zone offices which will be located at Atlanta, Savannah and Columbus."

Page said the service to the taxpayers in the filing of income tax returns will be maintained this year the same as in the past and announcement will be made later as to the location of the different deputies throughout the state.

He also said the cotton tax section was still functioning and would continue to do so until congress or the United States supreme court takes action on the Bankhead bill.

"Under it, the federal government develops a pattern for handling certain functions of government, it appropriates certain funds, and it establishes a social security board for administration of these funds."

"But no one of the services dealt with in the social security act—other than federal old age benefits—can become effective in the states unless the states themselves so elect."

"In other words, there is no such thing as old age assistance, no such thing as unemployment compensation or aid to dependent and crippled children in a state unless the state itself chooses to provide these services for its people, in which event the federal government under certain conditions will pay a large part of the costs. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Frank Bane, executive director of the Social Security Board, said today "there is no truth in the oft-repeated contention that the social security act violates the tradition of state rights."

Speaking before the Public Charity Association of Pennsylvania, Bane said:

Dressed-Up Fruit Makes a Fine Gift for a Sick Friend

Gumdrops and Toothpicks Will Help
You Get Novel and Amusing EffectsBoats, Dumbbells, Funny Faces Will Delight Any Invalid.

By MARIE BAUMANN.

Have you a best pal who is quarantined for measles and bored to death? Or is your cousin in bed with an attack of gripe? If so, you've probably been wrinking your forehead to find something besides flowers, books, and toys that will interest him. Then why don't you try dressing up fruit? Fruit is always good to eat, and it will be fun to receive, too, if you make amusing little dunces and toys from it.

In selecting an assortment for Hoger, the cousin with gripe, be careful to choose only the kinds which he can have and which he likes. Be sure that the fruit is not too ripe to handle, because no one wants soupy oranges or mushy bananas!

Besides the fruit, collect some long, slim gumdrops and some fat, round ones. Also have white paper, pen and ink, toothpicks, clean sucker sticks and scraps of colored crepe paper. You will also need a knife and scissors.

Choosing a Container.
You probably have a wicker basket into which you can put the fruit when you have finished dressing it. If not, a shoe box or other deep box which is not too large, will do the bill perfectly if you cover it with crepe paper—plain for a boy, ruffled for a girl. Be sure that the color you choose looks well with the fruit, which is mostly red and yellow.

In decorating the fruit, the one important thing to remember is not to handle it too much, so that you won't hurt the skin which protects the fleshy, edible portion.

Now let's start with Mr. Apple. A good way to fix him is that your young cousin will regard him with respect is to cut four small slits for eyes, nose and mouth. Then you can write funny notes, verses or riddles on slips of paper, roll them or fold them, and insert them in the slits. A long, slim roll will look like a cigarette if you put it in the corner of Mr. Apple's mouth.

Rigged up as a sailboat, the humble banana will take on new charm. To your clean sucker stick, which you can later sit into the banana, paste two triangular pieces of white paper in the position of sails. If paste will not make the sails secure to the mast, try adhesive tape. A black flag of crepe paper with yellow crossbones will make such a perfect pirate ship of it that Roger will begin looking for Long John Silver.

Fixing an Orange.
By tying a gaudy green skirt onto an orange, you can make a jolly fat woman. Secure the skirt by tying a red sash around the orange's middle. With toothpicks stick a tangerine on top for a head, and two long gumdrops at the sides for arms. You can make her face by cutting down to the white skin of the tangerine. If you cannot buy tangerines, use a fat gumdrop for the head.

Either a pear or an avocado (alligator pear) makes a perfect duncie head. Because of its shape, a peaked crepe paper dunce cap will fit well over the stem. The mournful features can be made by sticking gumdrops on the fruit with toothpicks. Curve down the long gumdrop used as a mouth for a sadder facial expression.

By using a little ingenuity, you can think of innumerable things to do with fruit. Two tangerines connected by a sucker stick run through a long gumdrop will make a dumbbell. Bunches of grapes can be wrapped in colored paper cones. You can make a gumdrop Humpty Dumpty and set him on top of an apple, making him secure with a toothpick. By attaching a midge basket to the bottom of an orange you'll have a balloon. You can write notes to tie to the stems.

When you have finished, you will have a basket of fruit which will make a colorful gift, besides showing your sick friend that you have put some thought into his present. It will tempt his appetite and tickle his funny bone!

Today's First Prize

Dear Boys and Girls' Editor: I like this new page which has started in The Constitution very much. The real reason that I enjoy it so much is because most boys and girls do not read anything except the comics each day. If they read other parts of the paper they will develop an appreciation for the newspapers of America. This new page is not only of intellectual value, but also of value to the child in his or her leisure hours. It contains interesting stories, games, sports and puzzles. For instance, take the crossword puzzle in today's issue. This puzzle helps the boys and girls to learn a larger vocabulary. They will also learn how to use the dictionary.

In this brief letter I hope that I have conveyed to you that I really enjoy this new page in The Atlanta Constitution. Respectfully,

VIRGINIA BENTON,
304 Harwell Ave., LaGrange, Ga.

Second Prize.

Why I Like the Boys' and Girls' Page.

It is a very interesting page for all juniors. There are different articles combined in this one page written especially for youth of today. These articles are good reading and offer good advice for those who will heed it. For instance, the column on looking out for younger children, teaches you how to turn idle time into well-spent moments.

For boys who enjoy building, the craft article is fine. Children who like puzzles find the puzzle editor's column mighty entertaining. And for young slight-of-hand performers, Thomas, the magician, teaches them new tricks. My choice article of the page is the serial story, "The Lost Airplane Mystery." I am a lover of mystery stories and this surely provides me with an evening full of entertainment.

Then, too, the page is made up in a certain club-like way that makes it more appealing to me. I have tried my very best to explain to you "Why I like the Boys' and Girls' Page."

KEITH DAY,
480 Parkway drive, N. E., Atlanta.

The Lost Airplane Mystery

By W. Boyce Morgan.

Through his skill in building model airplanes, Hal Benton gets a job with the Stafford Air Transport Company, which operates a small "feeder" air line between the city of Pembroke and South Branch, where Stafford planes connect with the Associated Transcontinental air lines.

Mr. Stafford hopes to sell his line to Associated, and he has a good chance because he has a profitable contract with the Norbeck Chemical Company for handling rush orders of its high-priced drugs. However, a competing air line, Arrow, would like to get the Norbeck business and ruin Stafford. One afternoon Shade, one of Stafford's two pilots, starts for South Branch with a load of drugs. That night Hal returns from night school and gets word to call Jonez, mechanic at the airport. Jonez tells him to be at work at six the next morning. Because they have a heavy day ahead, Shade has failed to reach South Branch with his valuable cargo, and Mr. Stafford and Eddie Moore, his other pilot, are starting on a searching expedition at dawn.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTANTMENT II.
Hal had set his alarm clock for five the next morning. He dressed hastily, tiptoed down to the kitchen and got his own breakfast. At five minutes to six he was at the airport.

He found Jonez in the hangar, working on the Robin, which would make the regular scheduled flight to South Branch that day. Steve Stevenson, who usually acted as copilot on the daily run, was going to take it out alone unless Eddie Moore got back from his searching expedition in time.

A few quick questions to Jonez and Hal learned that Eddie and Mr. Stafford, each flying an open cockpit plane, had taken off a short time before. There was still no word of Shade, and they intended to scan every inch of the ground between Pembroke and South Branch in an effort to find him and the Hawk.

"It don't look so good," said Jonez seriously. "Shade's a fine pilot, and nothing, but mighty serious trouble could set him down. If he'd been able to make one of the landing fields between here and South Branch he'd have let us know immediately. Looks like he must have crashed up—and in this country, you know what that means."

Hal nodded, meanwhile pulling on his jumper. "Was Mr. Stafford worried?" he inquired.

Jonez spat expressively. "Plenty!" he said.

Hal worked hard for several hours without interruption. At nine Miss Weldon, who handled the details of the airport office, arrived for work, and a short time later she came hurrying out to the hangars.

"I just had a call from Arrow," she announced. "They said they were sorry to hear about Shade, and offered to take care of our passengers on today's flights if we couldn't handle them."

Jonez checked a profane outburst just in time. "How did they find out about Shade in such a hurry?" he demanded.

"I suppose through the airport at South Branch," Hal suggested.

"Yeah," Jonez admitted. "But they're awful willing to carry our passengers."

Today's flights if we couldn't handle them.

Shade's only one explanation," said Mr. Stafford. "He must have crashed up in the mountains somewhere, and gone into the trees where we can't see him from the air. If that's the case it may be days before we find him. The only thing to do now is spread the news and see if we get any about him."

"Part of that country is pretty desolate," said Eddie. "But if he made a crash landing somebody must have heard or seen that. We'll probably get word of him before long."

But Eddie's prophecy was not fulfilled. That afternoon the local newspapers carried long stories of the plane's disappearance, and other newspapers for many miles around published shorter but similar stories. By the next morning the whole country knew that a plane had been lost between Pembroke and South Branch.

Yet a day passed, and another, and not a word of information regarding Shade and the Hawk was received. Eddie Moore resumed his scheduled flights, but Mr. Stafford continued searching ceaselessly, and Eddie also went out at his every opportunity. Then the fliers working for Arrow reported that they had been watching for a trace of the missing ship, but without result.

As each day passed the mystery became more and more incomprehensible to everyone working for Mr. Stafford. "A plane can't just drop out of sight that way!" Jonez stormed one day when Mr. Stafford was out. "If we don't find it pretty soon I'll begin to think that Shade stole the ship and went south with it!"

Hal looked at him quickly. The same idea had occurred to him, but he had dismissed it.

"How could he, Jonez?" Hal inquired. "He'd have to come down before long for fuel, and with all the publicity this affair has had, he could not keep people at any field in the country from recognizing him and the Hawk."

Jonez was about to make some Senders, aren't they. What did you say to 'em, Miss Weldon?"

The girl smiled. "I said they were very kind, but we could handle things very nicely ourselves."

"Good!" snorted Jonez. "You tell 'em!"

Shortly before noon they heard the familiar drone of motors in the distance and hurried from the hangars to watch Mr. Stafford and Eddie land their ships only a few seconds apart. Mr. Stafford's face was tense with worry as he climbed out of the cockpit and raised his goggles.

"Not a trace of Shade anywhere," he snapped. "He's simply dropped from sight as though the earth had swallowed him up. It's incredible!"

Eddie Moore shook his head. "I don't get it," he muttered. "I know

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

How it did gladden my heart to receive so many well-written letters from boys and girls who appreciate the fact that they now have a page all their own in The Sunday Constitution. It grieved me that I could not give a prize to every one of you, but of course that was impossible. Elsewhere on this page will be found the letters submitted by Virginia Benton, to whom will be mailed a most attractive copy of Barrie's "Little Minister" as first prize, and Keith Day, whose efforts win a pair of tickets to his nearest neighborhood movie house.

NOW FOR NEXT WEEK: Let's see who can write the most interesting story or letter, or draw the best picture, on "My Favorite Pet." All submissions must be in by Wednesday. Stories and letters must not contain more than 200 words. Sign your name and address, and give your age. WHO'LL WIN NEXT WEEK'S PRIZE?

—Boys and Girls Editor.

emphatic reply when the office door opened and Mr. Stafford stalked in. His face was dark with worry.

"Norbeck may not renew their contract," he announced shortly. "The loss of those drugs Shade was carrying has put them in a bad hole, and of course they hold us responsible. I'm afraid they may give their business to Arrow. And sooner or later Associated will hear that the contract may not be renewed. That will be bad."

Miss Weldon picked up a letter from her desk. "I think they've already heard, Mr. Stafford," she said soberly. "This letter came while you were out. They said they'd prefer to drop all negotiations for the purchase of our air line for the time being."

Mr. Stafford reached for the letter and sank into a chair. Jonez and Hal turned and walked quietly from the office, followed by Eddie Moore. "The chief is on a spot," said Eddie. "I wish I knew how I could help him."

"So do I!" burst out Hal. "If I could only locate Shade's plane!" pondered Eddie, his brow wrinkled. "Somehow I just can't believe that the Hawk crashed up."

To Be Continued Next Week.

late 18th Century

The solid mahogany furniture in the late 18th Century manner becomes modern through its association with contemporary colors. Walls of pale green, and draperies of white glazed chintz with bouquet pattern add a note of sunshine colors and lend character to the setting. The note of white is carried through in the upholstery of the chairs, the lamps, and pictures, the entire room being held in harmony by the ditional character, committees of prominent laymen and physicians are playing their part in this broadening of ideas, objectives and usefulness. Co-ordination of all this effort is the purpose and desire of Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. Its institution at Warm Springs itself is one of many places where may be treated patients who have injury remaining after the acute disease is over. It can take care of only a few such patients, and, therefore, in itself, as regards treatment, it makes only a slight impression on the general problem.

Unlimited Supply. "It happens that Georgia Warm Springs nature has provided an unlimited supply of warm water which assists, simply by virtue of being warm and pure, in the treatment of physical treatment of this disease and that training can be given to doctors and physical therapists there."

"Under the auspices of the foundation and its committee fighting infantile paralysis are groups co-ordinating the work, the aim of which is to provide more opportunities for the employment and rehabilitation of those who have had infantile paralysis—those who, with only a physical handicap, possess all their mental keenness and the ability and desire to hold their own with their fellowmen—those with courage to demand their place in the world's work without asking for special privilege, but only for intelligent recognition of their capabilities."

"Another important group, with advice from most capable medical research experts, is carefully contributing to that part of the battle which involves study of the cause and prevention of infantile paralysis and of the treatment of its acute stages. You know that 30 per cent of the process of last year's birthday celebrations went into a fund which has supported research. Warm Springs Foundation did not set up its own research laboratory and research staff. Why should it? Scientists of acknowledged reputation and ability were already working on the problems relating to infantile paralysis. In many cases they were hampered by lack of personnel and equipment. With the advice of those who were well acquainted with the needs and with the value of certain researches in infantile paralysis, aid was given through the money which a generous public has contributed."

Great Satisfaction.

"It gives me great satisfaction to tell you that allotments from the birthday celebrations have been made to institutions: Stanford University, Harvard University, University of Pennsylvania, Long Island College, Yale University, University of Southern California, University of Chicago, City hospital at Cleveland, and New York University. The medical advisory committee has assurances that the work is going forward satisfactorily under these various grants."

"The physicians of this country have co-operated, as they always do when health is threatened and disease must be combated. Great medical organizations, including the American Medical Association, have allied themselves and their resources with the foundation in its effort to coordinate this work. The orthopedic surgeons, that group of physicians who have studied to give all possible assistance to restore to mobility those who are left injured when the acute phase of infantile paralysis is over, have both collectively and individually entered the battle side by side with Warm Springs Foundation. Seventy-five orthopedic surgeons in various parts of the nation are members of the orthopedic advisory committee of the foundation, and a smaller group, an executive council, gives freely of its time and advice to the board of trustees."

How Money Is Spent.

"Last year not one penny of the money given went into the work of the institution in Georgia. Seventy per cent of it remained in the communities which raised it to carry out the local fight against infantile paralysis. Thirty per cent was used in the fund to support research. This year 70 per cent again remains to encourage, stimulate and aid local work, and 30 per cent will be used to continue the support of the foundation in the furtherance of its nationwide fight against infantile paralysis. Thus, both in ideas and in practical working, Warm Springs Foundation carries on the fight. Therefore, to you who are the warriors, and to you who support them, I give both the thanks of the foundation and of all those whom the common enemy has attacked—the victims of infantile paralysis themselves—those whom you have helped and encouraged to carry on."

"My birthday has been chosen as the occasion for helping this noble work, which evokes in me no profound gratitude to the people to whom I express my sincere appreciation."

Belle Isle Appeals for Support Of Annual Balls for Paralysis Aid

An appeal for attendance upon the series of balls to be held in Atlanta on the President's birthday, January 30, as a means of helping in the fight against infantile paralysis, was made last night by A. L. Belle Isle, chairman of the Atlanta general committee on arrangements for these entertainments.

His appeal was addressed not only to citizens of Atlanta, but to those of other Georgia cities and communities where it is not planned to hold birthday balls. Belle Isle spoke over radio station WSB immediately following the President's address. A similar appeal was made in the city of Washington by Dr. Julius N. Hughes, a member of the committee.

Belle Isle, whose appeal followed the address of the President, declared that preparations were well under way to hold at least six balls in Atlanta, to which were invited not only Atlanta citizens, but citizens of every city and community in the state where local birthday balls will not be held.

Haile Selassie Sends Two Generals To Quell Revolt in Gogjam Province

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Two of Emperor Haile Selassie's generals have been rushed to northwest Gogjam province to put down a serious revolt, it was learned today from reliable sources in Addis Ababa.

News of battles between loyal troops and rebellious forces have reached Addis Ababa, it was said, but a strict censorship kept it from the public.

Ethiopian officials were described as seriously concerned over the situation.

Kenizmach Sahle, who is known as the "revolt killer," recently went to Gogjam at the head of several thousand troops to aid Dedjazmach Habte Miriam, who was dispatched from Addis Ababa several weeks ago in an attempt to restore order.

The incidents began late in November and it was believed many weeks would pass before they take a decisive turn.

(Recent Addis Ababa dispatches quoted Ethiopian officials as charging Italians with stirring up Gogjam unrest against the government by dropping propaganda from airplanes.)

If Habte Miriam is successful in downing the revolt, it was expected to enhance greatly his suit for the hand of Princess Tsalai, daughter of Haile Selassie.

Revolutionaries were said to be holding many towns, although loyal forces have entered Debra Markos, the capital of the province.

Dedjazmach Haile, nephew of the Italo-Philic Ras Haile, who was deposed as ruler of Gogjam province and imprisoned by the emperor, is trying to regain his uncle's domain.

Ras Haile, who has been held in chains on Zway Island, in a lake south of Addis Ababa, was poisoned to reports.

ETHIOPIAN TROOPS FLEE FIERCE FASCISTS' DRIVE

ROME, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Italy's southern army was reported driving back the fascist forces, with only a few days' delay, after Emperor Haile Selassie's warrior-defenders fleeing before it.

An official communiqué said 5,000 Ethiopians have been killed. Fascist newspapers estimated 3,000 prisoners have been taken captive in what was described as one of the most important battles of the nearly five months old.

The southern army has advanced

Belle Isle stated that the printing of tickets had been practically completed, and that their sale, directed by the women's organization, would begin early next week. He said that already sufficient progress had been made in preparations to assure the complete success and that additional balls will be arranged for if necessary to accommodate the crowd comfortably.

In appealing for support of the series of entertainments, Belle Isle declared, "I appeal to you for this help, not in an unhappy spirit clouded by the fearful tragedy which infantile paralysis causes, but quite on the contrary, in the joyous knowledge that what we are doing to assist the President and those who are associated with him, bringing to bear, making it possible to command the greatest and most powerful scientific research that the world has known, may well give us an added part in wiping this scourge from the face of the earth."

Haile Selassie Sends Two Generals To Quell Revolt in Gogjam Province

200 kilometers (about 125 miles) into the barren country, it was claimed in a communiqué which said:

"The victory of General Graxian's troops on the Ganele Dorya proved to have yielded increasingly more decisive results."

The pursuit continued all day yesterday without meeting any real resistance by the fleeing adversaries.

"At noon January 17 our armored car columns had advanced altogether about 200 kilometers from their base."

"Our detachment captured prisoners and munitions abandoned by the adversary, whose dead up to yesterday were ascertained to have reached 5,000."

"Aviation, co-operating actively in the pursuit of the adversary, has bombed supply centers of Ras Desta Demtu at Negelli."

"On the Eritrean front there is nothing to report."

Press reports said the Duke of Pistoria had promised his troops in the north that "a decisive battle will be unleashed."

(The Ethiopian government officially denied the Italian claims of a southern victory and termed them "utterly fantastic." The territory was said to be only lightly defended by the Ethiopians.)

AMERICAN INDIAN WAR TACTICS USED

WITH THE ITALIAN SOUTHERN ARMY AT ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Jan. 15.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The tactics of American Indian fighters were mixed today with mechanized warfare in a big battle near Negelli.

I was with hundreds of young Italians who received their baptism of fire last night, as the Ethiopians, who are commanded by Ras Desta Demtu, attacked an Italian mechanized cavalry section.

Taking a page from American history, the Italians improvised a circular fort of Ford trucks which remained one of the way American western pioneers used prairie seconers in setting up defenses against the Indians.

The Italians held their forts, but only after 20 minutes of very hot fire on both sides.

Throughout the night the Italians were alert, listening to the noises of the battle, ranging sometimes near and sometimes far from us.

necessities are provided; that a restoration of five per cent of the salary cuts for nonchapel employees is provided; that reducing the cuts to 10 per cent for those making more than $100 a month; that relief is granted, or at least that it is contemplated by the sheet that it will be cut, from $450,000 last year to $382,000 for 1936, and that no major improvements except the matching of WPA funds are included.

When the finance committee first convened, it was indicated that a general insurrection would develop against the administration and the budget commission, but it appeared to have crumbled yesterday, although there still were rumblings and the possibility administration opponents may attempt a coup at tomorrow's session.

For the fifth time, council will be urged to ask the Fulton county democratic executive committee to provide for a referendum on the merger program in the March 11 Fulton county primary. For four consecutive times the council has attempted to measure the vote on the issue and it was forecast yesterday that another attempt will be made to prevent action.

Couch Plans Substitution.

Councilman J. Allan Couch, author of the council resolution to request tax assessors to assess all properties on the same basis for taxing purposes, yesterday asserted he would offer a substitute for the resolution bearing the adverse report of the tax committee.

Assessors already have announced they propose to assess all properties on the same basis regardless of any action by council. At the regular meeting of the tax committee, Couch was urged to strike a provision pointing out that the classification of property in 1935 was illegal. He declined to do so at that time, but yesterday said he had reconsidered and would comply with suggestions made by the committee.

Barrett Statement.

Text of Barrett's statement regarding the speculation regarding the personnel of the investigating group will appear in the event Key's veto is overridden follows:

"There seems to be some speculation about the personnel of the committee that I may appoint under the ordinance to investigate the police department. The author of the ordinance, Alderman Murphy, has heretofore requested me not to appoint him on the committee, stating he considered himself disqualified. His request will be respected. The ordinance, as passed by council, provided that the mayor pro tem. serve on the committee, but as the president of the general council, I do not deem it advisable for me to serve. I so stated this fact to several members of the police committee before Mr. Key vetoed the ordinance."

AMBASSADOR BINGHAM SAILS FOR AMERICA

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(UP)—American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham left for the United States on the S. S. Bremen from Southampton today.

The embassy told the United Press the trip was "merely a holiday instead of the usual Christmas trip, which was deferred."

The ambassador was accompanied by his wife. The length of his stay in the United States was indefinite, it was said.

ELLSWORTH DESCRIBES LONG POLAR FLIGHT

except for a slight cold picked up a few days ago in excellent health and looking forward to joining the Wyatt party on Sunday.

After passing the mountains of Hearst land we flew at an altitude of 10,000 feet over a high plateau with isolated mountains. At intervals these gave way to an undulating plain. At 16:15 G. M. T. (11:15 a. m. E. S. T.) we found the radio transmitter failed to work and later we discovered that the switch and the antenna lead were defective. At 17:45 (12:15 p. m. E. S. T.) I dropped the Stars and Stripes on hitherto unclaimed territory. At that time we were near another mountain range.

At 19:35 (2:35 E. S. T.) we were right opposite the mountains which seemed to extend for at least 75 miles and some of the peaks were 13,000 feet in altitude.

The visibility so far on the flight was excellent. We could see for about 130 miles. At 21:05 we ran into bad visibility and went down to 6,400 feet, then lower and at least we were forced to land. Our position was then latitude 79.12 S., longitude 104.10 W. After sometime the weather seemed to clear and on November 24, at 17:00 (G. M. T.) we warmed up the engine and took off but the flight was short, and after flying for half an hour we were again forced down by bad visibility.

We stayed there until the twenty-seventh on which date we again started, but the weather had fooled us again and after 50 minutes in the air we had to land, this time in the worst weather we had experienced up to then. The clouds thickened and snow was falling, it soon developed into a regular blizzard which continued for three days without ceasing.

We were delayed at that camp until December 4 when at 23:10 (5:10 p. m. E. S. T.) we again were in the air, but visibility was poor and the wind uncertain, so we landed to definitely fix our position. We found this to be latitude 79.17 S., longitude 103.16 west. We took off again at 00:00 G. M. T. (7:00 E. S. T.) on December 5 and flew on toward Little America. We were almost in sight of the Bay of Whales when our fuel which had served us so well finally gave out. We fired our position at latitude 79.45 S., longitude 103.30 west. And knew that within a few hours we could reach our destination on foot. There was no need to hurry, so we remained with the plane for four days, then failing to get response to our signals we packed our hand sled and tramped the few miles to Little America where we have been busy correlating the data we gathered on the way.

We have been most hospitably treated by Commander Hill and the officers of the R. R. S. Discovery and are enjoying the comfort of civilization once again.

One hundred Chinese called from Seattle to observe the Chinese New Year in their native land.

TENTATIVE LIST MADE FOR FEDERAL RESERVE

Eccles Is Slated for Appointment to Chairmanship of New Bank Body.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A conservative board of directors of the Federal Reserve System was selected today by President Roosevelt to run the Federal Reserve System after February 1.

Authoritative sources said the tentative selections for the new board would retain only two of the present members—Marriner S. Eccles, slated for the chairmanship, and M. S. S. Meekins, of Chicago.

In choosing the new board President Roosevelt was said to have discussed the matter at length with Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, widely known as the father of the federal reserve system. Glass was said to have approved the selections.

Other names placed on the tentative list were:

Joseph P. Broderick, a former New York superintendent of banks.

Ronald Ransom, an official of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta.

John H. McKee, chief bank examiner of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

William Trufant Foster, a Harvard professor, whose writings and lectures have advocated huge government spending in times of depression.

A farmer, representing agriculture, whose identity was not disclosed.

Neither Ransom nor Foster has formerly been mentioned in connection with places on the new board.

Such a board would meet geographical requirements by including one member from the reserve districts of San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Atlanta, McKee, from Cleveland, and Foster, from Boston. The unnamed farmer member could be selected from one of the six remaining districts, presumably from Minneapolis, St. Louis or Kansas City.

Although Glass was expected in some quarters to oppose Eccles' selection, he was said to have moderated his opposition to Eccles, the contemplated roster would act as a check on Eccles' liberalism.

Under the banking act of 1935, the new board of governors must be named February 1. It shall consist of seven, instead of six, active members, and will include the secretary of the treasury and comptroller of the currency, who formerly served ex-officio.

The President, in making the selection, "shall have due regard to a fair representation of the financial, agricultural, and commercial interests of the country."

Under the act the new board will have almost complete control over the country's banking system.

SON OF CHAMP CLARK DEFENDER OF WILSON

Clark said the Virginian has had a reputation of a man "who never speaks except in terms of intense indignation."

He added:

"It is no reflection on President Wilson, on Secretary of State Lansing, nor upon any member of this congress who voted to take this country into war to soberly and dispassionately examine the facts of the web of circumstances that dragged us into the war that was followed by calamity."

Glass cut in to assert there was "not a fact stated in the summation of the record" by Clark that "senators of reasonable intelligence are not fully aware of."

"And it didn't require $125,000 or 25 cents that that record available to the munitions committee. All of us followed the circumstances of that period. All of us understood the intensive controversial nature of diplomatic correspondence between the United States and other countries."

While Nye said he was intent on putting the senate "on record" if it chose to stop the investigation, he faced a week-end conference with his committee divided, for Senator Pope, democrat, Indiana, who earlier broke with the chairman, reiterated that he and Senator George, democrat, Georgia, would vote against the bill, and more money beyond the $125,000 already exhausted.

The value of the services of the committee is now over, Pope said.

MAYOR BRYAN DENIES SENATOR CLARK'S CHARGES

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Mayor Charles W. Bryan today asserted his brother, William Jennings Bryan, was not involved in the Missouri case.

He said:

"I am not a member of the Missouri committee. I am not a member of the Missouri committee. I am not a member of the Missouri committee."

South To Renew Tribute Today To Her Heroes, Lee and Jackson

Prominent Speakers To Be Heard at U. D. C. Exercises Here Today; Program Announced in Many Other Cities.

Robert E. Lee and Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson, valiant generals of the Confederate army in the War Between the States, once again will receive the south's pledge of loyalty.

During the coming week, in the section once trod by the troops of these two generals, historians and biographers will join United Daughters of the Confederacy in anniversary programs.

By words and with laurel wreaths the patriots will extol Lee, one of the world's greatest and best-loved soldiers and scholars; and Jackson, a military genius of few equals in the history of wars.

Glowing word monuments will be raised over the name of Lee, the man whose versatility brought him leadership of the Confederate forces, presidency of Washington College (now Washington and Lee), and superintendency of West Point.

Battlefield Cry. Speakers will recall the battlefield cry of Brigadier General Bernard E. Bee, at First Manassas (Bull Run) when he said:

"There is Jackson standing like a stone wall."

But Jackson always insisted Bee intended the remark to apply to the general's brigade.

He was a penniless orphan of Scotch-Irish parents at three years of age, rose gradually to the immortal place he holds in history.

His military aptness swept him into a major's uniform in seven months of the Mexican War.

In Atlanta, near Stone Mountain where Lee's hosts are memorialized in granite, exercises sponsored by the state-wide organization will be held in the U. D. C. hall, today, Lee's birthday, on both heroes.

Speakers include Mrs. Kirby-Smith Anderson, Georgia U. D. C. historian; Mrs. Frank Dennis, state president.

With the closing date for entry into the county primary only three weeks off, at least eight candidates are expected to qualify for various races during this week.

An even dozen had paid their entrance fees to the county primary, secretary of the Fulton democratic executive committee, yesterday.

Ellis Barrett, mayor pro tem, said he will pay his $500 entrance fee to the county primary, but he will not enter the primary on March 11.

Candidates who have already qualified may withdraw and be re-qualified their fee until February 1.

The democratic committee will open offices at 608 Peters building on February 1.

Secretary Chambers is to decide upon and announce polling places which will be maintained on March 11.

No candidate has yet qualified for clerk of the superior court, but a three-cornered race is assured. J. W. Simmons, incumbent, will announce for re-election and will be opposed by Democrat A. C. Corbett, lawyer.

A fourth candidate is hinted in political circles but thus far remains a possible "dark horse."

Four candidates are qualified for the sheriff's race, being James I. Lowry, incumbent; Alderman J. C. (Mott) Aldridge, County Policeman Cal Cates and W. T. (Big Bill) Turner.

In the race which is likely to be the most bitterly fought of all, only the incumbents are qualified.

They are County Commissioners George F. Longino and J. A. Ragdale. They paid their entrance fees of $300 each last week.

Bryan, "never betrayed anyone, anywhere, any time in his life," when informed of Senator Clark's attack on the Communion in the senate today.

Clark, son of the late Champ Clark, asserted William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state under President Wilson, "betrayed Champ Clark's secret."

Gregor Piatigorsky on WGST; West End Chorus on Air Today

Thomas Beecham, Phil Baker, Joe Manzanarez' Band on Programs.

SUNDAY EVENING HOUR.

Gregor Piatigorsky, often referred to as the "Paderewski of the cello," will be the guest artist with the Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, under Victor Kozar, in the Sunday evening hour broadcast over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

Piatigorsky was born at Ekaterinburg in the Ukraine on April 11, 1903. At 9 Gregor was forced to play the role of chief support of his family by performing on his cello in motion picture houses. In 1921 he was smuggled into Poland by a band of robbers, who stole his money and most of his clothing. After privations and sufferings he was given an opportunity to appear as a soloist in the orchestra at the Warsaw opera. While there he met an American who took him to Berlin where he worked in coffee houses and motion picture theaters until a sudden turn for the better carried him to the first seat of the cello division at the Berlin Philharmonic concert.

From here on his rise was meteoric. He was deluged with engagements which took him all over Europe. He made his first American tour in the fall of 1929, appearing in leading orchestras as soloist with symphony orchestras as the Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and New York Philharmonic symphony. Since then he has been a regular feature in the music life of this country.

Mr. Piatigorsky will play five compositions as guest artist, the Adagio Movement of Haydn's "Concerto in D for Violoncello and Orchestra," accompanied by the orchestra, and Franconeri's "Gavotte and Vivo," accompanied by the piano. In the second portion, the guest artist will present "The Swan," by Saint-Saens, with harp accompaniment; Weber's "Rondo," and Schumann's "Träumerei," accompanied by the piano.

The program will open with the orchestra and chorus presenting the "Chorus of the Philistines" from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens, followed by the orchestra singing "Bacchante," from the same opera. After Piatigorsky's first two numbers, the orchestra will play the scherzo from Tchaikovsky's "Fourth Symphony."

Schubert's "March Militaire" will open the second half, and will be followed by three selections by the orchestra. The orchestra will play "Magic Fire Music" from "Die Val-kyre," by Wagner. The chorus and orchestra will close the program with a hymn.

PRESIDENT TO DEDICATE MEMORIAL

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will pay tribute to President Theodore Roosevelt during a speech at the dedication of the new memorial to the immortal "Teddy," which will be broadcast over WGST at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The President will speak from the American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

Other guests on the program include Peter D. Kiernan, vice chairman of the board of trustees of the Theodore Roosevelt memorial; Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York; Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and James R. Garfield, secretary of the National Under Theodore Roosevelt, Roland H. Rogers, senior, will be among the entertainers.

BEECHAM LEAVES SYMPHONY.

Mr. Thomas Beecham will conduct his final concert of the season at the helm of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra with another program of English music and a Mozart symphony to be broadcast over WGST at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Beecham will open the program with the "Norfolk Rhapsody," No. 1 in E minor, by Vaughan Williams, to be followed by Sir Edward Elgar's "Serenade" for String Orchestra, and the famous "Jupiter" symphony, No. 41, in C major, by Mozart. The second portion of the program will open with Lord Berners' "Fugue," followed by "Pavane for a Nightingale," by Frederick Delius, and another Elgar composition, "Cockaigne." During the intermission, Lawrence Gilman will discuss the music.

Arturo Toscanini, the great Italian maestro, will conduct his first broadcast of the season with the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra.

MANZANAREZ' SOUTH AMERICANS.

Tango, rumbas and colorful classics from Latin-America will be featured by Jose Manzanarez and his South Americans during their broadcast over WGST at 1:30 this afternoon.

Manzanarez' guitar and vocal interludes will be heard with Dolores in several songs and will be followed by play accordions novelties. Manzanarez will feature several works drawn from a large repertoire of original compositions and manuscripts presented to him by prominent South American composers.

PHIL BAKER.

Phil Baker, The Great American Tourist, accompanied by Bottle and his stooge-driven Winabanz Six, will pay a mythical visit to Cleveland during his broadcast with Hal Kemp's orchestra over WGST at 6:30 tonight, in honor of the occasion.

Baker has promised to fill Bottle with Lake Ontario water and empty him into Lake Erie, just off Cleveland's municipal dock, thus symbolizing the union of the Great Lakes—or something.

Agnes Moorehead, Baker's backstage driver, will christen Bottle with the word "Cleveland Night."

CHORAL MUSIC CLUB.

An interesting vocal program will be presented by the West End Choral Club under the direction of Robert S. Lawrence Jr., with Mrs. Lawrence at the piano, over WGST at 8:30 o'clock this afternoon. The chorus will present a number of selections popular in the period following the War Between the States. A chorus of 25 voices will offer John Howard Payne's "Home, Sweet Home." The club will have as their guests in the studio Miss Jessie Harden and Mrs. Leroy Smith, cousins of Miss Mary Harden, the sweetheart of John Howard Payne.

PIANO RECITAL.

Irene Lettich and Mollie Horton Young will present a two-piano recital over WGST Monday evening at 8:45 o'clock on the program of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs. The program will include three of argument advanced in bringing the matter to Geneva.

ITALY TO RECOGNIZE BRITISH INTERESTS

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 18.—(UP)—Italy intends to recognize Britain's imperial interest in the valley of the Nile and Ethiopia, the newspaper Popolo D'Italia, founded by Premier Benito Mussolini, will say editorially tomorrow.

The editorial, recalling that the Italian government has repeatedly declared its desire to respect and harmonize British interests, but that there was a lack of the question of Italian security, will say:

"Italy cannot be secure in Europe unless there is absolute tranquility behind her shoulders in Africa."

4,000 BRITISH SOLDIERS ARRIVE IN EGYPT

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 18.—(UP)—Between 3,000 and 4,000 British troops have arrived in Egypt in the last 10 days. The latest were the East Lancashire, who landed at Alexandria, completing the arrival of four new battalions.

Part of the four battalions were placed in barracks in Cairo, but the destination of the others was not certain. Another battalion was due at Port Said tomorrow for duty on the Suez canal.

It was conservatively estimated that between 50,000 and 60,000 purely British troops will be on duty in Egypt shortly. The new arrivals include mechanized units, which British apparently is placing equal faith with the air force, at present estimated at between 800 and 900 planes.

delegate contests, they might become the beneficiaries of any deadlock at the Cleveland convention.

Friends of the last President took him at his word when, at Lincoln, Neb., he said his position was such that "approval by politicians" did not matter. Some felt this attitude would strengthen his hand in platform considerations; and so make him a logical compromise choice to head the ticket; if compromise there need be.

Omitting names, former Senator Fess, of Ohio, predicted today some of the potential dangers of an up-front would fall by the wayside. He viewed the field as wide open with a "dark horse" probably the victor.

As a former republican chairman, his insistence on an "out-and-out anti-New Deal" candidate received notice at the capitol. It coincided with an assertion in New York by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that the issue would be "recovery, wasteful spending and centralized government."

This contrasted with the New Deal slogan just advanced by Postmaster General Farley: "Keep Roosevelt in—keep the gang out!"

His retirement from the cabinet to pursue that goal, in his capacity as democratic chairman, was believed at the capitol to be now but a matter of weeks.

MIDWEST BLANKETED BY HEAVY SNOWSTORM

Kansas were attributed to exposure or traffic conditions resulting from ice-sheathed thoroughfares.

At Meadfield, Mass., scores of searchers trailed three-year-old Dale Tibbets through a fast falling snow. He wandered off Wednesday.

Another descent of the elements, a tornado which struck near Fort Payne, Ala., caused at least four deaths and heavy property damage.

Trains from the west were late in Chicago as a blustery snow starting early in the morning brought an estimated three-inch covering over northern Illinois. West of the Mississippi, Iowa and Nebraska reported falls ranging as deep as 12 and 18 inches.

Lowest temperatures reported were hazardous throughout the territory and highway department crews were kept busy opening the main highways. The secondary road systems were impassable east over the area, especially in the trans-Mississippi storm belt. Even some arterial roads in Iowa were cleared for one-way traffic only.

DR. LUCCOCK TO SPEAK THIS WEEK AT EMORY

Yale School of Divinity Professor Featured on Religious Program.

Dr. Halford E. Luccock, professor of homiletics and pastoral theology at the Yale School of Divinity, will be the principal speaker of the combined Ministers' and Religious Emphasis Week of Emory University, which begins tomorrow and continues through Friday.

Using "Christianity and the Individual in a Social World" as his subject, Dr. Luccock will speak in the theology chapel at 7:30 o'clock Monday through Thursday nights and in Glen Memorial church at 10 o'clock Tuesday through Friday mornings.

More than 200 ministers are expected to visit the campus during the week. A series of short courses has been arranged for the ministers and their wives by the Emory theological faculty and a seminar on contemporary social problems will be directed by Dr. M. Ashby Jones, Dr. Arthur W. Hays, Judge Garland M. Watkins and Dr. John W. Shackelford.

Special activities of the week include a reception at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to which Atlanta Methodist ministers have been invited and a banquet Thursday night with Bishop Paul B. Kern acting as toastmaster.

Dr. Luccock is the son of the late Bishop Nathaniel Luccock, of the Methodist Episcopal church. He holds an A. B. degree from Northwestern University, an M. A. degree from Columbia University, the D. D. degree from Syracuse University and the Litt. D. degree from Allegheny College. Entering the Methodist ministry in 1910, he held pastorates in Connecticut and in 1914 became professor of the New Testament at Drew Theological Seminary. He has been editorial secretary of the Methodist board of foreign missions, contributing editor of the New York Christian Advocate and has published a number of books and sermons.

BAPTISTS TO HOLD STATE S. S. MEET

800 Delegates Expected To Attend Convention in Macon March 9-10.

Plans are being made to entertain 800 delegates to a state Baptist Sunday school board convention in Macon March 9-10. Dr. T. W. Tippet, state secretary, said yesterday.

A five-year associational promotion program for Georgia will be set up, Dr. Tippet said.

Arrangements are being made by Dr. T. L. Holcomb, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday school board and J. N. Barnett, both of Nashville.

The meeting will be held in the First Baptist church.

Dr. Tippet announced nine full-time workers who will be employed in Sunday school field work, campaigns, teacher training classes and general promotion work.

They are: Gainer E. Bryan, state field worker and assistant department leader; Miss Susie Eubanks, state field worker and extension department leader; Mrs. T. W. Tippet, young people worker; Miss Alma Groves, intermediate worker; Mrs. J. H. Heard, junior worker; Mrs. Ethel Davis, primary worker; Miss Blossom Thompson, elementary secretary.

A goal of 300,000 enrolled in Baptist Sunday school work in the 2,200 Georgia Sunday schools has been set—an increase of 27,570 over the New Year membership. At least 1,000 teacher training schools will be conducted during the year.

SEEKS RAIN SHELTER, STABBED IN ARGUMENT

Stabbed in the chest during an argument over an awning in front of 104 Peachtree place, Thomas Emmitt, 21, of 80 Mills street, was admitted to Grady hospital shortly after 8 o'clock last night.

His condition is fair. According to police, the wounded youth and Douglas Page, 16, of 288 Hayden street, N. W., sought shelter from the rain under the awning and then became involved in a quarrel.

Cause of the argument was not learned. A charge of disorderly conduct, stabbing, was placed against Page.

Appropriation of $350,000 Will Be Sought To Pay Planters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, announced tonight he would introduce—probably Tuesday—legislation for a new $350,000,000 farm program representing his interpretation of the administration's views.

Explaining that his bill would "broaden and enlarge" the 1935 soil conservation act, Bankhead declared it would "accomplish in a large measure the same results that have been secured under the A.A.A. program."

The southern senator said an appropriation of $350,000,000 would be sought to finance "drafts to farmers based upon their compliance with plans promulgated by the secretary of agriculture."

In practical application, Bankhead said, these would include "diversification and rotation in crops, crop adjustments and soil building."

Asked if his was administration legislation, Bankhead said it "contains my interpretation of the agreement reached at the White House conference this week, of which I was a member."

He added that after consultation with colleagues and "able leaders outside congress," he was "fully satisfied that the new bill will stand the test of the courts if it ever reaches the courts."

The senator said his bill, which he hoped to have attached as an amendment to the first appropriation measure taken up by the senate, would authorize administration of the farm program through the present AAA organization.

Asked how the program would be financed, Bankhead said that would be decided later, adding, "we want to keep this entirely separate."

Earlier today, Secretary Wallace fixed February 15 as the date when the new program should become effective to apply to crops grown in 1936.

In his first press conference since AAA was invalidated, Wallace said preparation of legislation was a "congressional function," but he added:

"The important thing is to expand the definition of the soil conservation act to include specifically soil conservation and preservation of fertility and not merely erosion control."

Administration leaders have said that the soil conservation act would be the basis for a new program calling for cash payments to farmers.

They hoped to obtain authorization through amendments rather than new laws.

Wallace said he believed the people of the United States would be "gravely concerned" over efforts of manufacturers to obtain refund of processing taxes paid the treasury.

Both the $1,000,000,000 collected and the $200,000,000 impounded by court action, he said, should be held in the same status.

Public opinion, he added, "would not tolerate" refund of these taxes which he asserted have been passed on to the consumer by processing firms.

The supreme court decision in a rice miller's case has been interpreted as requiring the return of the impounded $200,000,000.

Declaring congress has not asked the AAA for any estimate of cost of the new program, the secretary declined to speculate on this phase.

Official estimates have placed this cost at between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000.

Wallace called attention to a survey made by department experts which showed 35,000,000 acres planted in corn, cotton and wheat as "D" and "D" slopes, which he explained should be planted only in grass or trees.

Controlled erosion.

Experts classifying land as to the degree of slope and the danger of erosion say that "A" and "B" slopes can be cultivated with erosion controlled.

The agriculture secretary reiterated his contention that the long-time solution for agricultural problems must include building up foreign purchasing power, and insisted that present there is no market for the products of about 50,000,000 acres of the nation's commercial crop land.

He warned that the amount of corn loans from the 1935 crop is now 45 cents a bushel, probably would be reduced. Wallace said corn loans could not be continued indefinitely without production control and that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which furnishes money for the loans, probably would insist on a reduction in the loan rate.

Declaring the AAA field organization would be ideal to handle the new farm program, Wallace said the agency's personnel probably would deal with the soil conservation and soil fertility phases of the new program and that the soil conservation service would concentrate on erosion control.

Wallace said many of the speculation problems should be included in a permanent farm program.

MINIATURES SHOWN AT MUSEUM OF ART

Exhibition One of Most Unusual of Year, Says Director Skidmore.

A collection of miniatures now on display at the High Museum of Art represents one of the most unusual exhibitions scheduled at this museum this year. L. P. Skidmore, director, said yesterday. The display is sponsored by the American Society of Miniature Painters.

Among the 55 paintings included are such unusual subjects, for miniatures, as still life and landscapes. The coloring is uniformly lovely, and the size of many of the pictures is greater than customary.

The artists represented are among the most famous in this field in America, among them such names as Laura Combs Hill, Pamela Vinton Ravenel, native Georgian; Clara Louise Bell, Elsie Dodge Patten, Maria J. Streem, Margaret, Soles Hawn, Hildebrandt, Alma Hirsig Bliss, Olga Sorenson, Alice Fuller Goodhue and Grace H. Murray. One of Maria J. Streem's paintings is a portrait of Glenway Westcott, noted author.

Opening January 25 will be an exhibition of particular interest to residents of Atlanta, when the paintings of Marjorie Conant Bush-Brown (Mrs. Harold Bush-Brown) will go on display. This will be a retrospective exhibition of the works of this painter, who was well known, particularly in the portrait field, long before she came to Atlanta 12 years ago. All stages of Mrs. Bush-Brown's artistic development will be displayed.

A leap year cancellation on a Confederate cover and a block of four used stamps of the perforated type 10-cent Confederate issue were included in the interesting group of stamps inspected by members of the Atlanta Stamp Society at the meeting held Thursday night at the office of the secretary, Karl Pathe, in the Peachtree Arcade.

Associate Member Judd attended the meeting and assisted in presenting the interesting program. A "barter" night will be held this Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the same meeting place.

All members are urged to bring duplicates for trading purposes. A cordial invitation is extended by the club to all stamp collectors to attend the meeting.

All officers of the Atlanta Stamp Collectors' Club were re-elected at the meeting held Monday night in the assembly room on the balcony of the Peachtree Arcade. Officers re-elected included: W. A. Frie, president; J. L. Young, vice president; L. H. Fitzpatrick, secretary and treasurer, and E. D. Williamson, assistant secretary and treasurer.

Following the recent change in the club's constitution meetings will be held on the first and third Mondays of each month in the Peachtree Arcade assembly room.

The next auction will be held February 3.

New issues listed by McKee's Weekly Stamp News include:

Lichtenstein-Postage—Five new values have now been added to the current series. The 15sp red orange is of the miniature size, which has apparently been popular for the low values. The design shows a view of the roofs and churchtower of Bern, looking across the Rhine toward the Swiss Alps. The other four values are large horizontal pictorials, to continue the series begun in 1934.

Panama-Postage—A new value in the regular postage series is the 1.50c dull blue. The design is the Rincón Khan portrait, type A56, large size.

Senegal-Postage—The long-heralded new set of this French colony were issued December 15. They are re-issued and present varied designs. The postage series consists of 24 values.

CONVICTION VOIDED ON MURDER CASE

Verdict Against J. G. Thompson.

The Georgia supreme court reversed the conviction yesterday of J. G. Thompson, of Walton county, for the murder of William Riley on the grounds that evidence which should have been admitted was excluded by the trial court.

Thompson was given a life sentence in Walton superior court and in appealing claimed the evidence which was excluded might have affected the verdict had it been admitted. Riley was killed May 11, 1935.

The supreme court, in reversing the lower court, did not pass on the sufficiency of evidence for a conviction, however, the court held "a party has a right to make a thorough and sifting cross-examination of the witnesses called against him and great latitude

NEW BOOK ON ACIDS

Fairlie Is Author of Highly Praise Volume.

Andrew M. Fairlie, Atlanta chemical engineer, is the author of a new technical book, "Sulfuric Acid Manufacture," to be released tomorrow.

Fairlie has established an international reputation as an authority on the manufacture of sulfuric acid, and has patented a new method for the control of the chamber process of manufacturing the acid.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society and of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and was elected a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

No previous book on the subject in English includes in a single volume similar information. Other works have been issued in three-volume and four-volume sets.

The author is a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and graduated from Harvard University. Fairlie has been engaged in scientific work in Atlanta for the past 17 years.

ONE-ARM DRIVER WINS SAFETY PRAISE

Well-Known Detroit Artist Drives Easily With One Arm.

Though minus his right arm, Harry W. Slater, well-known Detroit artist, drives an automobile as easily and as skillfully as many drivers who "keep both hands on the steering wheel." Slater keeps his only hand on the steering wheel, too, and is rated as one of the safest drivers in Detroit. In fact, in 15 years of driving in Detroit and Chicago he has had only one ticket—and that was for driving too slowly. The ticket read "double parking."

Slater drives his car without taking his hand from the steering wheel through use of the electric hand, with which his Terraplane sedan is equipped. In this case, the "hand" has been adjusted so that he can reach it easily with his left hand. In the conventional installation, the hand is so set that it is operated by the right hand.

Previous to acquiring a Terraplane, Slater had considerable difficulty in getting cars that he could operate safely in congested traffic. In one car, he was forced to shift gears by using his right foot to operate the shift lever.

Every day Slater drives to his office through the heaviest of traffic, through use of the electric hand, the streets, congested with thousands of cars heading north. His unscathed record is proof of his proficiency at the wheel.

Recently, when Slater applied for a renewal of his driving license in Detroit, the police department insisted that he take a road test. Before the car had gone a block, however, the test officer said: "You can drive all right. That car was just made for you." The license was renewed without further question.

The "electric hand," with which both Hudsons and Terraplanes are equipped, makes it possible to pre-select the next gear into which the transmission is to be shifted any length of time in advance of the actual shifting. An arm extends from the steering column under the normal position of the driver's hand on the steering wheel. Extending up from this arm is a small lever or trigger, easily reached by the fingers of the driver's right hand. While running in any gear the driver can move the lever through an H, similar to the conventional gearshift, to pre-select the next gear in which he wishes to travel.

SHORT COURSE OPENS IN WAITRESS TRAINING

Atlanta Opportunity School, Spring and Baker streets, will open a short course in waitress training tomorrow. It is announced. Classes will meet daily for several weeks and will include instruction in table service, etiquette, menu study, meal planning and salad making.

In addition to the study of special foods, it is said the course will stress the development of personal qualities for holding any job satisfactorily. Emphasis will be placed on selling one's services, personal hygiene and good English as applied to this type of employment.

No charge is made for the course and further information may be secured at the school or by calling Walnut 7645.

Chevrolet Executives Confer Here

Left, H. B. Hatch, assistant general sales manager, with L. S. Costley, southeastern regional manager, who conferred with Chevrolet officials here this past week. Chevrolet disclosed plans for a very comprehensive newspaper advertising campaign for this coming year.

Newspaper Advertising Backbone Of Chevrolet's Promotional Effort

Newspaper advertising forms the backbone of the promotional effort which the Chevrolet Motor Company is putting behind the most aggressive merchandising program in its history. This was revealed by H. B. Hatch, assistant general sales manager, in an interview following the all-day session which he and L. S. Costley, southeastern regional manager, conducted here in the Atlanta Athletic Club, Thursday, by way of launching the year's activities.

Mr. Hatch also explained in detail the $1,000,000 used-car disposal plan under which Chevrolet and its dealers will scrap thousands of dangerously old vehicles this month, thus promoting the cause of traffic safety which is uppermost in the public mind, some of the reasons for the new year, and Chevrolet's program for the retirement of cars so old as to constitute traffic hazards is believed to be the most comprehensive plan of its kind ever put into effect, said Mr. Hatch.

"It provides for the reimbursement of the dealer for every vehicle taken in trade and scrapped, and it applies throughout the entire country."

"Of the 25,000,000 automobiles licensed in the United States, several millions are so old that their continued operation causes excessive taxation expense to their owners and adds to the traffic hazards of the public at large. With new cars leaving the factories at a rate of some 3,000,000 a year, the situation is becoming more and more complicated."

In addition, of course, the existence of these cars is a constant source of annoyance to the dealer and the manufacturer. So long as they are in circulation at all, they create a situation that is unwholesome in the extreme. Yet the dealer himself cannot

BUICK COMMENDED ON SAFETY MOVEMENT

Company Joins Newspapers in Nation-Wide Safety Driving Campaign.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 18.—The police department of the City of New York is proud of its traffic safety record and proud of its safety slogan—"Care, Courtesy and Common Sense."

This was evidenced today in a telegram to Harlow H. Currier, president of the Buick Motor Company, in which Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine commended Buick's nationwide safety campaign and the formation of the "Buick Safety Legion."

"Greatest possible success to Buick's Safety Legion," wired Commissioner Valentine. "Through sincere co-operation, the New York police department has decreased traffic fatalities 5.93 per cent, accidents 20.4 per cent, and injuries resulting from traffic accidents 20.7 per cent during 1935. Widespread public interest and united action in traffic safety must bring similar improvement throughout the nation. New York police department welcomes assistance toward broadcasting its traffic slogan 'Care, Courtesy and Common Sense' to sister cities, towns and villages. The saving of lives and prevention of injuries to humans are far too important to consider a local problem or achievement."

Telegrams commending the Buick safety program, now being carried on among more than 2,000,000 Buick owners throughout the United States, were received by President Currier from safety leaders and public officials in all sections of the country.

Among leaders endorsing the campaign were Angelo J. Rossi, mayor of San Francisco; F. Woodall Johnson, managing director Chattanooga Safety Council; W. D. Smith, president Delaware Safety Council; Marcus Dow, Grayhound Lines; Charles B. Scott, president Chicago Bureau of Safety; Albert W. Whitney, associate general manager Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters; Arthur C. Carruthers, editor Safety Engineering; Lewis E. MacBryne, general manager Massachusetts Safety Council; Arthur Williams, president American Museum of Safety; J. R. Curtis, Portland Cement Association; C. H. Watson, president National Safety Council; Frederick Archer, chairman Child Safety committee, National Safety Council; Robert I. Catlin, Aetna Life Insurance Company; W. H. Cameron, managing director, National Safety Council.

The Buick campaign was launched by the company January 15. A major activity will be the Buick Safety Legion, whose members are pledged to careful and courteous driving and observance of local traffic rules. The campaign will be carried on through the medium of the Buick Magazine, a company publication circulating to Buick owners throughout the country. Members of the Buick Safety Legion are entitled to display on their cars the medallion of the legion. This may be obtained by any Buick owner through his local dealer on signing the Buick safety pledge.

Victims with respect to newspapers' effectiveness have been strengthened by its recent experience, when the use of extensive newspaper space in connection with new cars resulted in sales that broke all-time records.

Every comparison of Eights leads straight to HUDSON

Compare all the Eights for Size! You will find no Eight with several hundred dollars that gives so much room all around as this Hudson Super Straight Eight . . . shoulder room, elbow room, leg room. And no other car has so much storage space for baggage. It's the biggest Eight ever priced so low.

Compare style! Here's a new style that makes Hudson the leader among the 1936 Eights . . . with a design not too radical, yet far ahead in distinctive beauty. A glance tells you how much longer it will stay in style.

Compare power and performance! Below $1500 there isn't a single Eight that equals Hudson's range of 113 to 124 horsepower. And, pay what you will, no car develops such power on so little gas . . . nor equals the smoothness of this Straight Eight motor.

The superiority of Hudson Eight performance is unquestioned, even by competitors. Their tests, as well as ours, show no other stock car that can match it. And owners' sworn statements by thousands tell of amazing mileage . . . 150,000, 200,000 and even more.

Compare safety! No other popular Eight gives you the complete protection of a body all of steel with seamless roof of solid steel. Nor does any other Eight provide the double safety of Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for) . . . the latest and best hydraulics with a separate reserve system operating automatically from the same pedal.

So on . . . through the list of new 1936 Hudson features. No other Eight has them! Radial Safety Control (patent applied for), which makes riding, steering, and stopping safer than ever before. True-Line Steering. Rhythmic Ride. The Electric Hand, an optional extra . . . gear shifting at a finger flick, with both hands on the wheel.

You can prove all this for yourself in a few minutes . . . today . . . behind the wheel of a Hudson Eight.

ATLANTA CHILD'S HOME REPORTS DEFICIT CUT

Despite Increase in Service, Adverse Financial Status Is Improved.

Forty-one children and 15 mothers were admitted to the Atlanta Child's Home last year, and 40 children and 19 mothers, who had been benefited, were dismissed, officials announced yesterday in their service report for 1933. The home sheltered 143 persons and served 277 and though these figures were increases over 1932, the deficit was reduced.

"In presenting our report in figures, officials realize the impossibility of expressing the value and the beauty of the work we think we have accomplished," Miss Bessie Langhorne, executive secretary, said. "We wish to thank physicians and the many other persons and agencies who have given us their services."

The home has two distinct departments. One is the city office where all records are filed and the other is the home itself, situated on Hightower road, where children and their mothers are comfortably sheltered. In addition to taking care of cases in distress by placing them in the home, officials also take care of children and parents where only temporary shelter and food is needed.

The home provides for children from one day old to five years. Departments of the home include a baby ward, diet kitchen, second nursery, kindergarten, girls' ward, boys' ward and a well-equipped hospital. There also are supervised playrooms and a playground. All children of school age attend the West Haven school.

Caring for the deserted, dependent or neglected child is the principal aim of the school, it was said. Whenever wise or possible, mother and child are kept together.

Mrs. F. M. Robinson, president, made the most outstanding gifts to the home last year. It was said that the officials said they also wished to thank the Community Chest, city council, county commissioners, board of public welfare, Grady and Eggleston hospitals and the physicians who gave their services.

Perrin Hill Wins First $10 Prize In Mrs. Glenn Art Essay Contest

To Perrin Hill, of 997 Ponce de Leon avenue, goes the first $10 prize in the Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn art essay contest series for the excellent essay he turned in last week. This contest is being sponsored by the High Museum of Art and centers around photographs of paintings in the museum's collection which The Constitution is publishing each Sunday in its rotogravure section.

Students desiring to take part in this week's contest should turn to the rotogravure today, where they will find a reproduction of Hilda Belcher's lovely "Winifred." This picture they may study further at the museum. To do this it is suggested students organize groups which may make advance appointments with the museum. Discussions of the contest pictures then may be held with museum officials.

Perrin Hill, first winner in the series, is the son of Mrs. Flora S. Hill and is a member of the lower eighth grade at the William A. Bass Junior High school. His essay was brief and well expressed, conveying to the minds of the judges the clearest idea of what the painting, "The Path of the Moon" by George Elmer Browne, meant to the writer. "What the Picture Means to Me" is the theme for all essays.

Another capable essay, the work of Elise Merriam, won honorable mention. Elise is a student at O'Keeffe Junior High school, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Merriam, of 1123 Columbia avenue.

Following are the contest rules, which must be observed in all instances:

- (1) All junior and senior high school students in Fulton and DeKalb counties are eligible.
- (2) Essays must be limited to 500 words.
- (3) Essays must be received at the High museum, 1282 Peachtree street, not later than the Thursday following the publication of the photo.
- (4) Standard size typewriter paper, 8 1/2 by 11 inches, must be used. Contestants must write on one side of the paper only, using a typewriter or pen and ink. Neatness is essential.
- (5) Signatures should be placed at the bottom of the essays, accompanied by the names of parents or guardian, home address, telephone number if possible, name of the school attended, grade enrolled in and age of the writer.

Ten pictures will be reproduced in The Constitution, appearing weekly, and as many $10 prizes will be awarded. Students may take part in as many contests as they desire.

JOHN DOBBS' RITES SET FOR TOMORROW

Speed Crash Victim Will Be Buried in Woodstock.

Funeral services for John W. Dobbs, of Austell, who was fatally injured Friday when the car in which he was riding was struck by another car fleeing from a motorcycle officer, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon with the Rev. J. C. Callaway officiating.

The body will be taken to Woodstock, Ga., for burial in the Mount Gilead cemetery there.

Dobbs is survived by his wife, who is in a critical condition at Grady hospital as a result of the same accident; three daughters, the Misses Hazel, Helen and Katherine Dobbs; his mother, Mrs. Sarah Hefner; a brother, J. O. Hefner, and three sisters, Mrs. J. T. Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Nash and Mrs. R. E. Eickoff.

Dobbs died at a private hospital several hours after the crash. He had suffered a fracture of the skull and other injuries. Others hurt in the same accident included Betty Ann Brown, 4-year-old grandchild of the Dobbs, admitted to Grady hospital for observation; J. W. Harris, Hapeville, serious chest injuries, admitted to Grady hospital; J. C. Abernathy, an occupant of the fleeing car, lacerations and bruises, treated at Grady hospital and then removed to police headquarters on a charge of intoxication; and Motorcycle Patrolman J. R. Hanis, treated at Grady hospital for lacerations and bruises suffered when his motorcycle was in collision with a truck as he was escorting the injured to the hospital.

STATE NEARING END OF BREMER CASE

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The government will rest its case in the Edward G. Bremer kidnap trial Monday, George F. Sullivan, United States district attorney, announced at the jury was given a day of rest today.

The prosecution's last three witnesses in the case of Cassius McDonald, William Weaver and Harry Sawyer, charged with conspiracy, were en route from Washington.

Rose Bampton, American Soprano, Sings Here With Emory Glee Club

Rose Bampton, brilliant young mezzo-soprano and prima-donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear in Atlanta on the evening of March 25 as guest star with the Emory University Glee Club when it presents its annual Atlanta concert at Glenn Memorial auditorium, Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director of the club, announced Saturday.

Born in Cleveland, Miss Bampton studied music at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, where for four years she was a scholarship pupil of Horatio Connell and, during her fifth year, a pupil of Quenna Marfo who had succeeded Madame Sembrich as the head of the vocal department.

The young singer made her first popular success in the summer of 1929 as a member of the Chautauqua Opera Association, under the direction of Albert Stoessel, following which she was selected to appear at the Worcester festival in the autumn. The result was her engagement by the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, with which she sang leading roles for three seasons, through the spring of 1932.

Sang With Orchestra. A success in opera, she soon was in demand for concert and oratorio. Leopold Stokowski engaged her for various appearances with the Philadelphia orchestra, among them as soloist in the concert performances of "Boris Godunov," in De Falla's "El Amor Brujo" and in an All-Wagner program. In April, 1932, at the American premiere of Schoenberg's "Guerre-Lieder" she sang the part of the wood dove in both Philadelphia and in New York at the Metropolitan opera house.

On November 28, 1932, on the night of her twenty-third birthday, Rose Bampton made her Metropolitan opera debut in New York as Laura in "La Gioconda." It was a triumphant first appearance as she was praised everywhere by the critics for her performance.

First Atlanta Concert. In the year following her Metropolitan opera debut, Miss Bampton continued her concert appearances. Outstanding were the five concerts with the Philadelphia orchestra under Stokowski, three singing Kundry in his "Parsifal."

Dr. Dewey said that Miss Bampton had not yet decided on what selections she will sing, but that they will be announced later as well as the program which the club will render.

Wide Gap Looms Between First, Second Division in American

STRONG TEAMS IMPROVE, WEAK AT STANDSTILL

Yanks, Red Sox, Indians Assemble Resources To Fight Tigers.

By George Kirksey.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The new alignment of strength in the American league apparently has drawn the pennant contenders closer together, leaving a wide gap between the four top teams and the second division group.

The strong teams—Detroit, New York, Cleveland and Boston—have added strength, while the second division group—Chicago, Washington, St. Louis and Philadelphia—have either remained at a standstill or weakened their ranks by cash transactions.

Winter maneuvers by the Yankees, Indians and Red Sox indicate that those three clubs are assembling all their resources to block the Tigers' path to their third straight pennant. Winning three pennants in succession is one of the most difficult feats in baseball, and only extraordinarily great teams have been able to turn the trick. Only four teams—the Athletics in 1929-30-31, Yankees in 1926-27-28 and 1921-22-23 and Tigers in 1907-08-09—have been able to win three straight American league pennants. Six teams have failed in bids for their third in a row.

YAWKEY SPENDS.

Tom Yawkey has spent $400,000 to strengthen the Red Sox for the 1938 campaign. Colonel Jacob Ruppert has declared himself "tired of finishing in second place." Cleveland believes that its formidable array of talent will not go to waste under Steve O'Neill, who succeeded Walter Johnson as manager in midseason last year.

Proven players acquired by the four first division clubs during the winter follows:

TIGERS—Outfielder Al Simmons from the White Sox.

YANKES—Pitcher Monte Pearson from Cleveland, Outfielder Roy Johnson and Pitcher Bump Hadley from Washington.

INDIANS—Pitcher Johnny Allen from the Yankees.

RED SOX—First Baseman Jimmy Fox, Pitcher Johnny Marcum, Infielder Eric McNair and Outfielder Roger Cramer from Philadelphia and Outfielder Heinie Manush from Washington.

Washington has acquired Outfielder Carl Reynolds from Boston and Pitcher Jimmy DeShong and Outfielder Jesse Hill from New York but the Senators apparently are rebuilding with an eye to 1937.

SECOND DIVISION.

The Browns have done nothing to strengthen their club. The White Sox probably have lost strength through the departure of Simmons. Connie Mack apparently has wrecked his club and the A's are pronounced favorites to finish last again. Third place among the four contenders the Yankees and Indians appear to have the pitching, the Red Sox the power, and the Tigers the balance. All of them have weaknesses which might prove disastrous in the heat of the pennant battle. The contenders' principal problems may be outlined as follows:

TIGERS—Cochrane, burdened by more responsibility since the death of Owner Frank Navin, may be hampered in catching duty. Third base problem may have to be solved by rookie. Official ruling against type of mitt he used and World Series wrist injury might affect Greenberg's play.

YANKES—Big problem is whether Lefty Gomez will stage comeback after last year's strenuous campaign. Second baseman needed to share the aging Tony Lazzeri's burden. Chapman's value may depend upon his ability to get back in the good graces of Yankee stadium fans. Crosetti's injured leg may slow him up.

INDIANS—Catching staff doubtful with Pytk's health a question mark and only three rookies to back him up. Only five infielders on squad. Outfielder Campbell's health leaves him a question mark.

RED SOX—Lack of pitching strength biggest drawback. All outfielders except 41-year-old Big Miller hit left-handed, making them less effective in Fenway park, which has longest right field fence in league.

MEHLHORN FIRST AT SACRAMENTO

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The only thing "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn today was his shirt—a screaming black and white pattern—and the broad-shouldered cowboy of the fairways held on to his lead in the $3,000 Sacramento open at the 36-hole point.

The Kentucky golf master, playing them down the middle most of the time and overcoming a lapse or two with birdie comebacks, duplicated his 71, which put him in the lead on the first 18 holes yesterday.

One stroke behind Mehlhorn's 142 came Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y., who picked up a 70 to put with his 73 of yesterday. He shot the most flawless golf of the day, getting two 32's. He had two birdies sparkling among 16 pars.

Two strokes back of the leader came young Byron Nelson, of Ridgewood, N. Y., with a 69 and a 36-hole score of 144.

Nelson, turning in the best 18-hole score of the tournament, collected 13 pars and four birdies. He snared his first birdie four at the second hole with a 10-foot putt, and another birdie four with a 15-footer at the seventh. A fine approach and a three-foot putt gave him a birdie three at the 14th and he ran down a 25-foot putt at the sixteenth for another birdie three.

Winter, Summer Sports Popular With Atlantans; Daily Play Aids Conditioning.

By Jack Troy.

A talented baseball nine is represented in the above basketball layout. The payers, most of them Atlanta boys, are playing basketball during the winter to keep in shape for baseball.

Early in March, the nine athletes will depart for far-flung camps, where they will bid for regular positions.

Many baseball players maintain that basketball is too strenuous and that it takes too much out of them with the long summer season ahead. But not these young huskies. They figure the early conditioning is well worth while.

They play regularly on league teams and put plenty of spirit into the hardwork sport.

Here's a thumbnail sketch of the basketball-baseball nine:

Mercer Harris—He played infield for the Bloomington, Ill. club in the Three-Eye league last year. Property of the St. Louis Cardinals, he has not been assigned as yet to a new club for 1938. He plays basketball with Warren.

Lynn Campbell—He broke into professional baseball with the Monocess club of the Pennsylvania State Association last season and has been assigned to Toronto, of the International A. league, for 1938. He's an infielder and plays basketball with Warren.

Arthur McHenry—He has played in both the Texas and Southern leagues and performed last season in the New York-Pennsylvania league. An outfielder, he will return to the same league this season. He also is playing basketball with Warren.

Jake Gardner—He broke into professional baseball last season as an outfielder. He was signed by the Yankees and farmed out to the Washington club in the Pennsylvania State Association. He will train with the Newark club this spring. He is going to continue school and playing basketball with the Decatur Tire & Battery nve.

Johnny Marion—Johnny had a fine season with Chattanooga in 1935. He had a splendid defensive record, leading the gardeners in assists. He has been transferred to the Albany club, along with Russell Maxey, another Atlanta boy. Marion plays basketball with Mohawk.

Johnny Chambers—The more basketball Johnny Chambers can play the better he likes it. He plays with three teams here. A pitcher for the Columbus team of the International A. association last season, Chambers has been transferred to the Sacramento, Cal. club, latest Class AA addition to the Cardinal chain. He plays most of his basketball with Fulton Park and Webb-Martin. He can hit that goal, as attested by the 22 points he scored in the last game.

Jim Bagby Jr.—Young Jim won 12 and lost eight for the Charlotte Hornets in the Piedmont league last season. He is well liked by Herb Pannock, Hornets president, and predicts a bright future for him. Because of the uncertainty of the Charlotte club over retaining its franchise, however, Bagby is not sure as yet where he will play this season.

Jerome (Bubber) Yarter—The big Yankee is coming to Yarter, who played infield for the Galveston club of the Texas league last season. He will report to the Athletics for spring training. Connie Mack having sold off most of his stars, Yarter is expected to have a chance to stick. He plays basketball with Kraft-Phenix.

Harry Taylor—Harry is an Atlanta boy by adoption. He played first base for the Crackers until he fractured his leg.

ACE GENERATES AMAZING POWER

Townes asked him if he knew any of the hurdlers. Townes pointed out one of the men against whom he was to run.

"There's the best one," he said. The photographer photographed the man in several poses.

A few minutes later Townes left the field. He yelled the photographer, running up, "why did you lie to me? I want to photograph you."

Townes is one of Georgia's two Olympic prospects. Mickey Radutzky, welterweight boxer, is the other. Pictures of him are on another page in the sports section.

Townes To Enter Milrose Games

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 15.—Announcement that Forrest "Spec" Townes, Georgia's ace high hurdler, will compete in the Milrose Athletic Club games in New York February 1 came today as Athletic Director Stegeman released the 1936 track and field schedule.

Meets with five schools are listed with three slated to be held here opening April 4 with Presbyterian College in Clinton, S. C. The Bulldogs will close out the season with the Southeastern conference meet in Birmingham May 18. The clash with Georgia Tech is set for May 2 in Athens.

Townes will run in the 60-yard high hurdles in Madison Square Garden February 1. Whether Townes will be in the 100 or 200 yard races in the north during the winter term will depend entirely upon the amount of time he will have to be away from classes. No chance will be taken that he will interfere with his school work. He is an excellent student, ranking well in his classes.

Having already set records in two meets Townes is definitely rated an Olympic prospect. He set a southern record last summer at the junior national A. A. U. meet in Lincoln, Neb., when he won a heat in 14.4 seconds. This time that of any southern athlete in competition while in college. In the final heat Townes won a close second in the world's record time of 14.2 seconds. He also showed good form last month in the Sugar Bowl meet in New Orleans, defeating some of the country's best men.

Prospects for a good track season are bright this season. The Georgia 1936 track and field schedule is as follows:

April 4—Presbyterian College, in Clinton, S. C.

April 12—Athens in Auburn.

April 25—Florida in Athens.

May 2—Georgia Tech in Athens.

May 18—Southeastern conference meeting in Birmingham.

The Georgia freshman basketball team opened its 1936 schedule here last night by trouncing Hartwell High school, 18-11.

Sossong Tops List Of Duckpin Stars

A. J. Sossong holds his position at the top of the list of averages for the 10 leading Atlanta duckpin smashers as another week passes with high sets turned in by some of the bowlers. Sossong has an average of 120.11 in 1937, a season in which he topped 15,000 pins.

L. M. Tappan is in second place with 119.36 for 84 games. Next in order are G. B. French, C. W. Tidwell and George Tyler among the coveted "first five" positions.

found that range to his advantage and dropped in three two-pointers. Plasman, center, with 14, and Coleman, forward, with 12 points, were the offensive stalwarts for the winners.

For New Holland, Chapman and Jarrard were outstanding, collecting 12 and 15 points, respectively. For Young Harris, Jones and Hurst were the shining lights with 11 and 9 points. Padgett and Mine played a splendid floor game for the losers. The passing of Bob Strickland and Mattox was well above the average for the New Holland outfit.

YOUNG HARRIS BEATEN BY NEW HOLLAND

Southern Amateur Field Trials To Open Monday at Albany

ALL-AGE BRACE OPENS PROGRAM AT GRAVEL HILL

Bobby Jones, George Myshrahl, Bob Woodruff To Enter Dogs.

By Ralph McGill.

Bobby Jones, who turned from birdies to bird dogs upon retirement from golf with all the titles the game offered, will have his first field trial (trial) this week as the annual southern amateur trials open at Albany, Georgia.

Richard Tift, president of the field trial club, will handle Bobby Jones' entry, one Sport, a setter, entered in the derby race. Jones will be unable to be present.

Dr. George Myshrahl, Atlanta's veteran field trial man, will make his annual challenge with Jasper Prince, a splendid pointer, which won the derby last winter. Dr. Myshrahl was one of the founders of the trials at Albany and his support has been a blessing. He arrives annually with "the winner" and if it isn't the winner he promises to be back next year with the winner.

WOODRUFF ENTRY.

Bob Woodruff, who had one of the winners last year, will enter a dog in the derby this year. It is said to be a very promising setter. It will be handled by Truman Scott.

In addition to these Atlanta entries, there will be dogs from Monticello, Macon, Zebulon and many other Georgia cities, as well as dogs from Florida and Alabama.

M. C. McKianey, of Orlando, whose pointers have placed at Albany, will be present with some dogs and also with some fellow townsmen and their entries.

At least two other Florida cities and three from Alabama are expected to be entered. The entry list does not close until tonight and many owners will wait until their arrival this afternoon and night before entering their dogs. The drawing will be made late tonight.

ALL-AGE FIRST.

The all-age is to be run first, with the initial race to be put down shortly after dawn Monday morning. An entry list of about 60 dogs is expected by tonight.

Unless weather prevents the trials will be run over the Gravel Hill plantation, about 12 miles from Albany. The southern amateur trials began four years ago with a small entry list which was completed, puppy stakes, all-age and derby, in one day.

The trial is growing each year and is now one of the most successful amateur trials being held.

THREE EVENTS.

Three events are scheduled, starting Monday with the important all-age competition. The derby and puppy stakes follow.

Winner of the all-age event will receive one leg on the Pineland Plantation trophy, given at the first trial in 1932 by A. W. Gingham, United States ambassador to England.

W. C. Potter, of Albany, won the trophy last year for the second time. Three winnings give the owner permanent possession of the cup.

Richard Tift, president of the Southern Amateur Club, said today one of the largest registrations in the history of trials was expected.

Judges for the events announced by Secretary Joe Rosenberg were Captain Ambrose Gaines, Knoxville, Tenn., and G. W. Wall, Jacksonville, Fla.

Thirty-minute heats are set for the all-age event, with 20 minutes for derby and puppy stake heats.

Georgia ranks 28th on Nation's Gridiron.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 18.—(AP)—University of Georgia football coaches and alumni read published finals of team standings for 1937 and thumped their chests. The Bulldogs stood 28th in the list of 500.

Prestige in the national gridiron ratings suffered little though Georgia lost four of ten games last fall.

The Bulldogs gave for a number of years held their grip on a place within the top 5 per cent—a position comparable to the dean's list in scholastic standings.

The team's command of the high ranking was believed due to playing of a stiff schedule.

Games lost by the Bulldogs last season included those to Alabama, Louisiana State and Auburn, all now ranked ahead of Georgia's team.

Mack, Athletic Boss, On Florida Vacation.

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Connie Mack, pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics, is here today for five weeks' vacation.

The older manager of the major leagues is to be joined next week by Tom Shibe, of Philadelphia, owner of the club. The Athletics will open winter training quarters in Fort Myers late in February, remaining into March.

Clark Griffith, of Washington, owner of the American League Senators, is due here tomorrow to open training quarters for his team. Alvin (Jake) Powell, Washington outfielder, has already arrived.

Savannah Is Host To Motorcycle Races.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Tomorrow and Monday, the city of Savannah will be host to the members of the American Motorcycle Association, who will hold their annual motorcycle road race.

This event is held annually during the winter and through the efforts of the Savannah springing activities committee, the event was brought to this city.

Georgia's Great Welterweight Boxer Is an Olympic Prospect

Georgia hopes to have a hurdler and a boxer on the American Olympic team next summer and offers Mickey Radutzky, above, as the leading boxing candidate. Radutzky is a welter and hails from New York city.

He has never boxed except in college and has never lost a match. He was held to a draw Friday night but has no reverses. He is shown at left in fighting pose, and at the right are, left to right, Clarence E. Jones, boxing coach; Lee Price, manager of the boxing team, and Radutzky. Col. Matt Winn Sees All Kentucky Derbies

Famous Track Lover Says Twenty Grand, Exterminator, Greatest Race Horses.

By George Kirksey.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(UP)—Wherever Colonel Matt Winn happens to be it's always Derby day. The jovial, ruddy-faced Kentucky colonel was in New York spinning tales of America's most glamorous horse race—tales that made your heart thrill again to stirring drama of the turf over a span of 61 years.

Colonel Winn is the only living man who has seen every Kentucky Derby. As a boy of 13 in knee pants, he peered over the inside rail at Churchill Downs and watched Aristides, the little red horse, race down the stretch to capture the first Derby in 1875. And from that day until this he has watched the cavalcade of horse flesh parade to the post every May Day, and his memory ever remains fresh with the stirring turf duels he has seen at the rambling old Louisville track.

In 1902 Colonel Winn took over the Churchill Downs track and built the Kentucky Derby from an insignificant $5,000 race into America's most picturesque sporting event. Every year since then he has been planning and building to make the Kentucky Derby bigger and better. Improvements in the stands costing $100,000 are now under way. The rambling old grandstand with the church spire on top of it will always remain as it is because Colonel Winn thinks that structure is part of the Derby itself.

Among the new improvements will be a cocktail lounge behind the clubhouse which will be divided into eight rooms, commemorating the winners of the last eight Derbies. Each room will be decorated with the colors of the owners of the winners, and bronze statues of the winning horses.

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Air Pilot Sam, L. D. Johnson's All-American champion, added the $750 first-place money of the Continental Club field trials' all-age stake today to his Evansville (Ind.) owner's string of trophies.

Handled by Ed McFarlin, Air Pilot Sam outdistanced and outclassed the field of 23 dogs in the all-age event.

Pointers routed the setter entries in the 41st annual running of the famous trials here this week, winning all places in both the Derby and all-age stakes.

Second-place money went to Air Circus. The purse was $300. The dog is owned by Miss Claudia Phelps, Allen, S. C., and New York, and Charles Prickett, the handler.

Mandaispoer, owned by Dr. J. L. Rubie, of Orlando, Fla., and handled by Frank Cummings, ran third for $200.

Three Share Honors In East Lake Bogey.

Wimberly Peters, J. W. Welch and J. J. Loneragan finished first Saturday afternoon in the regular weekly blind bogey on the two East Lake courses. The winning score was 55.

Second place went to W. L. Markert with R. S. Mather, J. W. Lundeen and J. A. Whitley in third place.

Other low scorers included J. H. Starr, L. P. Barton, E. J. Kirkpatrick, J. H. Layman, E. S. Humphries, Jackson Robertson, J. A. Vaughan and L. F. McCrary.

Another of the regular Sunday afternoon dog fights will be played this afternoon on the No. 2 East Lake course.

The entries must be in the golf shop by noon as play will start at 1 o'clock.

TIGER PRACTICE BEGINS JAN. 27

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 18.—What changes Coach Jack Meagher will make in Alabama's style of play on the gridiron next season will not be known definitely until the Tiger coaches have tried several experiments in spring training, which starts for all freshmen on January 27. The frosh will be drilled at a fast pace for six weeks and the varsity left-overs, who will report on February 3, will not be used but five weeks of conditioning work this spring.

Auburn's 1938 grid eleven now faces a 10-game schedule that will call for them to appear in Detroit on October 17 and in San Francisco two weeks later, but Coach Meagher's third grid edition at the Plains will be made up mostly of experienced performers and these veterans will not be overdrilled in spring training. Coach Meagher will train his seasoned players this spring with the idea of having them ready to return to school next September eager and ready to tackle the most ambitious football schedule ever outlined for the Tigers.

Switches are likely to be made in the ranks of the graduating players, who were undefeated in 1935, but the returning varsity squad members probably will continue to strive for priority at their present positions. The layout for spring training also lists new offensive and defensive set-up, but none of these will be incorporated until tested thoroughly.

Losses from last season include only three lettersmen, Captain Milard Mather, All-Southern tackle, and Bunkie O'Rourke, fullback, and the foremost job confronting the Bengal mentors next fall will be to keep an eleven composed mostly of seniors stepping at a lively pace from September 25 through November 28 or December 5. Candidates for the three vacancies left by Mather, Peterson and O'Rourke include several likely looking rodents, all of whom are willing and determined.

Freshmen classed as likely prospects include Malvern Morgan, center; Winston Combes, Soapy Crowder, Everett Smith, Buddy Hill and Grady Markert, guards; Garth Thorpe, Bill Burford, Dean Hallmark, Milton Howell and Holt Hudson, ends; Ted Ferreira, Morris Cook and Lloyd Foster, quarterbacks; Bill Mims, Speck Kelly, Francis Riddle, Happy Bridges, Kenneth Weaver, Marion Walker, Tommie Edwards and Lamar Hart, halfbacks, and Pelham Sitz, Charles Fontaine and George Gerakitis, fullbacks. In the group are some who should develop into crack gridlers before graduating.

Palmer Stone Wins In Double-Header.

COVINGTON, Ga., Jan. 18.—Palmer Stone won both games of a basketball double-header on the Livingston court. Frances Smith's accurate goal shooting and the fine defense work of Ruby Brooks enabled Palmer Stone to win. Cowan and Turner played best for Livingston.

The Wildcats of Palmer Stone swamped the Livingston five by a score of 50-26. Howard Cook and Ed Stone played best for the winner, while Holderfield performed best for Livingston.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18.—(AP)—"I mean, are they strong?" demanded Mr. Gould. "Because you will have considerable roadwork to do, if you trail along with us. This is pool night on Jimmy's calendar."

Mr. Gould explained what pool night was—the champ was making personal appearances at three separate billiard halls.

"But before that," said his manager, "we will have to talk over this shilling rag. Yeah, Jimmy is making a personal appearance next week on skis. I will have to talk business about the date."

Vile Mr. Gould was talking business, your correspondent asked Braddock where he got that scar on his chin. It didn't come from Bear, did it?

"Hell, no," said Mr. Braddock indignantly. "I got that the other day when I fell off a bicycle. I was making a personal appearance on a bicycle."

"And next week," said Mr. Gould, rejoining the party, "we will make a personal appearance on skates. Yeah, fancy skating. Only first I want Dempsey to try it. If he gets killed, we will probably cancel the date."

Braddock Works Hard, Appearing in Person Heavyweight Champ Classed As Busiest Titleholder of Recent Times.

Copyright 1938, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—You people may have stripped James J. Braddock of his heavyweight title long before now and awarded the thing, mentally, to young Joe Louis. That's fair enough, because Louis is the better fighting machine of the two.

But James J. Braddock is still champion by all the rules and code-books—more than that, he's the busiest champion in the recent history of the cauliflower racket. It's not hard to explain why. James will do or commit anything in the world for money, barring a few of the more unwholesome crimes.

Naturally, he wants to salt away as much sugar as possible between now and September. Looming ahead of him is the rap he has to beat—cauliflower extra, hungry kids, an old age spent on the relief rolls, a life of nickel-pinching toil on those docks from which he was graduated only last year. You can't blame Jimmy for clinging like a blooded barnacle to every buck he can make as champion.

But sometimes I wish he wouldn't work quite so hard at the job—at least, not while your correspondent is tagging around with him.

LOOKING INTO SITUATION. Your correspondent investigated the Braddock situation a couple of days ago. The first step on the program was a conference with the champ's manager, Joe Gould.

"Are you guys in for a busy day?" inquired your correspondent. "A busy day," barked Mr. Gould. "A busy day, you ask me! Well, let me ask a question of you. How are your legs?"

Your correspondent admitted coyly that his legs were as handsome and popular as ever—the talk of the neighborhood, in fact.

Mr. Gould explained what pool night was—the champ was making personal appearances at three separate billiard halls.

"But before that," said his manager, "we will have to talk over this shilling rag. Yeah, Jimmy is making a personal appearance next week on skis. I will have to talk business about the date."

Vile Mr. Gould was talking business, your correspondent asked Braddock where he got that scar on his chin. It didn't come from Bear, did it?

"Hell, no," said Mr. Braddock indignantly. "I got that the other day when I fell off a bicycle. I was making a personal appearance on a bicycle."

"And next week," said Mr. Gould, rejoining the party, "we will make a personal appearance on skates. Yeah, fancy skating. Only first I want Dempsey to try it. If he gets killed, we will probably cancel the date."

THE RETURN OF THE TROJANS. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 18.—The Trojans are on their way back. If you don't happen to know who the Trojans are, their other name is Southern California and their directing leader is Howard Harding Jones. For the better part of eight years the Trojans were around the front rank of football. They had great teams. And then, with the Wolverines of Michigan, another headliner, the two buckled up together. The material wasn't there at either place. But it will be different at Michigan.

Next fall Southern California expects to be in the middle of a hot fight for the west coast championship, with California, Washington and U. C. L. A. among the favored starters who have the material on hand. Stanford, after a three-year reign, loses more stars than any other leading team, including several All-Americans and near All-Americans.

"I've been around football too long to make any predictions," Howard Jones said during a round of golf. "We've had two tough years, but I believe now we are on our way out. More than a few players began to find themselves as the last season closed, giving us a far better nucleus than we've had in some time. In addition to that we had the best freshman team in a long time."

Three of these freshmen entries are from Oklahoma and the list includes a flyer named Matthews, who can run the 100 in 8.7 and in addition is a hard, rugged type that can go the route. "He is one of the fastest men in a football suit I've ever seen," Jones says.

There are also three big linemen from the freshman squad first. Howard said. "We'll have about 30 or 35 of these and I want to see just what I have before the others report. Unless I'm much mistaken, things will be entirely different next fall."

The coast league battle next fall will be terrific. In addition to a fast, big Trojan team, California and Washington both return strong squads and Bill Spaulding will have plenty at U. C. L. A.

Jones expects to develop a combination of running power and open play—a combination of ball carrying, hard blocking and forward passing. He has three or four good passers ready and all the receivers he needs. The old Yale star proved in the past that with his share of material his teams were among the best offensive organizations in the country, barring nobody at all.

THE 1938 Outlook. What about 1938 all around? Among the things that will be hit the hardest by graduation you can include Stanford, Southern Methodist, Notre Dame and Princeton. From this list Princeton still retains her share of talent, headed by Halfback White and the giant Charley Tolt, a tackle you will remember. Princeton will do all right again. You can also keep an eye on Minnesota, a team that was coming in full speed when the season closed. Bernie Bierman will have one of his best squads ready for the next start.

There should be little mourning around Pittsburgh. Jack Sutherland is set for another big, fast team, barricaded by one of the strongest lines in football. Even the careful Jack admits things to be much worse.

Texas Christian should lead the drive of the southwest. This T. C. U. delegation was one of the stronger teams in 1937. It will have Sammy Baugh, the sniper, back and most of the old cast. Biff Jones will have a hardy outfit at Oklahoma, well above last year, as both Nebraska and Mississippi State will be moving up. L. S. U. has her share left and Ray Morrison is looking for a better year at Vanderbilt.

Jimmy Crowley, of Fordham, tells me his 1938 team will be ready for all comers, including St. Mary's, Georgia and other intersectional rivals.

The mid-west will be strong all the way through. Michigan undoubtedly will be on her way back. Francis Schmidt loses a big group at Ohio State, but running four deep last fall he has quite enough left to make trouble from start to finish. "We'll be better at Indiana—much better," Bo McMillin says. And the same is true at Purdue where a group of seasoned sophomores will be more dependable after a year's experience under fire.

AMERICA SPEAKS THE NATIONAL WEEKLY POLL of PUBLIC OPINION

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 19, 1936.

Roosevelt Regains December Loss in National Poll; Now 53%

4 States Leave F. D. R. Despite Gain Elsewhere

Michigan and Colorado Join New York On Fence; Illinois Stays Republican.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
American Institute of Public Opinion

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Four new facts about Franklin D. Roosevelt's political position today are revealed in the January poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion, which has tested the President's standing with the voters every month for nearly two years. The four facts are:

FIRST. In this month's poll the President regained the slight loss in popular support which he was shown to have suffered in the December poll. He would now receive 53 per cent of the vote of the two major parties if an election were held today, the January poll shows. Last month his majority was 52.6 per cent.

President Roosevelt.

SECOND. Four states with a total electoral vote of 401 have dropped out of the democratic column in the two-month period since last November, when one of the 23 previous polls on the President's standing was taken by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The four states are: Illinois, Michigan, New York, and Colorado.

This leaves the democrats leading in 31 states today, against 35 last November.

THIRD. But the republicans have not won all the four states that dropped out of the democratic camp. Reason: Three of them—Michigan, New York and Colorado, with a combined electoral vote of 72—now squat on the fence, voting 50 per cent republican, 50 per cent democratic. Last month New York was the only state on the fence. Michigan and Colorado are newcomers.

The fourth state which slipped through Jim Farley's fingers—Illinois—joined the republican camp last month, as was reported in these columns. This month it is still there.

FOURTH. The fact that the President's total popular majority rose from 52.6 per cent to 53 per cent while a number of states were dropping out of the democratic column appears paradoxical but is easily explained.

The President's gains during the month were made principally in states where he did not need greater popular support, particularly in the south. His majority in Georgia, for instance, has increased two points since December, possibly as a result of the Atlanta speech.

Were tomorrow the fateful third of November, President Roosevelt would be re-elected without serious difficulty if he carried the 31 states now democratic. This would give him 278 electoral votes or 12 more than the number necessary for re-election.

However, five of the 31 states—Minnesota, Kansas, Wyoming, Wisconsin and South Dakota—are so-called "borderline" democratic states where the President's majority hovers between 51 per cent and 53 per cent. A change of three points in those states would shove all but one out of the democratic column and drastically alter the fortunes of the democratic party.

In obtaining the above information the American Institute of Public Opinion sent out 203,856 ballots, by mail and by personal interviewers, to a cross-section of the entire voting population of the country. They were asked: "For whom would you vote today—Roosevelt, republican, socialist, third party?"

If all the 40,000,000 persons who normally vote in a presidential election were polled, the results would likely differ by less than two-tenths of 1 per cent. This figure is called by statisticians the percentage of probable error. It is calculated according to a mathematical formula used in statistical processes involving a cross-section.

Westward Tide of Republicanism.

The tide of republicanism, welling up in New England and the North Atlantic states, is moving westward north of the Ohio river, although at present it has not progressed far enough to cause the democrats deep anxiety.

In the poll last November the tide had reached Ohio and Indiana, which are now "borderline" republican states. Then in the following month—December—Illinois was swirled into the tide, which continued to eddy westward.

This month it moved with gathering momentum into Michigan and Wisconsin. Michigan, which had been democratic by a small margin, dropped down to the 50-50 line. Wisconsin, which had been definitely democratic (more than 53 per cent for Roosevelt), became "borderline" democratic (between 51 per cent and 53 per cent for Roosevelt).

Now the G. O. P. tide has run up against an obstacle in its path—the rock of Iowa, which remains definitely democratic in this poll, probably because of its loyalty to the lately demolished AAA. So like a stream of water when it meets an obstruction, the tide is eddying around Iowa and is headed northwest through Wisconsin into Minnesota and the Dakotas.

What signs confirm this latest direction of the tide?

The principal sign is this: In Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota the defection from Roosevelt is greater today, when compared to the 1932 election, than in any other contiguous group of states in the Union.

PERCENTAGE DEMOCRATIC

State	January Poll	1932 Election	Points Change
Wisconsin	52%	67%	-15
Minnesota	51	62	-11
South Dakota	53	65	-12
North Dakota	56	71	-15

To be sure, not all of this defection has been absorbed by the republican party; some went to the third party movement which is relatively stronger in this area than elsewhere. But an increase in republican strength accounts for a large proportion of the defection.

Map Shows How the States Vote This Month

The tide of republicanism is moving slowly westward north of the Ohio river, although it has a long way to go before it will seriously threaten the democrats. Sorest spots for the democrats today are Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, which would drop into the republican column by a shift of from one to three points in Roosevelt's majority. The above map describes the political situation only as of today, and much can happen to change it between now and November.

Democrats Lead in Thirty-One States Today

Maine is the most republican state in the Union today, and Mississippi the most democratic. Thirteen states would go as Maine goes if tomorrow were election day, and 30 would go as Mississippi goes. Score: Republicans 14; Democrats 31.

This accounts for 45 states. The remaining three, New York, Michigan and Colorado, unable to decide whether to ride the donkey or the elephant, sit on the fence and watch. Their voters are 50 per cent republican, 50 per cent democratic in this month's poll.

State Elections Indicate Accuracy of Weekly Poll

Results of the National Weekly Poll of Public Opinion have now been published each week for approximately three months, and counting a previous experimental period of 20 months, a total of 68 polls have been taken. Some indication of the accuracy of these polls may be seen from the following:

New York. In the New York state assembly elections last November, the democrats polled 55 per cent of the popular vote. This month President Roosevelt's New York majority in the weekly poll is 50 per cent.

Pennsylvania. In the only state-wide election in Pennsylvania last November, Robert L. Myers campaigned for judge of the superior court on a platform of currying the Roosevelt New Deal into the higher courts. He received 46 per cent of the total vote. This month Roosevelt's Pennsylvania vote in the weekly poll is 45 per cent of the total.

Kentucky. Kentucky voted 91 per cent in favor of government old-age pensions in a state-wide referendum last November. A fortnight ago in the weekly poll the south voted 88 per cent in favor of government pensions, the country as a whole, 80 per cent.

Voters Listed in 'Who's Who In America' Against F. D. R.

For Roosevelt P. Cent. 31
For Republican P. Cent. 69

Curiously, the voters in these two groups—one consisting of men and women whose names are continually before the public, the other comprising the all but forgotten men—show nearly the same defection from Roosevelt when their vote today is compared with what it was in 1932.

For Roosevelt P. Cent. 31
For Republican P. Cent. 69

Comparison of the figures in the two tables shows that Roosevelt since 1932 has dropped 5 points with persons listed in "Who's Who in America," 6 points with persons at the relief level.

The vote of "Who's Who" was obtained in a special supplementary poll conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Results Indicate Line Of Strategy in Congress

Because Democrats Suffer From Long Session, G.O.P. May Delay Adjournment.

DURING the last two years President Roosevelt's popularity declined while congress was in session, increased after congress went home. This phenomenon, first brought to light by the National Weekly Poll during the course of its 24 monthly tests of the President's popular strength, may be observed in the following facts:

The President's majority in the Weekly Poll fell from 69 per cent to 67 per cent during the congressional session of 1934, but turned upward rapidly after congress adjourned in June of that year.

Similarly, in 1935 the President lost 6 points during the congressional session of January to August, but immediately gained ground after the national legislators went home.

Now that congress is sitting once more it would appear to be the strategy of the democrats to bring about a short, peaceful session and the strategy of the republicans to work for a long session.

When congress is framing legislation the President and his democratic teammates are, in a sense, "carrying the ball," while the republicans have only to wait for fumbles and take advantage of the "breaks."

YOUNG VOTERS.

"The destiny of youth becomes the destiny of America," said President Roosevelt in his Jackson Day speech. "It is the sacred duty of us who are vested with the responsibility of leadership to justify the expectations of the young men and women of America."

This appeal to youth is of particular political interest because, next to persons on relief, young voters are the most solidly democratic group in the nation today. They vote 65 per cent for Roosevelt in the poll this month.

Reliefers continue to give their support to the President this month, voting 77 per cent in his favor. Last month the vote was also 77 per cent. From this it would seem important for the democrats to get the voters in the lower income groups to the polls on election day, rain or shine.

HORSE RACE.

Since the National Weekly Poll first brought out the fact some weeks ago, it has become a political axiom that the President is more popular than his policies. One proof of this was found by the American Institute

F. D. R. 'Best Man In Sight'—Voters

In explaining why they are for or against President Roosevelt, voters in this month's poll generally put forward the following reasons which are typical of thousands of comments tabulated:

FOR ROOSEVELT
1. "He has helped the common man—the first President in recent years to do so."
2. "He may have made mistakes, but he has done his best."
3. "He is the best man in sight for the job of bringing us back to prosperity."

AGAINST ROOSEVELT
1. "I'm against the New Deal."
2. "The democrats are spending too much money and putting us too deeply in debt."
3. "Roosevelt is bad for business."

Below is a table comparing the democratic vote in this month's poll with the vote in the 1932 elections, by sections:

Section	Per cent Democratic Jan. 1936	Per cent Democratic Nov. 1932	Points Change
New England	45%	51%	-6
Middle Atlantic	48	53	-5
East Central	48	53	-5
West Central	50	56	-6
South	70	76	-6
Mountain	56	60	-4
Pacific	57	61	-4

Note that although the defection was greatest in the west central section (Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas) this area as a whole still votes for Roosevelt by a comfortable margin (54 per cent).

Next Week—

If, on some dark and lonely night, the city of Columbus, Ga., were surrounded by a murderous band of ruffians and every one of its 43,000-odd inhabitants killed, a furious public would demand immediate redress for such frightful carnage.

During the year 1935, 36,400 persons—a few thousand less than the population of Columbus—were killed in automobile accidents in the United States. Another 864,000—a little more than the population of St. Louis—were injured.

How far is the public, which would be shocked at the sudden annihilation by Death of a whole city, willing to go in preventing Death from stalking the highways every day?

Does the public favor putting "governors" in all cars to prevent speeds greater than 30 miles an hour?

Would it approve painting stripes signs on cars whose drivers have been at fault in accidents?

The National Weekly Poll of Public Opinion has put these and other questions to the people of the nation in a poll on measures for preventing automobile accidents.

The results will be published next Sunday in The Constitution.

FLORIDAN IS KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 18.—(P)—Thomas Judge Smith, 76, of Lake Worth, was killed at Lakeland, south of here, today when his automobile and another car collided.

Mrs. John H. Swisher, wife of a Jacksonville cigar company executive, and her sister, Miss Nellie Shrock, were injured when thrown from the rear seat of the second automobile which was driven by a negro chauffeur. Mrs. Swisher was brought to a hospital here for treatment of cuts and bruises. Her sister was not badly hurt.

Justice of the Peace T. M. Richards said no inquest would be held.

PROMINENT ATLANTANS AND VISITORS CENTER INTEREST OF SOCIETY

Miss Mary Wellborn is betrothed to Linton C. Hopkins Jr., the date of the marriage to be announced later. Photo by Walter Neblett.

Miss Wellborn Is Betrothed To Mr. Hopkins

Important social interest, due to the prominence of the families, is centered today in the announcement made by Maximilian Bethune Wellborn of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Mary Graves Wellborn, to Linton Cooke Hopkins Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Linton Cooke Hopkins. No date has been set for the marriage.

Both Miss Wellborn and Mr. Hopkins are representatives of distinguished southern ancestry whose families have been leaders in financial, political, legal and social annals of their respective states. The bride-elect is a daughter of Mr. Wellborn and her mother, the late Mrs. Wellborn, was before her marriage Miss Mary Graves, the daughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. Charles Iverson Graves, prominent residents of Rome, Ga. The late Mr. and Mrs. Maximilian Bethune Wellborn, well-known citizens of Eufaula, Ala., are the bride-elect's paternal grandparents.

Mr. Wellborn, father of the bride-elect, is an outstanding figure in banking circles, being the former governor of the Federal Reserve Bank and former president of the First National Bank of Anniston, Ala. He is now a member of the Alabama senate. Miss Wellborn is a sister of Mrs. James Fouché Matthews, of Anniston, Ala.; John D. Wellborn, of New York; and Walter H. Wellborn and William B. Wellborn, of Atlanta. She was graduated from Washington Seminary here and Ogontz at Rydal, Pa., and was a member of the Phi Pi Club at the seminary.

She has been numbered among the most popular members of society since her earliest school days and has been an acknowledged belle. She made her formal debut to society at an elaborate dinner-dance given by her father at the Piedmont Driving Club. She is a member of the Atlanta Junior League and the Girls' Cotillion Club. She possesses a sweetness and charm of manner which have won for her countless friends.

Mr. Hopkins, the groom-elect, is the son of Linton Cooke Hopkins, prominent Atlanta attorney, and Mrs. Hopkins. The latter was before her marriage Miss Nina Ellet Cabell, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cabell, prominent residents of Virginia. The late Judge and Mrs. John L. Hopkins, well-known pioneer Atlantans, are the paternal grandparents of the groom-elect.

The groom-elect attended Oglethorpe University, where he was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity, and later attended Princeton University, where he was a member of the Tiger Inn Club. Since leaving college he has been connected with the Atlanta Journal, being state news editor. He is a brother of Mrs. Prescott Bigelow, of Boston, Mass.; John L. Hopkins, of New York; and Cabell Hopkins, of Atlanta. He is a member of the Piedmont Driving Club and the Nine O'Clocks, and, like his bride-to-be, is numbered among prominent and popular members of younger social circles.

Hopper-Dawson.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 18.—The marriage of Miss Muriel Hopper and Clifford Rutherford Dawson II, former Augustan, was solemnized Saturday evening, December 28, in Palo

Alto, Cal., the home of the bride. Rev. George H. Whisler, the officiant. The only attendant was Mrs. Spencer Davis, sister of the bride and Joseph Hopper, who served as best man. The young couple left for a trip to Yosemite National park and will make their home in San Jose, where the groom is in business. Mrs. Dawson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max D. Hopper. She attended Stanford, the alma mater of her parents, but relinquished her course to devote her time to music. Mr. Dawson is the son of Mrs. Emiline Sibley Dawson and the late William R. Dawson Sr., of Augusta. He is the maternal grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael Sibley and the late Amory Sibley and is the paternal grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Job Dawson.

P. T. A. NEWS

Parent-Teacher Associations
Plan Activities for February

Mrs. Ed Greene presided at the meeting of the Spring Street P. T. A. on Tuesday evening. Mrs. J. N. Keeler, Mrs. Lowman, member of the board of education from the eighth ward, made a talk in appreciation of work done by the P. T. A. Mrs. Spearman, safety chairman, reported that the school had been promised a traffic light at Spring and Eighteenth streets, in addition to an officer stationed there at the opening and closing hours of school; also that the curb on Eighteenth street at West Peachtree street will be marked "no parking" in order to facilitate safe driving.

A meeting of the parent study group was held on Thursday. Mrs. Sidney Daniels talked on "Cultivating Thrift Habits in Your Child." A paper sale will be held at the school on February 12. Miss Dunwoody announced that a new piano teacher had been secured for the school.

Mrs. Beiling Sasse, citizenship chairman, introduced Mrs. Leonard Haas, president of the League of Women Voters, who gave a talk, bringing out the various services rendered as citizens by the city, county, state and federal governments, and our responsibility toward those governments. Mrs. Haas gave the dates of the different elections to be held this year and urged the women to register in advance on questions before the public, and vote.

Boys' High Meets.
O. B. Keeler, in his talk to the mothers of the Boys' High P. T. A., recalled that in his own life 10 years were lost in stumbling around trying to find what he was best fitted for in life that might have been saved had the schools of his day had extra-curricular activities. He said that through the Alcegonium, the Tattler, the dramatic club, athletics and other activities a boy may learn what he is best fitted for, to play the game under existing rules, to take defeat with philosophy, victory with moderation and above all keep on trying.

Introduced by Mrs. J. C. Malone, program chairman; Frances Jones and David Read, co-editors of the Alcegonium, reported that while the Alcegonium had been reduced 28 percent in price the material would be greatly improved in pictures and quality. James Knight, editor of the Tattler, spoke for the news organ while Carroll McCaughey, president of the Boys' High Dramatic Club, announced that the play "Guess Again" will be presented at the Woman's Club auditorium the week of February 6.

Mrs. R. K. Babington, president, announced that Mrs. R. A. Long, state study group chairman for the Georgia congress, had consented to take charge of the study group at Boys' High. Mrs. P. G. Hannahan submitted the proposed changes in the by-laws. R. P. Farmer, faculty advisor for the Alcegonium and the Tattler, and Milton Davis, faculty advisor for the dramatic club, were commended by the organization for their untiring efforts for the boys.

Murphy Junior High.
Mrs. C. D. Vinson, president, presided at the P. T. A. meeting, held at Murphy Junior High school Wednesday. She announced the purchase of a silver gavel and it was voted to present the old one to the Whiteford pre-school president. Mrs. Sam Smith gave a report from the council meeting. Mrs. H. W. Morrow made a report of the fifth annual grade demonstration for teachers on west side of town, January 20. Open house day for parents and friends, January 22. Promotion exercises, January 31 at 11 o'clock.

The executive board report was read by the secretary, Mrs. O'Brien. Mrs. Robert Elliott gave the fifth district report. An interesting talk on safety was given by Mrs. Schlyder, safety chairman. She stressed safety in local schools. Mrs. R. A. Long gave a talk on parent education.

The count of the mothers gave the prize to Mrs. Emily Purcell for the upper grades, and to Miss Harriet Berry for the lower grades.

Stanton P. T. A.
Stanton P. T. A. met in the school auditorium with Mrs. G. R. Tanner, president, presiding. Robert W. Burns, of the Peachtree Christian church, spoke on school, church and home. The committee on the direction of the stage curtains. Mrs. J. A. Cole made the fifth district report and council report was made by Mrs. J. O. Robertson. Music was furnished by Mrs. J. W. Burgett.

Jerome Jones P. T. A.
Jerome Jones P. T. A. meets Tuesday at the school with Mrs. J. K. Wilson, president, presiding. The subject for the month, "Character Education," was discussed by Mrs. Harry Alexander, who gave an interesting talk. A program, under direction of Mrs. Dollie D. Johnson, teacher, was given by the second grade, consisting of songs, readings and dances, featuring the theme of character education. Miss Margaret Kendrick, principal, announced that a luncheon will be given by the Parent-Teacher Association in honor of the graduating class and their mothers on January 28, at 12:30 o'clock, the affair taking the place of the formal graduation exercises. Announcement was made of the kindergarten registration day to be held January 27. On January 28 a puppet show will be sponsored by the school. Admission 10 cents. The new first-grade teacher, Miss Josephine Proctor, was introduced and welcomed to the school. Mrs. M. P. Estes announced a class in parent education to be held at the school beginning Monday, January 26, at 9 o'clock. Splendid report on the summer round-up health committee was given by Mrs. E. C. Dempsey. The school is 100 per cent in perfect teeth having attained this goal before the holidays. The count of mothers gave the attendance prize to the second grade.

Russell High.
Russell High P. T. A. was entertained Tuesday with a play presented by the school dramatic club. "Sue" was the name of the comedy, directed by Miss Atkinson. The characters were Anne Marie Harger, Charles Hattarree, Bernera Rush, Elam Gilson, Joe Smith, Joe Liggett, Jimmie Lou Davis and Margaret Gilmer. Several musical numbers were rendered by the school orchestra. The attendance prize was won by Miss Colquitt. Mrs. John Whaley, vice president, presided. William A. Bass P. T. A. Parents of William A. Bass Junior High school were given opportunity of seeing first-hand the work of their children in the manual arts at the P. T. A. meeting held last Wednesday. Visits were made to the sewing department, where Mesdames Erle Anderson and S. M. Oliver made brief talks; to the electric shop, where T. C. Sweet explained what is taught in electricity; to the cooking department, where Miss Ruth Merrick demonstrated her work; and to the metal shops, where W. C. Bell outlined that course.

Miss Jessie Lowe spoke to ninth grade parents on the importance and work of the student council. A cooking school will be held in the school auditorium on February 18 and 19. The attendance prizes were won by the Misses Francis Stewart, Flora Goss and Mary T. Fletcher, of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, respectively.

James L. Key P. T. A.
James L. Key school P. T. A. met Tuesday. W. A. Dobson, Boy Scout leader, spoke on recreation. Plans were completed for the annual bridge party to be held February 23 at Rich's tea room. A parent education class will be held at the school January 22, with Dr. McCain as speaker.

Decatur Girls' High.
Professor Lamar Ferguson, superintendent of Decatur City schools, spoke at a meeting of Girls' High P. T. A. Wednesday in Decatur on "The Relation of the School to the Development of the Student." He stressed the need of more practical education, thereby better equipping the student to meet the needs of life. Mr. Griffith played a mandolin solo, accompanied by Miss Pauline Henkel at the piano. A group of boys including Armand Hendee, Ed Sutton, Bernard Ford, Charles Marmelstein and Junior Moore, played on their mandolins and guitars. Miss Pauline Henkel, member of the first graduating class of the school, and author of the school alma mater, played an accordion solo.

Mrs. Vernon Frank announced that the school will sponsor an amateur night show on January 31 at the Girls' High school. Each school in Decatur will have several representatives on the program, and prizes will be given for the best performance by a school and also for the best individual performance, the audience to vote by ballot.

Mrs. R. H. O'Brien, yard chairman, reported on the school grounds. Anyone desiring to give these may phone her or bring them to her. A program of a constructive health program each mother was asked to sign a blank stating when she had had a physical examination by a physician, and whether she had good health. Parents were urged to co-operate in this movement.

A gym class has been organized, under direction of Mrs. Jake C. Harris, for mothers and for daughters who have finished school, which meets each Monday evening between 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock in the Boys' High gym. All mothers who are interested are urged to attend these classes.

East Lake Meets.
Mrs. Z. V. Peterson spoke to East Lake P. T. A. at the meeting Tuesday at the school on "Safety." Mrs. Peterson urged that in teaching safety, the natural urge for excitement and adventure be directed rather than suppressed.

Five little girls rendered piano numbers under direction of the music chairman, Mrs. Sam Cole. Attendance prize was won by the kindergarten, Miss Mary McCord, teacher. A cooking school, conducted by Mrs. Lewis, will be held in the school auditorium on February 4 and 5. Admission 15 cents daily.

Fulton High.
Fulton High P. T. A. met in the school auditorium Thursday with Mrs. W. M. Suttles presiding. The school's moving picture machine furnished the entertainment feature, giving an educational picture and songs, which were sung by the audience.

Encouraging reports were given by each committee, including a profit of $800 made at the carnival. This amount will be spent with other funds raised by P. T. A. on the various departments of the school. About $500 is being spent on the library and office equipment. An addition of $500 each year to the library fund is being made.

New musical instruments are being added to the band and progress is being made under the leadership of C. E. Taylor. Similar sums are being spent on all other athletic departments. Work has begun on the recreation building to be completed by the beginning of the fall term.

The P. T. A. plans a salmagundi party in the near future, the date to be announced. Mrs. R. H. Lamm, membership chairman, announced a drive for 200 paid members for the year.

Maddox Junior High.
"The greatest need for safety in America today is courtesy on the highway," Jack Strouss, secretary of Atlanta Motor Club, impressed upon the Maddox Junior High P. T. A. at

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

'Magnificent Obsession' Is Moved From Fox to Georgia for 4 Days

"Magnificent Obsession," Universal's John M. Stahl production, opened a four-day engagement at the Georgia theater yesterday, with Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor in the starring roles. Rarely has the screen shown a more touching motion picture than this, filled as it is with heart-breaking drama and delightful comedy—a skillful blending of light and shade, revealing the story of the compelling power of a great love. Here is a picture which will be remembered for years as an outstanding example of screen artistry.

The charming Miss Dunne plays the greatest role of her career, and her performance even excels those of "Cimarron" and "Back Street." During a part of the picture she is blind, and her experiences brought tears to the eyes of almost everyone in the audience. Taylor is revealed as a dramatic actor of exceptional ability and fully justifies Hollywood's announcement that this handsome young man is the most important screen discovery of the year. Scenes between these two are presented with stirring dramatic qualities.

Others in the cast who do especially good work are Charles Butterworth, whose comedy is delightful; Betty Furness, Sarah Haden, Gilbert Emery, Ralph Morgan, Cora Sue Collins, Henry Armetta and Arthur Treacher.

'Last of the Pagans' Now at Grand Is Convincing, Primitive Romance

A drama as convincing as if it were happening to the people next door, but laid in a scene a world away from daily life, is told in the glowing beauty in "Last of the Pagans," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's stirring story of South Sea island life, now at Loew's Grand theater. Director Richard Thorpe took a production unit which included only two Hollywood actors—Mala, the Eskimo, and Lotua, the Polynesian beauty—to an uncharted South Sea island to film this story of romance and intrigue in a strange and fascinating world.

Mala and Lotua have the principal roles. Other parts are played by natives who could not realize they were acting. Under the director's instruction, they went through motions before the camera which were part of their daily life—acting which by expert skill has been made into a story of universal appeal. Reminiscent of "White Shadows of the South Seas" and "Taboo," this film is an authentic and dramatic tale of great devotion and loyalty.

Mala, the young warrior, goes with a boatload of his fellows to a neighboring island, and there he sees Lotua, a beautiful girl who flees when she glimpses him. The other warriors fall behind him, but the entranced Mala pursues and finally captures the girl. When he returns to the shore, his fellows have departed. Mala, with his struggling bride, is left alone on a hostile island. How he returns to his native shore shows the cleverness and resourcefulness of native wit.

Back home, Lotua is still unresponsive to Mala, though he performs various feats to win her admiration and love. It is not until Lotua sees him risk his life to save the life of a small child that Lotua capitulates, confessing her love for Mala. They are briefly happy, but soon trouble comes from an unexpected quarter. The white men, in a great ship, come to the island, seeking labor to work in the mines, far away. By winning Mala's confidence and playing him with rum, they induce him to sign a five-year contract, but the traders cannot guess the strength of the bond which binds Mala to Lotua, inspiring him to deeds of courage and daring, to return to the girl he loves.

Weird and Unusual Backgrounds In Paramount's 'The Invisible Ray'

Backgrounds of unusual interest are a feature of "The Invisible Ray," the thrilling drama of mystery, science and adventure which is now playing at the Paramount theater, with Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the starring roles.

Many of the scenes are laid in the jungles of Africa, site of the camps of a scientific expedition. The most picturesque setting in this location is an enormous pit, overgrown with tangled tropical vegetation and created by the fall of a giant meteor impregnated with what is named radium, a hitherto unknown element a thousand times more powerful than radium.

Other scenes of particular interest depict a scientific laboratory atop the Carpathian mountains, equipped with a great telescope and a newly unsealed contrivance by means of which unseen light rays are brought down from the heavens, filling the towering glass dome of the building with an actual reproduction of any desired constellation as it appeared millions of years ago. Stars and stars move in their orbits in a gleaming confusion of unearthly brilliance.

The picture also presents many interesting glimpses of Paris, where the story reaches its culmination in a startling climax which is literally hair-raising.

"The Invisible Ray" was directed by Lamber Hillier, and the cast supporting Karloff and Lugosi includes Frances Drake, Frank Lawton, Benita Bondi, Walter Kingsford and Violet Kemble Cooper.

"MARRIED HER BOSS" AT PONCE DE LEON

Claudette Colbert in Great Hit Role for Today, Tomorrow.

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater will offer one of the greatest comedies of the season, "She Married Her Boss" with Claudette Colbert, Melvyn Douglas and Michael Bartlett. It is an exciting comedy drama with splendid humor such as was in the unforgettable "It Happened One Night."

Tuesday only, Victor McLaglen, Heather Angel, Preston Foster and many others will be in "The Informer," an outstanding drama which Libby Hearnshaw has directed for stars and which was awarded the title of one of the best three pictures for the year.

Wednesday only, the Ponce de Leon presents "Invisible Man," Claude Rains in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" in which he is assisted by Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel and David Manners.

Thursday and Friday Shirley Temple will be on the screen in "Curley Top" with John Boles, Rochelle Hudson and Jane Darwell.

Saturday only, Lyle Talbot and Valerie Hobson will be in "China Town Squad," an exciting adventure story of law-defying criminals.

DOBSON TO SPEAK

Scout Executive at Druid Hills Church Sunday.

W. A. Dobson, executive officer of the Atlanta Council of Boy Scouts, will be the guest speaker at Druid Hills Baptist church Sunday night in the series of special addresses by prominent Atlantans on "What Religion Means to Me," according to announcement by Dr. Louie D. Newton.

The three troops of the church will attend the service in uniform, and all scouts of Atlanta are invited to be present in uniform. Reserved seats for scouts will be held until 7:30 o'clock. A special musical program has been provided.

Dr. Newton will preach Sunday morning on "Growing in Grace and Knowledge," using Robert E. Lee as an example of triumphant discipline. His sermon Sunday night, following the address of Mr. Dobson, will be based on the text, "What Is That in Thine Hand?" The Sunday evening services will be broadcast over Station WATL.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE IS AT BUCKHEAD

Little Star To Be Seen Today and Tomorrow in "Curley Top."

The happiest picture of Shirley Temple's career, "Curley Top," will be shown at the Buckhead theater today and Monday. In "Curley Top," a charming story of a little girl who captures the heart of a lonely bachelor and makes both their dreams come true, Shirley has two new songs and several intricate dance routines.

John Boles and Rochelle Hudson give able support.

The adventures and escapades of two light-hearted youngsters who look for thrills and find romance constitute the story of Fox Film's delightful "The Gay Deception" to be shown Tuesday. Stars are handsome Francis Lederer with lovely Frances Dee.

"Annapolis Farewell," featuring Sir Guy Standing, Tom Brown and Richard Cromwell, comes to the screen Wednesday and Thursday. The United States Naval Academy, where this picture was photographed, is the background for the story.

Friday offers "Two For Tonight," with Bing Crosby, Joan Bennett and Mary Boland. The story concerns the efforts of a mother and her three sons in an endeavor to replenish their now totally nil funds.

The picture for Saturday is "Two Fisted," a breezy comedy with fast action featuring Lee Tracy, Roscoe Karns and Gail Patrick. The last chapter of the thrilling serial "The Roaring West," with Buck Jones completes a bill of good entertainment.

SLATON TO ADDRESS PRESBYTERIAN GROUP

John M. Slaton, former governor of Georgia, will be principal speaker at the annual dinner-meeting of the Presbyterian Officers' Association, representing churches in the Atlanta area, Thursday 6:30 o'clock in Central Presbyterian church.

T. C. Dickson, president of the association, will preside. Officers will be chosen following the report of the nominating committee, of which W. R. Heston is chairman. Lawrence G. Nelson will be in charge of the musical program.

'Whispering Smith Speaks' Is Film At Capitol With George O'Brien

Instead of riding a loping horse over the plains, George O'Brien is riding the iron horse over the singing rails in his new adventure picture, "Whispering Smith Speaks," which will play at the Capitol theater, for one week, starting today.

On the stage, the Capitol has booked the road show revue, "The Glorified Revue," with a cast of 25 people offering eight acts of vaudeville and many novelty surprises.

Swift paced and filled with the zest for adventure that has made O'Brien a film favorite, "Whispering Smith Speaks" pictures the adventures of a railroad magnate's son when he undertakes to become a rail man himself.

In the course of his adventurous wandering O'Brien chances across a dilapidated old railroad which has a beautiful girl for a general manager. Fascinated by this unusual situation, O'Brien decides to stay, although he is only a lowly track-walker.

In time, however, O'Brien gets his chance to outsmart his father, Frank Sheridan. The old rail mogul is negotiating secretly to obtain control of the old road in which O'Brien works, because he knows Miss Ware's farm contains valuable deposits of minerals.

Through plot and counterplot, O'Brien cleverly weaves his way, until he finally races his opponents to Detroit in a wildly careening engine. In a showdown, he forces his father to admit his son is a capable railroad man after all, and wins the hand of Miss Ware.

Among the stars with the Capitol's stage show, "The Glorified Revue," are Bobby and King, comedians and novelty entertainers; Allen, Linda and Alleen, a unique novelty classic; the Rockless Rocklows, comedy cycle riders; Frankie and Gladys Harris, black and tan novelty; Bobbie, Bea and Jack, a study in harmony, and the Original Radio Rascals with Adolbert Burton and a chorus of glorified girls.

A special overture will be conducted by the Capitol's musical director, Enrico Loida, before each stage show presentation.

EMPIRE STARRING SHIRLEY TEMPLE

"Curley Top" Plays Georgia Avenue House Today and Tomorrow.

There's a song for everybody in Shirley Temple's "Curley Top," the little star's happiest and most tuneful picture at the Empire theater today and tomorrow. In the hit tune score of five numbers, there are three numbers for Shirley, while John Boles, who supports Shirley, is heard in one song, and Rochelle Hudson sings another, her first attempt at singing on the screen. Shirley's role in "Curley Top" is that of a lovable orphan child who rewards her benefactor by helping him to win the girl he loves.

Another delightful song, dance and romantic picture is billed for Tuesday with the showing of "The Girl Friend," with Ann Sothern, Roger Pryor and Jack Haley, while Wednesday and Thursday's offering will be "Every Night at Eight," with George Raft, Alice Faye and Patsy Kelly. This picture tells of the hectic adventures of a feminine singing trio who fight their way from amateur night tryouts to national radio fame.

Annapolis with all its romance, parades, etc., comes on Friday in "Annapolis Farewell," with Sir Guy Standing, Rosalind Keith, Tom Brown and Richard Cromwell and in the grand story of an old sea dog who fight their way from amateur night tryouts to national radio fame.

WILL ROGERS FILM PLAYING AT HILAN

'Steamboat' Round the Bend' Is Attraction for Today and Tomorrow.

Today and tomorrow the Hilan theater will present "Steamboat Round the Bend" with Will Rogers, Irvin S. Cobb, Anne Shirley and Stepin Fetchak. It is one of Rogers' most entertaining pictures, in which he is seen as the captain of an old Mississippi river boat.

Tuesday only Boris Karloff will be seen in Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven" with Bela Lugosi and Irene Ware. It is an exciting mystery drama with the screen's greatest make-up artist at his best.

Wednesday only the Hilan will offer a stirring action drama with Fred MacMurray and Madge Evans. It is "Men Without Names."

Thursday and Friday Shirley Temple will be on the screen in "Curley Top" with John Boles, Rochelle Hudson and Jane Darwell. Pretty little Shirley is seen as a homeless waif who, with her sister, Rochelle Hudson, is adopted by the handsome bachelor.

"Annapolis Farewell" with Sir Guy Standing, Richard Cromwell, Tom Brown, Rosalind Keith and the midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy will be the attraction at the Hilan Saturday only.

'Crime and Punishment' at Rialto, One of Most Unusual Pictures

"Crime and Punishment," the Josef von Sternberg-directed production now at the Rialto theater, is one of the most remarkable accomplishments of the screen yet seen in Atlanta. Helped by a tremendously effective cast, Von Sternberg has taken a story which, not so long ago would have been regarded as impossible of proper translation to the screen, and has made of it one of the most powerful dramas any audience ever witnessed.

Dostoevsky, the world-famous Russian novelist, wrote in "Crime and Punishment" a study of the human mind that for compelling force has never been excelled. Von Sternberg has caught this atmosphere thoroughly and the picture, like the novel, moves with implacable certainty through situation after situation to the inevitable climax with its retribution and, after all, its promise of ultimate happiness for the central characters.

Peter Lorre, the poverty-stricken, yet brilliant, young student who commits murder to save his mother, his sister and his sweetheart from the agony and shame that is theirs, gives a performance that will rank with the finest things of stage or screen when final credits are awarded. And Edward Arnold, as the police inspector, the man who, by persistent hints, finally forces confession to a crime he could never have proved, is almost as great.

Other cameo-clear delineations are given by Marian Marsh as the queer, pitiful, yet lovable, little street urchin who becomes the killer's sweetheart, by Elisabeth Riedson as the mother, Tala Birell as the sister and by Mrs. Patrick Campbell as the old hag of a pawnbroker who is killed.

Such pictures as "Crime and Punishment" come only rarely and when they do come they mark an epoch, a turning point, the dawn of a new method in the art of the screen.

Manager W. E. Murray has added some short subjects that are altogether fitting to his remarkable feature, providing a program that is outstanding in the history of entertainment. It is now booked to run through Thursday next.

Lily Pons Now on Screen at Fox In Entrancing 'I Dream Too Much'

Heralded as an event of major importance to the cinema is the debut of the entrancing young coloratura soprano, Lily Pons, who soared to fame with the Metropolitan Opera Company and who has won worldwide acclaim as one of the greatest singers of all time.

"I Dream Too Much" has Henry Fonda, latest of Hollywood's young actor sensations, in the male lead opposite Miss Pons. Ogood Perkins, veteran star of the New York stage, and Eric Blore, the English comedian, are the other principal players in this lavish production.

Written especially to fit Miss Pons' brilliant talents as a singer and an actress, "I Dream Too Much" is an original story by Elsie Finn and David G. Witte. It concerns a little French girl who, hungering avidly for love and life, would gladly escape from the fetters of fame woven by her superbly beautiful voice to be just a plain wife and mother.

The manner in which she escapes the fetters of her talent in order to attain her ambition is at once as novel and amusing as it is charged with poignant heart appeal. Glamorous highways and intimate by-paths of life are traversed as the absorbing drama unfolds itself.

Miss Pons combines two grand opera arias and four popular songs composed especially for the picture by Jerome Kern in her vocal selections. The arias are "Caro Nome" from Verdi's "Rigoletto," and "The Bell Song" from Delibes' "Lakme." Both are from operas which Miss Pons has sung to international fame.

"Jockey on the Carousel," "I Got Love," "I'm the Echo" and "I Dream Too Much" are other songs which Miss Pons has sung to international fame.

its meeting held Wednesday in the school auditorium. "Government supervision will reduce auto accidents, augmented by state legislation for driver's license, highway patrol and uniform responsibility act," Mr. Strous stated. "The largest per cent of accidents happen in the daytime on dry roads due to excessive speed."

Mrs. W. H. Smith, president, introduced G. L. Keith, who led the devotional. J. P. Barron, principal, reported on the general activities, the new lunch room, which is being built adjoining the cafeteria, the community singing on Friday, February 21, and Madoo graduation January 31, to which all parents and friends are invited.

O'Keefe Junior High.

"Revision of Curriculum in Schools" was the subject of the talk given by Paul West, principal of Russell High school, at O'Keefe Junior High 4-5 A. Wednesday. Mr. West sought to show first why the present curriculum is inadequate to meet the needs of this aggressive age, and then that a slow and careful revision could bring about a more purposeful teaching, certain social and economic changes and an opportunity to bring out the individual personality of each child to do the things in life for which he is best fitted. Mr. Hastings, principal of O'Keefe, introduced Mr. West.

Mrs. E. R. Hillard presided. Mrs. L. A. Weekly gave the invocation. Songs were given by the three glee clubs of the school, accompanied by J. D. Shackelford, their director. Mrs. L. Kuminaky, Parent-Teacher magazine chairman, urged mothers to subscribe and read the official magazine of the association. The O'Keefe Parent-Teacher Bulletin carried reports from the various chairmen, and the financial report of the treasurer, Mrs. Hubert Snider, hospitality chairman, with her committee, served refreshments.

Glennwood P.T. A.

Glennwood P.T. A. will have the first of a series of study groups on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Roy Kracke will lecture on "Prevention of Contagious Diseases." Messrs. Byron Brooks, A. C. Partee, W. B. Thomas and H. C. Gresham, room representatives of the first and second grades, will act as hostesses and Mrs. J. T. Lester, study group chairman, invites pre-school mothers and others in the community interested to attend.

An inventory luncheon for room representatives was given last Wednesday in the school cafeteria. Mrs. W. R. Williamson, president, presided. Mesdames H. B. Carreker, William Keller, Maynard Sanderson, W. C. Partee and A. J. Groog gave suggestions for grade improvements.

The room representatives have sponsored get-together teas for every grade, called at the homes of patrons, telephoned invitations to meetings and acted on the hospitality committee. Suggestions were given for the promotion of the five study group meetings which are "Health," "Citizenship," "Educational Needs in Georgia," "Character Education" and "Proper Lighting and Other School Needs."

Joseph E. Brown P.T. A. met in the school auditorium for its January meeting when Dr. Stuart Chesley spoke on "Character Training." A skit on "Safety" was given by several pupils under direction of Mr. Geisler, of the faculty. Beginning with February the meeting date will be changed to the first Monday in the month.

Formwalt Reports.

Dr. William H. Kiser Jr. spoke at the Formwalt P.T. A. meeting held Tuesday in the school auditorium. Mrs. M. M. Mulkey, president, presided and introduced the speaker, whose subject was "Mental Hygiene." Dr. Kiser urged the mothers to have the children make the most of what they had. He warned against the unhappy child and encouraged the mothers to help each child make the most of his own ability. He said that the child of school age was naturally curious and in a practical way, he demonstrated how parents could satisfy that innate curiosity of childhood. "Inferiority complexes are begun in childhood," said Dr. Kiser, and asked that the parents guard against fear as an underlying cause of much trouble.

Bobby Berry, James Fowler, Samuel Maskeage, of Low 5, played harmonica solos and duets. The school will have a coat hanger sale on January 22, a paper sale on January 23 and a toothpaste tube sale on January 24. Members of P.T. A. and friends of the school are urged to send these things at the above-mentioned dates. High 6 and Low Kindergarten classes won the attendance prizes for having the largest attendance of parents present at the meeting.

I. N. Ragsdale P.T. A.

I. N. Ragsdale P.T. A. met Tuesday. Mrs. Frank Harper, president, presided. Mrs. E. E. Steele gave a devotional on "A Worker in Irony." Dr. H. H. Bixler spoke on the exceptional child. High 6 and Low 6 tied for the attendance prize.

Bentzen P.T. A.

Co-operation was the theme of Bentzen P.T. A. meeting. Superintendent Jere Wells spoke on "How Parents May Best Co-operate With Teachers." Mrs. John Adams gave a talk on "Parents and Teachers Need Each Other." Mrs. Charles Pickens spoke on "The Parents' Part in Education." Plans were made for a fish supper

Not so loud, please—

I Hear Perfectly Now

What a relief it is to the nerves of those with impaired hearing, when they can be spoken to in natural, conversational tones, and hear distinctly!

To those who wear a hearing aid, as well as those who have hesitated to use one up to now, it will be interesting to learn that the New Silver Seal Symphonic ACQUITION overcomes virtually every objection one could possibly have to wearing such an instrument.

Men and women who have tried, and are now using it, pronounce the new Acquition the greatest aid for the hard of hearing ever created by science. Never before have they been able to hear so much, so clearly! so naturally!

And, for the first time in the history of hearing devices, this sturdy, precision-made instrument is offered with a written guarantee of FREE, Lifetime Service.

Without cost or obligation, you may obtain a free, private demonstration either at our consulting rooms or in your own home. To those out of town, we will be glad to mail descriptive literature.

Griffin Betrothal And Wedding Rites Interest Atlantans

GRiffin, Ga., Jan. 18.—Of cordial interest is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Louvale Goodin and Albert Stephens Hollingsworth, of Griffin, which is made by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Goodin, of Vaughn. The bride-elect is the second daughter of her parents, who are prominent throughout the county, and is the sister of Mrs. Byrd Patton, of Vaughn; Miss Ruth Goodin, of Griffin, and H. A. Goodin, of Albany. Her mother is the former Miss Vennie Biles. Miss Goodin was educated in the schools of Vaughn and Griffin and now holds a responsible position. She is a charming brunette and is possessed of a gracious personality as well as unusual business ability. Mr. Hollingsworth is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hollingsworth, of Griffin, his mother being the former Miss Lena Swint. His sisters are Mrs. Robert Davidson, Misses Elsie, Florence and Alice Hollingsworth, all of Griffin, and his brothers are Aubrey Hollingsworth, student at Furman University, and Leonard Hollingsworth, of Griffin. He was educated in Griffin schools and now is in business here. Like his bride-to-be, Mr. Hollingsworth is liked by all who know him. The young couple will reside at their new home in Terracedale after their marriage.

Of interest throughout Georgia is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Ruby Ritter, of High Point, N. C., and Woodrow Peurifoy, formerly of Griffin, which took place December 18 at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. M. S. Needham, pastor of the Calvary Methodist church, in High Point. The bride was lovely in a model of navy blue trimmed with white and worn with matching accessories. She wore a shoulder spray of pink roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Peurifoy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ritter, of Hemp, N. C. Mr. Peurifoy is the son of Mrs. A. W. Peurifoy and the late Mr. Peurifoy, of Griffin, and resided in Griffin until recently.

Miss Gladys Beatrice Ramsey, of De Land, Fla., and Charles E. Edfield, of Griffin, were married in De Land recently. The young couple will reside at 132 East College street, Griffin, where Mr. Edfield is a prominent member of the faculty of the Spalding high school. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Ramsey, of De Land, and will be a welcome addition to Griffin social circles. Mr. Edfield is the son of Mrs. N. F. Edfield and the late Mr. Edfield and is the popular teacher of mathematics and science at the Spalding high school, also serving as assistant athletic coach.

Miss Willie Mae Lawson and Eima Hayes, of near Griffin, were married here recently. The Rev. D. B. Hayes, grandfather of the bridegroom, officiating at his home. The bride wore navy blue crepe with matching accessories. Mrs. Hayes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lawson, of Indian Springs, and Mr. Hayes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes. He is a prominent young farmer of Orchard Hill. They will reside with his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Maddox, in Orchard Hill.

Miss Lillian Clement To Become Bride of Dr. W. Lloyd Adams

MISS LILLIAN CLEMENT.

Engaging the cordial and sincere interest of a host of friends throughout the state is the announcement made today of the betrothal of Miss Lillian Clement to Dr. W. Lloyd Adams, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Atlanta, their marriage to unite prominent Georgia and Ohio families. The date of the marriage will be announced later.

Miss Clement is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Clement Sr., of Decatur. Her mother is the former Miss Lillian Park, a native of Scott College, and she serves as president of the Business Women's Club of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association. Following her graduation, she studied music for a year at National Cathedral school in Washington, D. C., as a pupil of late Edgar Priest. She continued her study of music under prominent local masters. In addition to her unusual musical talent, she is endowed with an exquisite soprano voice and is a member of the choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Of patrician build type, the bride-elect possesses unusual beauty. She is slender and graceful of stature, with lovely brown eyes and wavy brown hair. Her personal charm and cultural attainments have made her a favorite among younger members of society, and she has enjoyed wide popularity since finishing school.

Dr. Adams, like his lovely bride-to-be, is a representative of prominent pioneer families. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Adams, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and is a lineal descendant of John Adams, second president of the United States. His mother is the former Miss Margaret Anne Rohlf, a native of Indiana.

The groom-elect received his education at Wooster College and at Western Reserve University at Cleveland, Ohio. He is an instructor in the medical school of Emory University, and is a popular figure on the university campus.

Following their marriage Dr. Adams and his bride will reside in Atlanta, where they will be attractive additions to the younger married contingent.

Miss Betty Blain, of Miami, Fla., Becomes Bride of Ben Lee Crew

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Blain, of Miami, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Benjamin Lee Crew Jr., which took place on January 4. The wedding took place at 5 o'clock in the Blain residence. Mrs. Robert Dulaney was matron of honor and Joseph Dulaney attended the groom. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate family and a few friends by the Rev. Father Burleigh.

The bride is a beautiful young woman with auburn hair and brown eyes and was educated in a convent before entering the University of Miami. She was president of the Phi sorority, served on the interfraternity council for two years, and was a member of the honorary German Club at the university. She is cultured and charming and was exceedingly popular with hosts of friends in Miami.

Miss West Weds Charles P. Rampey.

Of interest to the wide circle of friends and relatives was the marriage of Miss Sara Sue West, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd West, to Charles P. Rampey, which was solemnized Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, in north Kirkwood. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Lester A. Brown, before an improvised altar of greenery and burning tapers in silver candelabra. The bride was given in marriage by her father and J. T. Holtz acted as the groom's best man. The bride's only attendant was Miss Leila Mae Busby, who wore a green crepe dress with black accessories and a cluster of pink roses and valley lilies. The bride was attired in a Grecian model of gold-hammered satin, with brown accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of tallman roses and valley lilies tied with silver ribbon.

Mrs. West, the bride's mother, wore black tulle and spray trimmer with white satin and a spray of pink roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Rampey, mother of the bridegroom, wore blue crepe with a shoulder spray of pink roses and narcissus.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception. Miss Frances West, a sister of the bride, kept the bride's book. Mrs. W. W. Andrews, a close friend of the bride, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Rampey is a graduate of Commercial High school, while Mr. Rampey received his education in Hartwell. After a short wedding trip the couple will be home at 1836 Indiana avenue, N. E.

Wilbanks-Parker.

CARNESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wilbanks, of Carnesville, Ga., announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances Elizabeth, to Edward Harold Parker, of College Park, on January 6. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. B. I. Parker at his home in Mableton, Georgia.

Miss Malone Weds James E. Edwards In Lithonia, Ga.

LITHONIA, Ga., Jan. 18.—The marriage of Miss Jennie Ruth Malone, daughter of Mrs. J. H. Malone, and James Everett Edwards, of Macon, took place Thursday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. A. J. Moncrief, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Decatur, and uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. A musical program was rendered by Mrs. Harry Pate, of Macon, Jack Neal, of Covington, sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "For You Alone."

Mrs. J. H. Malone entered with her nephew, Glyn Abram, and Master Peter Semuels, her grandson. Groomsmen were E. S. Grant and C. K. Grant, of Atlanta. Little Kathleen Pate, of Macon, was flower girl, and a Kate Greenaway frock of rosebud taffeta, with a wreath of roses in her hair. Her bouquet was a miniature old-fashioned bouquet.

Mrs. Emory Malone, of Atlanta, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Glyn Abram, the attendants, were gowned in aquamarine brocade satin featuring a high neckline in front, formed by a drape of the material which crossed the shoulder and fell in a narrow train in the back. Their bouquets were nosegays of narcissus and rosebuds. Mr. Edwards had as his best man, Mason Zuber, of Macon.

The radiantly lovely bride descended the stairway accompanied by her cousin, Emory Malone, of Atlanta. Her wedding gown was a V-neck model of duchess satin in rose, with an upstanding collar above a deep yoke and a cascade of sleeves finished with wide turned-back cuffs of stitched satin. The bodice was closely fitted with a row of tiny buttons down the front, and a feature of the costume was the train which buttoned onto the gown at the hips. She wore a wreath of roses in her dark hair, and carried a circlet of roses, centered with an old-fashioned nosegay. Her only ornament was a pearl sunburst, the gift of her mother.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Malone entertained at an informal reception. She was gowned in black velvet, with shoulder bouquet of roses and valley lilies. Mrs. E. J. Edwards, of Perry, mother of the groom, wore a gown of black crepe with yoke and sleeves of metallic cloth. Her flowers were Talisman roses and swainsons. Miss Betty Malone, of Atlanta, kept the bride's book.

The bridal couple left for Miami and Cuba. Mrs. Edwards' traveling outfit was a beige and brown cape ensemble of homespun, with hat of straw and brown accessories to match. Upon their return they will occupy an apartment in Macon.

Mrs. Edwards is a graduate of Besse Tift College and has many friends both here and in Florida, where she spent many winters, who will be interested in her marriage. She is a descendant of the Mitcham family of Madison, through her mother, formerly Miss Bertha Mitcham. Through her father, the late J. H. Malone, she is connected with the Hanscoms of North Carolina and the Moncriefs of Greensboro, Ga. Mr. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Edwards, of Perry, is a graduate of Vanderbilt University, and for the last seven years has lived in Macon.

Out-of-town guests were E. J. Edwards, father of the groom; J. D. Edwards, brother of the groom, and Mrs. J. D. Edwards, Mrs. A. J. Moncrief, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Braswell, Miss Fannie Braswell, of Decatur; T. S. Johnson, of Kennesaw; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Vance, Miss Ann Malone, Atlanta; Mrs. James E. Phillips, Covington; Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, Madison; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Joiner, Paul Scordas, Savannah; Mrs. Homer Brown, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Mrs. J. H. Renta, Miss Margaret Perry, Mrs. J. L. Urquhart, Charles L. Brooks, Harry E. Joiner, Miss Louise Brown, Miss Pat Lilly, Harry Pate and S. T. Kilgore, Macon.

Miss Bullock Weds Pete Flanagan.

HULL, Ga., Jan. 18.—A marriage of cordial interest was that of Miss Mary Delle Bullock and William Pete Flanagan, which was solemnized at noon on December 29 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Nellie Bullock, in Hull. Rev. A. E. Logan, pastor of the Hull Baptist church, performed the beautiful ring ceremony in the presence of a small group of relatives and close friends. The ceremony was performed in front of an improvised altar of ferns and foliage plants in the living room. Candles were lighted about in the room and against the background of the greenery.

There were no attendants, the bride and groom entering together. The bride was lovely in a stylish and becoming suit of grey wool trimmed with fur, and she wore a blouse of blue satin, with close-fitting blue hat of spring model, and blue shoes and accessories to match.

Mrs. Flanagan is the only daughter of Mrs. Nellie Bullock and the late W. J. Bullock, of Hull, and a most attractive young woman with a wide circle of friends. Mr. Flanagan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Flanagan, of Athens, and holds a responsible position with Rogers stores. Mr. and Mrs. Flanagan will reside at 255 Bloomfield, in Athens.

Miss Spurlock Weds Mr. Lewis At Afternoon Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Jane Spurlock, daughter of Mrs. Daisy Wesley Spurlock, to Charles Turner Lewis, was solemnized at the home of Misses Wesley on West Peachtree street yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the presence of a few close friends and relatives. Dr. James Wilson Johnson performed the ceremony. Music was rendered by Mrs. Robert S. Lawrence Jr.

The bridal party descended the stairs into the living room where an improvised altar was arranged before the fireplace. The altar was made of palms interspersed with candelabra and Easter lilies. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Susan Laura Spurlock, who wore a gown of robin's-egg blue tulle trimmed with bands of chartreuse and peach on the ruffles forming the sleeves. Her slipper were silver and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers with a predominance of yellow and tied with yellow ribbon. Acting as Mr. Lewis' best man was James Mobley Springer, and as groomsmen, Jule Lewis, younger brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Thomas Wesley Spurlock, of Waynesville, N. C. Her bridal gown was of ivory satin made on bias laces and trimmed with a deep yoke of duchess lace. The long sleeves were finished with tiny satin buttons and a circular cuff of lace. The skirt extended into a court train and her veil of Brussels lace was caught to her hair with a band of pearls. Her only ornament was a string of pearls belonging to her grandmother, the late Mrs. Pulaski Judge Wesley, and she carried a lace handkerchief made by her great-grandmother, Mrs. Susan Emma and Rubea Wesley, entertained at a reception. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. T. C. Marbut and Miss Sue Middlebrooks. Mrs. O. P. Lyman Jr. and Miss Mary Ellis kept the bride's book.

After the ceremony, the bride's mother and her aunts, Misses Bannie, Emma and Rubea Wesley, entertained at a reception. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. T. C. Marbut and Miss Sue Middlebrooks. Mrs. O. P. Lyman Jr. and Miss Mary Ellis kept the bride's book.

Kinney-Taylor.

A marriage of interest is that of Miss Beuna Kinney and J. W. Taylor, of Villa Rica, which took place on January 4 at the home of the groom's grandfather, Rev. J. B. McBrayer, who performed the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly gowned in black crepe with white trimmings, with which she wore black accessories. The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Powell Jr. The bride, who is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Kinney, graduated from Villa Rica high school, after which she attended G. S. C. W. at Milledgeville, receiving her B. S. general degree in the class of 1935.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Taylor and is now in business in Villa Rica. They will continue to reside in Villa Rica temporarily at the home of the groom's parents on College street.

Miss Laney Weds Fred G. Smith.

A marriage of interest is that of Miss Dorothy Edythe Laney to Fred G. Smith, which was solemnized by the Rev. A. Julian Warner, of Capitol View Presbyterian church, at the home of the bride's parents, 1450 Alameda avenue, S. W., on December 29, at 5 o'clock.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Edmond Patton, was lovely in her gown of blue with accessories to match. Her corsage was of briarcliff roses and swainsons.

The bride entered with her father, William J. Laney, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and best man, Jack Price. She wore lovely in a suit of ashes of roses with corsage of Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. After the ceremony the guests assembled in the dining room, where an informal reception was held. Miss Helen Curtan presided at the punch bowl.

PRESIDENT Miss Helen Estes, 80 Gross street, Gainesville; first vice president, Mrs. J. M. Sigman, Macon; second vice president, Mrs. J. W. Oglethorpe Jr., Quitman; historian, Mrs. Myrtle A. Young, Santee; chaplain, Mrs. J. W. Allen, Albany; secretary-treasurer and director of publicity for Georgia department, Mrs. Joseph M. Toomey, 249 North Church street, Decatur.

Legion Auxiliary President Speaks At Joint Meeting Held in Rome

By Mrs. J. M. Toomey, of Decatur, Director of Publicity for Georgia Legion Auxiliary.

Miss Helen Estes, department president, was the principal speaker at a joint meeting of the Shanklin-Attaway post and unit, of Rome, last Monday.

Preceding the meeting the post and unit entertained at dinner in the General Forrest hotel, where covers were laid for 35 guests, among whom were Miss Estes, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Strain, of Calhoun; Judge and Mrs. James Maddox, of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Johnson, of Mount Berry, and members of the Rome post and unit.

After dinner at the General Forrest hotel, a meeting was held at the Legion home on the Alabama road. Commander Bert Cox, of the Shanklin-Attaway post, presided and addresses were made by Miss Estes, Mrs. Dan Strain, seventh district president; Mrs. James Maddox, department chairman of the education of World War orphans; Mrs. Walter A. Johnson, department chairman of the Ellen Dexter Maddox scholarship fund, and Mrs. John Hogan, chairman of rehabilitation for the Rome unit.

Of especial interest was the report of the rehabilitation and family contact work, given by Mrs. Hogan. This unit is also doing excellent child welfare work.

On January 15, a conference of the units of the first district was held in the De Soto hotel in Savannah. The meeting convened at 11 a. m., with Mrs. A. G. Mitchell, of Savannah, first district president, in the chair. Miss Helen Estes, department president, addressed the conference, stressing the study of legislation, Americanism and national defense which are featured in the programs of the auxiliary during January and February.

Reports were given by the units of the first district as follows: Mrs. J. S. Jensen, of Fort Screven; Mrs. J. B. Averett, of Statesboro; Mrs. W. B. Simmons, of Metter; Mrs. Preston Lewis, of Waynesboro; Mrs. C. Hearn, of Claxton; Mrs. B. D. Yarbrough, of the Savannah unit No. 135, and Miss Delores Lockwood, of the Chatham county unit No. 56.

At 2 p. m. the officers, delegates and unit members were entertained at a luncheon in the De Soto hotel as the guests of the Savannah unit.

The Atlanta unit is assisting its post in arranging for the annual Georgia products dinner to be given this year on February 12 in the Shrine mosque. A committee from the unit, headed by Mrs. George Baker and one from the post headed by Colonel Franklin Chalmers will have charge of all arrangements for the dinner.

At a recent meeting of the Dewey-Hulsey unit, of Ashburn, reports from the child welfare and rehabilitation chairmen showed that a splendid Christmas program had been sponsored by the unit through which many needy children had been cared for. The community service chairman, Mrs. Webb Zern, reported that an organ, valued at $30, and windows valued at $25 had been given to a rural church.

Mrs. R. P. Hudson reported that 20 trays and 12 Christmas boxes were sent to the families of disabled veterans.

Mrs. Lewis Allen was hostess to the January meeting of the Paul E. Bolding unit, of Gainesville, at her home on North street. Mrs. A. B. C. Dorsey presided and reported that clothing, books, medicines and $25 worth of groceries were distributed to needy families by the units at Christmas time.

Miss Helen Estes, department president, was the guest speaker and gave an interesting account of the Christmas party at United States Veterans' Hospital No. 48.

The executive board of Atlanta Better Films committee, announced a meeting for Thursday at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 12 o'clock. Rev. D. P. McGee, pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian church, will make the principal address. New pictures will be discussed and members and friends are requested to make reservations by calling Mrs. Heisten, Vernon 1343.

The executive board of Atlanta Better Films will meet at the Athletic club at 10:30 o'clock preceding the luncheon Thursday.

Mrs. Sarah Hughes Has 76th Birthday

A delightful recent event was the dinner and open house given by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hughes at their home on South Pryor street honoring their mother, Mrs. Sarah Hughes, who celebrated her seventy-sixth birthday last Sunday.

Mrs. Hughes is one of 11 children, and is the mother of late county policeman, B. L. Hughes. She is a native of Union county and has been a resident of this city for over 50 years.

The dinner table was attractively decorated with a large white cake trimmed with pink icing and containing 76 lighted pink candles. Present at the dinner were Mrs. L. B. Hadley, Johnnie Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Aeschbacher, Herbert, Eugene and Kenneth Aeschbacher, Mrs. S. T. Carson and Mr. and Mrs. E. Lamb.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Starett, Misses Mary and Louise Henderson, Miss A. G. Prater and Hugh Rogers.

Mrs. Hughes is a member of the Georgia Society of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots met recently at the home of Mrs. Bernard Wolff on Peachtree place. The president, Mrs. John Philip Womble, presided over the business session and presented news of interest from the national society in Washington. Mrs. Harold E. Nicholson, chairman of records, led in the discussion of the preservation of Georgia records and pointed out the distressing rapidity with which our own valuable historical papers are being lost forever to the state through sale to outside collectors. She told of the efforts being made by Dr. Ruth Blair to secure these records for Georgia. The state appropriates no funds for this purpose, and various historical and patriotic organizations have been asked to help in establishing a fund that may be used by Dr. Blair to purchase such papers as are in danger of being lost forever to Georgia. The society voted to contribute annually to this fund.

Following the business session, a delightful program arranged by Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan, chairman, and Mrs. Bernard Wolff, co-chairman, was presented. George Allen sang a group of songs with Mrs. W. H. Neils at the piano. Mrs. DeLoe Hill, who has recently returned from a world cruise exhibited an extensive display of curios and objects of art, fine silks, embroideries and paintings gathered from remote corners of the globe, representing many countries.

A delightful social hour was held, at which the hostesses, Mrs. S. T. Carson and Mr. and Mrs. E. Lamb, Miss Ellen Wolff and Mrs. John Young, invited to meet the honor guest are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Alston, Mrs. Edward H. Iman and Mrs. J. J. Goodrum.

Mrs. Oliver Invited to Exhibit Portraits at New York Gallery

By Sally Forth.

TWENTY oil portraits, vivid and natural portrayals of the southern darky, are included in the one-woman exhibit of Mrs. Herbert Oliver, which opens in New York on February 6 in the Ehrlich-Newhouse galleries. The Atlanta artist was invited to show her collection at this well-known gallery by Bertram M. Newhouse, one of America's renowned connoisseurs and whose gallery is one of the most outstanding in this country.

Mrs. Oliver has won wide recognition in art circles and her character portraits of southern darkies show a deep understanding of the race. The portraits are life studies of the subjects and a number were done by Mrs. Oliver during visits to the rural sections of south Georgia and Florida, where reside many of the south's colored folk.

Included in the collection is a mother and her pickaninny. In painting the figures, Mrs. Oliver has grasped the deep devotion of the "mammy" for her "little black child" revealed by her beaming countenance. Another one of the group is that of a 100-year-old darky whose snowy white hair, furrowed brow and bent back prove that he is one of the few remain-

Convention Delegates Elected by Atlanta Chapter D. A. R.

At the January meeting of the Atlanta Chapter D. A. R., Mrs. Thomas C. Mell was unanimously elected for the office of state auditor. The election to occur at the state conference to be held in Savannah March 10 to 12. Delegates elected to the state conference are Mrs. Francis Brown Chase, regent, also a state chairman; Mrs. John W. Rice, Mrs. Moreland Speer and Mrs. Logan Thompson. Alternates: Mesdames George Bratton-bucher, Reuben Garland, Bernard Wolff, De Los Hill, Thomas C. Whitner, J. O. Wynn, Robert Perkins, James L. Logan and B. F. Ulmer. Mrs. James D. Cromer and Mrs. Thomas C. Mell will attend as state officers. The following members will attend as state chairmen: Mesdames Howard McCall, Max Land, Bun Wylie, Charles F. Rice, John M. Slaton, Eli A. Thomas, Lucius McConnell and Miss Virginia Hardin. A gift of a portrait of an ancestor of Mrs. S. M. Page Rees was presented to the chapter. Important events to be featured by the chapter will be a musical to be given Sunday, January 26, at 2:30 o'clock, under the auspices of Miss Ruth Dabney Smith and Mrs. Julius De Givie. The Martha Washington luncheon to be given February 22 will be of interest.

General George Van Horn Moseley was the principal speaker for the afternoon and gave a splendid patriotic address on "Americanization." Mrs. John M. Slaton, chairman of Americanism committee, had arranged a delightful program and presided over this part of the meeting. Mrs. Joe A. Brown, accompanied by Mrs. Kurt Mueller, at the piano, was the soloist. Mrs. Slaton, in her report as chairman, spoke of the box annually sent by this committee for the immigrants at Ellis Island.

An important phase of the work of the D. A. R. is national defense through patriotic education. A resolution against the spread of communism in our state was unanimously endorsed by the chapter and will be presented at the state conference at its annual meeting by the regent, Mrs. Francis Brown Chase, and Mrs. Bun Wylie, state chairman. This resolution is in line with the resolution recently passed against communism by the American Legion and Disabled Veterans of the World War.

Honor guests were several members of the John Clark Chapter of the D. A. R., Mrs. Claude Wylie the regent. A social half hour followed and an opportunity given to members to meet the honor guests. Tea was served from a beautifully appointed table by Misses Hazel Kirk, Willie Fort Williams and Lamar Lowe. The chairman of hospitality, Mrs. Slaughter Linthicum, was assisted by Mesdames A. G. DeLoach, J. T. Hancock, Carter Prather, C. T. Lotzpeich and Mrs. Logan Thompson and Edward Lewis.

WHEN Frank and Sarah Kenan Loomis became Mr. and Mrs. several weeks ago, it was only the beginning. For last week Sarah became the proud possessor of a lovely gold engagement ring inset with a large diamond flanked by smaller ones, which matches her diamond-studded gold wedding ring to perfection.

And now Sarah and Frank are going on their honeymoon. They leave this week for a trip to Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New York, Wilmington, N. C., and Charleston, S. C. They're going by motor, and will probably be away for about 10 days.

LITTLE Stella Wellborn, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wellborn, should make an excellent newspaperwoman. And why? Because she scooped all three Atlanta papers on the engagement of her aunt, Mary Wellborn, to Linton Hopkins Jr., which is formally announced today.

The little girl is in the Lovett school kindergarten and a feature of the weekly program for the children is the "telling time," when each pupil tells some event of interest. It was left for Stella to break the important news last week that "Aunt Mary is going to marry Uncle Lint and I'm going to be in the wedding and walk down the aisle with my head in the air throwing roses east and west!"

Because Linton and Little Stella's father are the very best of friends, the former has always been "Uncle Lint" to Stella, and naturally the fact that he and "Aunt Mary" were going to marry was the biggest thing Stella ever had to relate at "telling time."

The fact that she says that she is going "to throw roses to the east and west" is still an unsolved mystery to her parents and the future bride and groom. The latter couple, incidentally, are two of the most popular figures among the younger set and Sally joins today with their countless other friends in extending sincere felicitations upon their happiness.

A MOST delightful trip is that being enjoyed by Lundy Sharp, attractive Atlantan. Lundy left several days ago for Bryn Mawr, Pa., where she will visit Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Lowell, her aunt and uncle. On the way, Lundy will stop in Washington, D. C., long enough to visit at Gunston Hall, her alma mater, where she will renew acquaintances with her ex-school mates.

Lundy will be a popular visitor at many important social affairs during her stay in Pennsylvania. Her trip will probably be extended for five or six weeks, during which time she will remain for a brief interval in New York city.

Lucien L. Knight Class Honored.

Women's Bible Class of the Druid Presbyterian church was entertained on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. Brockman on Seminole avenue. The president, Mrs. William T. Asher presided. The name of the class was changed to that of the Lucien L. Knight Class. It was the privilege of this group to have the illustrious and distinguished Dr. Knight as their teacher for 14 years. He is known to many as a writer of note and as a former historian of Georgia, but to those enjoying his lectures Sunday mornings he was their beloved teacher, therefore it was with sentiment that his memory should be commemorated in the naming of a class for him. Reports were made of welfare work and of the scholarship girl who is being educated by the class. Following the meeting tea was served from a beautifully appointed table with Mrs. William Elliott and Mrs. William Asher presiding. Present were 14 new members and assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Robert Head, A. W. White, L. T. Patillo, C. J. Hollinsworth, Carl Allen, Alexander Dahl, Joseph Cole and J. L. Bell.

New England Women.

The Atlanta colony of the National Society of New England Women will sponsor an illustrated lecture on "American Morals" to be given by Lewis P. Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art on Tuesday at 3 o'clock at the High Museum. A social hour will be enjoyed, and Mesdames Sidney E. Dandson, Ben H. Haseus and Douglas Copeland will assist in welcoming interested friends and tea will be served.

Mary Poole Circle of Hapeville Methodist church will entertain the Atlanta Business Woman's Council Monday evening. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. R. M. Brandon or Miss Barbara Lee.

Mrs. L. M. Awtry, of Acworth, president of the W. M. S. of the North Georgia conference, will speak. Women interested are invited.

THE DERENNE LIBRARY, AT SAVANNAH, FINEST PRIVATE COLLECTION OF GEORGIA LITERATURE IN EXISTENCE, NOW OPEN TO STUDENTS

THE DERENNE LIBRARY. This classic white marble building at Wormsloe Gardens houses the superb collection of Georgia literature and art, gathered from all parts of the world by the late Wimberly De Renne Sr. The library is now open for the first time to students of Georgia history.

PROBABLY THE MOST REMARKABLE DOCUMENT EVER PRINTED IN GEORGIA. This plea of dissatisfied English settlers, condemning Oglethorpe and the Georgia trustees, was surreptitiously printed in Savannah and distributed in England where it caused a sensation. The author, however, was forced by friends of Oglethorpe to apologize on his knees to parliament for its publication.

THE "RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE DANCING ASSEMBLY OF SAVANNAH" is a delightful record of social conventions. The ball, it is seen from these rules, opened with a minuet at 8:30 o'clock. Ladies were obliged to abide by the numbers drawn, "brides and strangers only excepted"—these favored groups having more latitude of choice.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARDMEN—By Edgar Rice Burroughs—a new chapter in the history of the ape-man, entirely separate from the Sunday story, is now being published in the daily Constitution. Never has TARZAN, master of the tropic wilderness, met with more dramatic adventures than in this newest picture-story. Again and again he risks his life—and a death unspeakably horrible. You'll not want to miss a single day of TARZAN AND THE LEOPARDMEN.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

BETWEEN

IN HIS FURY AT THE WANTON KILLING OF THE APE, TARZAN IGNORED THE MENACING GUN, "WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?" HE DEMANDED.

JIM GORREY RECOVERED QUICKLY FROM HIS AMAZEMENT THAT THE "WILD MAN" SPOKE ENGLISH. "JUST HAVING SOME FUN SHOOTING THOSE BEASTS."

"THIS IS THEIR COUNTRY," THE APE-MAN GROWLED. "YOU ARE THE INVADER. YOU ARE THE BEAST. GO!"

"YOU TALK MIGHTY BIG FOR A NAKED SAVAGE," THE MAN EXCLAIMED. "THERE'S NO LAW TO STOP ME GOING WHERE I PLEASE."

"IN THE JUNGLE, I AM THE LAW," TARZAN DECLARED. "I AM SOVEREIGN HERE OVER MAN AND BEAST. AND I SAY -- GO!"

TARZAN SAW THE MURDEROUS FLASH IN THE MAN'S EYE, BUT BEFORE HE COULD PRESS THE TRIGGER THE APE-MAN SPRANG UPON HIM.

THEN BOHGDU LEAPED DOWN UPON THE OTHER, AND THE APE WOULD HAVE THROTTLED HIM HAD NOT TARZAN BADE HIM CEASE.

NOW THE DISARMED RIFLEMEN WERE HAPPY INDEED TO FLEE FROM THE STRANGE SAVAGE AND HIS FEROCIOUS APE COMPANION.

"I GO BACK TO FIGHT KON-GAH," SAID THE JUNGLE LORD. "I WILL NOT KILL HIM, BUT I WILL SHOW HIM TARZAN IS MASTER!"

MEANWHILE KON-GAH PUZZLED OVER THE APE JIM GORREY HAD SHOT. "TARZAN KILLED HIM," HE GROWLED FINALLY. "MEN-THINGS KNOW MANY WAYS TO KILL. I KILL TARZAN!"

SOON THE WHITE FUGITIVES SLACKENED THEIR PACE. "THIS LOONY WILD MAN MAY SPOIL OUR PLANS," PUFFED RUFUS FLINT.

"DON'T WORRY!" THE OTHER SNARLED. "I'LL GATHER MY BLACK SOLDIERS AND HUNT HIM DOWN LIKE THE BEAST THAT HE IS!"

FOR those who regret Hollywood's

lack of snow, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Rathbone (Ouida Bergere) made merry from 5 to 8 last Sunday afternoon. They gave a snow party in honor of Dowager Countess Poulett and her daughter, Lady Bridgett.

The huge old Tudor house of the Rathbones lends itself to the sort of entertainment planned. The driveway from the gates to the ballroom was turned into a snow scene, all the trees covered with pseudo ice and snow, the windows and roofs all snow-frosted. Carol singers stood outside the gates singing carols and New Year ditties.

In the big playhouse at the end of the grounds, the great ballroom, decorated in English holly and mistletoe, lighted by candles and fire from the baronial fireplace, presented a scene of true holiday gayety and authentic charm.

Among the guests were Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thalberg (Norma Shearer), Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lawton (Evelyn Laye), Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Lubitsch, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil B. DeMille, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lasky, Mr. and Mrs. Fredric March (Florence Eldridge), Mr. and Mrs. Valentin Parera (Grace Moore), Charles Boyer and Pat Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bellamy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. John Cromwell (Kay Johnson), Mr. and Mrs. Boris Karloff, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard, Agnes DeMille, Merle Oberon, Marlene Dietrich, Kay Francis, Hedda Hopper, Mary Nash, Gloria Swanson, Mary Pickford, Miriam Hopkins, Florence Rice, Marion Davies, Francine Larrimore, Myrna Loy, Jeanette MacDonald, Jean Harlow, Sophie Tucker, Anna May Wong, George Brent, Clark Gable, Charles Chaplin, Gregory Ratoff, Edmund Lowe, Ronald Colman, Rouben Mamoulian, Marc Connelly, Edmund Goulding, Nelson Eddy, Harry Richman, Paul Cavanaugh, Freddie Bartholomew, John Gilbert, William Powell and Irvin S. Cobb.

Bing Crosby and Richard Arlen must have had a terrific argument over the Stanford-California football game. Anyway, their Damon and Pythias attitude seemed to have cooled immediately afterward. All is well, however, old Santa Claus having done his stuff. They were seen happily arm-in-arm headed for the golf course as usual the other day. What's the fun of being like brothers if you can't have a spat now and then?

THERE is one decided advantage to this sort of a job in Hollywood. It gives one an opportunity to bet on dark horses. In this case, it is a dark actor instead of a horse. His name is Francis X. Shields.

There's no use beating about the bush. I've picked him for the next screen sensation and if I lose, it won't be the first time. Shields could make a fortune in tennis—for four years, from 1929 to 1933, he was a member of the American Davis Cup team and was a runner-up in the world's singles championships in 1931 at Wimbledon, London. His hillside home in Hollywood is cluttered with cups and medals, but he says he wants to be an actor—and that's that.

Paramount and M-G-M have had him on their lots, but nothing has come of it. He has played small parts in a couple of pictures, "Murder in the Fleet" and "I Live My Life," but studio executives must have thought of him as a swell tennis player.

Sam Goldwyn believes in him and will cast him in all his future productions, grooming him for stardom if it turns out that Shields is an actor instead of just an excellent tennis player. He is the handsomest man I've seen hereabouts for a long, long time.

If you have been wondering what has become of John Beal, you will be happy to learn he is about to resume his picture career at RKO-Radio. For some time he was ill, and then he went into a New York stage play. Now he is back in Hollywood.

Life is becoming more conservative. Hollywood isn't what it used to be. Six or seven years ago studios used to be turned over to the help on the day before Christmas. Things began happening right after luncheon. Department visited department and bosses forgot they were bosses and became one of the boys. Hot toddies and egg nogs flourished, bands played and people who had never met before embraced each other and sang Christmas carols.

At the top of this hilarity, a lot of workmen who had got pretty tired moving pianos around on sets, decided on fixing at least one so it would never be moved again. They flung it from the second story window of one of the studio offices to the pavement below.

They had parties here and there this year, but they were fairly quiet. Nobody threw a piano out of the window and there were no bands. There were, however, Christmas carols. Most refined.

LEO CARRILLO is often heard raising a cry for "Jesus! Jesus!" There is nothing sacrilegious about this, for in Mexico there are thousands of "Jesuses," pronounced "Her-soos." Carrillo's "Jesus" is a youthful valet and handyman, Jesus Torres Navarro. Born a peon on a rancho near Mexico City, Jesus became a laborer in a steel mill in Chicago while still a child. At 16 he ran away from home and came to California. He wanted to see a moving picture star in the flesh. He did so first by washing dishes in the commissary at M-G-M, then as an extra, in which job Leo Carrillo found him.

One evening Carrillo took Jesus with him to his Santa Monica ranch, fed him and gave him a place to sleep for the night. That was a year ago and Jesus hasn't left it yet. He is learning to drive a car and promises to be of real assistance in the life of the genial Carrillo, for whom Jesus would quite willingly die. He has gained 30 pounds and grown two inches since Carrillo took him under his wing. Both Carrillo and Jesus are at present at Twentieth Century-Fox in "It Had to Happen."

There seems to be a general misconception that all stars know each other in Hollywood. Nothing is further from the truth. Half of them wouldn't know the other half if they were to meet over a bargain counter.

For instance, Janet Gaynor didn't know Ann Harding until the other day when Margaret Lindsay, who is a friend of both of them, brought them together at luncheon in the RKO-Radio commissary. Miss Harding is making "The Indestructible Mrs. Talbot" (or whatever the title is today).

ELEANOR POWELL has probably the most enthusiastic fan of any Hollywood star.

The fan is Alice Weaver, formerly a Broadway child star, now living in Hollywood. She is so enthusiastic over Miss Powell's dancing that she has baked several dozen cakes in her honor.

Daily Miss Weaver appears at the M-G-M studios, her arms laden with home-made layer cakes. These she exchanges with all the office boys for all the clippings on Eleanor Powell they have managed to collect.

Her baking thus far has produced enough clippings to fill 18 huge scrap books. When the dancer returns to Hollywood she will be surprised to receive these scrap books—and, we hope, at least one of the cakes.

If you would like to see Bette Davis do an act similar to some of her tirades in "Of Human Bondage," just go into her house and arrange her flowers. This approximates suicide if Bette catches you.

NOLA LUXFORD,

British actress who has settled in Bel-Air and is appearing in several pictures, is entertaining her friends a few at a time so that her charming new house won't be so full of guests that you can't see the people for the party.

She is giving a series of Sunday parties and the details of her Colonial house can be appreciated in comfort, while congenial spirits commune.

Her new house is built around a clump of huge oak trees which spring up from the patio; one of them grows through the porch and roof.

An international flavor was lent to the second of her Sunday afternoons by a Turkish guest and an American Indian. The Turkish guest was Miss Kismet Sirri, lecturer and writer. The Indian was Ishtiopi, who sang Homer Grunn's "Indian Drinking Song," accompanied by the composer, while he added a true Indian touch by beating on a little table with a candlestick.

Peggy Wood was there and announced her first published novel, "Dearly Beloved," which will be on the book stands in the spring. Nola's mother, Mrs. Adelaide McGonigle Pratt, just arrived from New Zealand, where Miss Luxford was born, assisted in entertaining.

Guests included Peggy Wood, John V. A. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Warren William, Edgar Norris, Fay Pulsifer, Walter Bruce, Charles Starrett, Charles Farrell, Virginia Valli, Gladys Unger, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lockhart, Aileen Carlyle.

Lee Tracy fans will be happy to learn he has been cast in one of the most important roles in Universal's "Sutter's Gold." Edward Arnold is being starred. Already Tracy has done a swan dive into the Pacific, executed the steps of a Spanish dance known as "Goyescas" and admits that he can do card tricks, on request.

Vina Delmar has gone to Palm Springs to cook up an original story for Claudette Colbert. It will have to be good to top "It Happened One Night," "Imitation of Life," "Hands Across the Table," "She Married Her Boss" and "The Bride Comes Home." Incidentally, it is doubtful if Miss Delmar will try to compete with "Cleopatra." Ernst Lubitsch, of Paramount, is banking on the Delmar originality.

Walter Abel is having a lot of fun these days. In fact, he finds it difficult to get to the RKO-Radio studios on time. He is the lad who runs electric trains, mechanical construction sets and caterpillar tractors for his sons, Michael and Jonathan. They have their fun after Daddy goes to work.

SADA COWAN, one of Hollywood's most brilliant playwrights and scenarists, went traveling along about 1929, after having invested a cool half million in "giltedged" securities. She was in the Orient and other places for about five years, in which time she noticed that her income seemed to be on a sliding scale, all downward. However, she didn't worry until she got home and found herself practically penniless. Even this didn't frighten her. She began making a tour of the studios for a job. Nobody could remember her, Hollywood's memory being what it is. Nothing happened, except that she set her teeth and buckled down to try other kinds of writing, such as fan magazine stuff. But she found it difficult to change so quickly from purely creative work to journalistic writing. She was on the verge of despair when somebody at the Paramount studios suddenly remembered that she had written some of their most successful scenarios. He sent for her, signed her on a contract and put her to work. This happened the day after Christmas. Miss Cowan, with just a hint of tears, says she believes in Santa Claus and always will.

Six Children, Two Dogs, Chickens,
Ducks and Rabbits Turn the Weidler Home into Regular Three-Ring Show

By Marion Simms

IMAGINE trying to take in two three-ring circuses at once. Or actually being part of one of Walt Disney's charming and very active little features in color.

That would give some idea of being suddenly dropped in the midst of the Hollywood household that has Virginia Weidler as its youngest member.

From early morning, when this pig-tailed child bounces out of her bed on the thickly populated back porch of the friendly big Weidler house on a shady Hollywood street, the place is a hive of little excitements. As it should be, with six children in the family.

"First thing in the morning, I always run out in the back yard to let all the animals out," Virginia volunteered, with one of her shy little smiles, at the same time whacking one of her braids smartly out of her eyes.

A few moments after 6 a. m. the place is swarming with feathered and furry creatures. Four large ducks, nearly a dozen baby ducks, ten chicks, three white leghorn hens, two rabbits. And through it all weave two dogs, one big, one little.

THE Weidlers started out naming all their livestock. After christening the adult duck family Laddie, Mr. Wiggs, Mrs. Wiggs and Freckles—after film stories Virginia had played in—they began to be appalled by the size of the task. So they got another idea. Above each pen they have painted numbers. For instance, the number 4 indicates this is the home of the four large ducks, number 3 the white hens, number 2 the pair of rabbits, and so on down the long list.

A neat little shingled house takes care of canaries and finches.

"We cemented the floors of the pens and cages ourselves," said George, who is just a year older than seven-year-old Virginia, and is never far from her.

Might three-to-one be the proportion for mixing cement?

"Oh, no," was George's surprised answer to such colossal cement-ignorance among the writing sect. "We kids mix it five-to-one."

At this point Laddie, the enormous St. Bernard-Collie, landed in the midst of the conversation, upsetting Virginia with a friendly nudge. The dog is the daughter of Buck, distinguished animal of "Call of the Wild."

THE Hollywood dog trainer who gave the magnificent Laddie to the Weidler children had intended another dog for their pet. None of the children, however, Mrs. Weidler said, was at all attracted to his selection.

"With one accord they stopped in front of the St. Bernard-Collie. When Virginia heard the dog's name was Laddie—she had just finished in a picture by that name—that settled it. No dog but Laddie would do."

The dog trainer dashed their hopes by saying that was the one dog he could never sell or give away. But the combination of the vivid, compelling faces of all the Weidler youngsters, and the sight of the small, pig-tailed girl making friends with the big pup, must have changed his mind. Not many nights later, Laddie had a place at the foot of one of the numerous beds filling the wide back porch.

"Too stuffy to sleep inside," Virginia said, pointing out her special bed. "When it rains we all grab our bedclothes and run."

ALTHOUGH Virginia makes a very good showing in arithmetic at Rachel Smith's school at Paramount Studio, her progress in reading and writing is deplorable, the mother reports. Wise young Miss Weidler has discovered that, so far, she has got along very well in the world without either accomplishment. Her brother George can always be counted on to read to her. And the rest of the clan—Sylvia, 16; Verena, 15; Warner, 13, and Wolfgang, 11—all take her dictation.

Dictation, for Virginia, is pure pleasure. Sprawling in a comfortable position on the little platform up in the branches of one of the lemon trees in the back yard, she dictates her ideas for plays, while one of the obliging family takes it down on paper.

IN WHATEVER rented house happens to be their home, the Weidlers always put together a rough little theater where they can stage these dramatic efforts. They have only recently moved into their present home, so for the time being Weidler Productions are being staged in the back yard, the living room or a bedroom.

Mrs. Weidler, herself a grand opera star in Germany until her marriage to Alfred Weidler, one-time city architect of Hamburg, has always encouraged and supervised this play spirit in her children. She has turned over to them a trunk filled with quaint old clothes belonging to their grandmother to use in their play acting.

Although all the Weidler boys and girls have played in pictures, some of them in Our Gang, it is the youngest, Virginia, who has taken the largest strides so far. At the age of two, when Virginia expressed howling disapproval at having her dress removed for a scene with John Barrymore in "Moby Dick," Mrs. Weidler vowed that Virginia's first appearances as a camera subject would also be her last.

The vow held for four years. After this fit of temperament, Virginia's childhood shrieks went unrecorded. Her ability to speak French and German, as well as English, brought her a place as Constance Bennett's niece in "After Tonight." A short time later, when Francis Lederer sought a little girl who could speak German for the Hollywood stage production of "Autumn Crocus," Virginia was selected. Next came "Long Lost Father" and "Stamboul Quest."

Norman Taurog, outstanding in his direction of children in pictures, decided Virginia should appear in Paramount's "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"—playing Europa, the younger, who puffed out her cheeks and held her breath whenever she wanted her way.

THE little girl with the pig-tails won the public fancy at once. The next step was a Paramount contract. RKO borrowed her for "Laddie," and then she returned to her home lot for "Peter Ibbetson." Not long ago she went back to RKO for "Freckles." Critics who have seen her in this picture believe it is her best performance.

Her braids are no screen pose. Virginia has always insisted that her hair be done in pig-tails. Perhaps she wisely knows that braids are easier to keep out of the eyes during furious rides on her velocipede. Or in roller skating races with George, around and around the block.

Roller skates are neatly paired under a bench on the front porch. Although they look identical to the eyes of all but the juvenile connoisseurs, each of the younger Weidlers can rush unerringly and pick out his own in the line-up.

Virginia timed her dash for the skates when she saw that company was about to leave. It could only have been a second and a half after her polite little goodbye and partly toothless grin were shyly offered that she was strapped in skates and going into high far down the block, her pig-tails flapping and her gingham skirts swirling in swift motion.

GUY LOMBARDO is regarded as a sophisticated man of music; but Guy himself is a sentimental individual—to an extreme. Let's look at his case records:

Every year for nine years he has played a one-night stand in Carrolton, Pa. Because the promoters there paid him a huge sum of $300 for first date there in 1926, he always goes back in preference to other bookings. Sentiment pays here. His percentage from this year's dance was $2,800.

Some years ago a Chicago night club owner had faith in his music. Lombardo had just come to town and people thought the Royal Canadians were the mounted police. The man liked their music and paid them off regularly. Finally, Lombardo clicked to the tune of many coins. Last summer the same man was experiencing financial difficulties with his club. So Guy brought his band back for two weeks. The crowd flocked to the spot. But Guy refused a salary.

Last fall Guy brought his entire family from London, Ont., to New York to live. He was afraid his mother and father would become homesick, far from their customary environment. So he looked at 86 different farms before he selected one that was almost the replica of their Canadian place. It's near Greenwich, Conn.

He carries a violin with him that he's had for years. He never plays it now; the instrument is worth only $5 and three strings are missing. But it was his first violin and he'd rather have it than a Stradivarius.

Just recently Guy could have had any one of the seven nights for his opening at New York's Hotel Roosevelt. But he selected Thursday night—because it was a Thursday night five years ago that he opened at this same hotel for his first engagement in Manhattan.

He has named his boat "Tempo." His theme song is "Auld Lang Syne."

Guy is probably the most sentimental man this side of Ireland.

One of radio's most famous stooges, Jack Benny's Schlepperman, has returned to the fold. He's heard again with Benny on NBC every Sunday night.

Schlepperman, the originator of "Hello, Stranger" and "Jake Sent Me," is really Sam Hearn, and Sam's glad to be back. In the six months he was away from Benny, Sam tried what other stooges have tried—to become a star in his own right. As a heckler for Benny, he has been one of the biggest laugh-getters on the airwaves. But when he was alone in front of the mike, he did not click half as well. What is the answer?

"As stooge in the open and free-lancing," a radio director told me, "is like a ship without a sail. Put his with a comedian and you've got something."

Stooge Schlepperman and Benny were both vaudeville violinists before the war. Sam used to do a German act, but when hostilities aroused a nation-wide anti-Teuton feeling, Sam developed his Jewish characteristics.

Two or three years ago, Sam was appearing in a private show staged by the Friars actors' club. Benny was in the audience. As soon as the curtain was rung down, Benny lost not time in signing Sam for a guest appearance on the air.

Put Walter O'Keefe, Glen Gray, Ted Husing, Pee Wee Hunt and Kenry Sargent on one block together twice a week and there is bound to be a racket. These bellowing broadcasters put on their show in the CBS playhouse on Manhattan's West Forty-Fifth street. It was formerly a theater. Rehearsal time is hardly the time to catch this "caravan." It's such a hodge-podge of sweet and sour notes and sweet and sour gags that the interested onlooker has grave doubts as to whether there will be a show in the evening.

But soon Irish Walter takes out his blue pencil, Glen Gray and his staff of arrangers start rubbing erasers, and by late afternoon the dress rehearsal is timed, a replica of the evening's half-hour entertainment you hear. It's fast, furious and professional.

Somehow these air fiestas that are produced in former theaters have a different atmosphere from those devised in Radio City or at CBS headquarters on Madison avenue.

A few sit out front. They are managers, press agents, and arrangers. The back of the house is naked—no ushers, no boxoffice men, no doormen. It's cold, too. Many times we have seen the Casa Loma musicians play in overcoats.

The band is busy swinging out a fast, rhythmic number. Paul Douglas, the announcer, times it and calls for Deane Janis, the red-headed vocalist. She sings her torch song, sans lights, sans make-up. It is hardly the Deane Janis that eyewitnesses in the theater see some hours later. She's singing now purely for timing and tempo. The famous Janis gymnastics are left out temporarily.

"Take five, boys," calls Gray. The musicians shuffle out for a smoke. Walter O'Keefe and his troupe take over the stage. O'Keefe reads fast, stops every few moments to make a suggestion. Most of the time he is gagging the lines. He is the type of comic who sounds very unfunny in rehearsal, sticking to the old theatrical optimism: "It'll be all right on the night." It usually is.

Sentimental Guy Lombardo! He lets the heart rule the mind, but often it pays him well.

Douglas reads the commercials intently. He knows the sponsors are spending thousands of dollars for time and talent to get over this message. He mustn't make mistakes, even in rehearsal.

"You never can tell what big boss might pop in," he confides, "and anyway, why not do it right in the first place?"

Ted Husing arrives, buried in a camel's hair coat. He fingers his glasses, makes a side remark to O'Keefe and then they're off. Husing ribbing Walter and vice versa.

The production man steps out of the control booth, glances at his stop-watch, and notices the hours are passing quickly.

"Let's go, gang, for the dress!" Casa Loma swings it, Deane Janis sings it, and Walter O'Keefe slings it with pot-shots of the latest funny words.

"Okey-dokey," shouts the time-keeper. "Be back a half-hour before air time so we can go over those two rough spots at the opening."

O'Keefe hops a cab, Husing struts toward CBS headquarters, and the Casa Loma boys pile into a near-by drug store for sandwiches and coffee.

Francis Bowman is in the radio ago Bowman had to change the flute player.

The program heard every Saturday at 7:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) features a military band and Indian legends. Bowman does all the research on the legends, has collected thousands of them from Indians near Niagara Falls, where the sponsor's plant is, from the two red men in his band, and from contributions from listeners.

The band is not purely professional. It is composed of plumbers, real estate men, brokers, engineers and grocers. The Saturday night radio job is but a sideline to the majority of the men who work under Bowman.

No comedians. No gag writers. No blue singers. No jazz. No script revisions. Francis Bowman is the envy of many a radio star and producer. He and his program just keep rollin' along.

"Why should we change the show?" he asked; "no one has ever complained about it."

"Out west, where men are men," used to be a very apt expression in the old days of six-shooting cowboys and timid tenderfeet. But radio has changed even that worn adage. It should read now; "Out west, where men are men and women are radio comediennes."

For radio's most successful comediennes are those three merry wives of mountebanks—Mary Livingstone, Portland Hoffa and Gracie Allen. They all hail from the Pacific side of the Rocky mountains. Perhaps some psychologist might be able to evolve a theory that there is something in the climate or the soil out there that makes the feminine members of the species particularly humorous.

Mary, Mrs. Jack Benny, was born in Seattle, Wash. Portland, Mrs. Fred Allen saw the light of day in the city in Oregon for which is named, and Gracie started complicating life for other people, in her dizzy fashion, first in the vicinity of San Francisco. All three married funny men. The husbands come from the other half of the country. Mary's Jack is a native of Chicago, who grew up in Waukegan, Ill. Portland's poker-faced provider was born on a farm near Springfield, Mass., and Gracie's Georgie-Porgie cavorted on the sidewalks of New York along with Georgie Jessel, Eddie Cantor and Georgie Price.

None of these three comical wives started out to be quipstresses. Mary had a business career in mind and was doing very well as the chief lingerie buyer in a Los Angeles department store when Jack came along and swept her off her counter. Portland was a chorus girl in a show in which Fred was appearing. He took her out of the front kicking and firing line and gave her gags to read. Georgie met the inimitable Gracie on the same vaudeville bill. She was a dancer then.

business, but his name is familiar to few listeners. In his quiet way he has been writing, announcing and producing a program on CBS since 1926 for the same sponsor and with the same organization, except in one instance. A year

BRIDGE ACCORDING TO CULBERTSON

By ELY CULBERTSON.

PLAYERS OFTEN IGNORANT OF TERMS.

THERE are many terms in bridge that are freely used by millions of players but really understood by very few. Since the advent of contract such glib phrases as sign-off, cue bid, interference bid, and forcing pass have become the stock in trade of players who still should be wrestling with the fundamentals of the game. This is unfortunate. There can be no great profit in learning to be a parrot, whereas true understanding is bound to be rewarded.

Let us take up the case of the average players bete noir, the forcing pass.

Like every other valuable bidding or playing weapon, the forcing pass is nothing more than the application of pure logic to specific situations. Here is one.

The bidding has been:

South West North East
1♠ Pass 3♠ 3♥

South holds:

♠ A Q J 8 6 ♥ 4 2 ♦ A Q 8 5 ♣ Q J 5

It is quite true that he has better than a minimum bid and is entitled to contract for game after his partner's jump bid. But if he exercises this right he is showing an abysmal ignorance of correct bidding procedure. He has only one proper bid at this point—a forcing pass! Bridge terminology aside, is it not supremely logical to suppose that North, having already given a game force, will take appropriate action over the opposing four heart bid? Such action may well be a penalty double, paying a splendid dividend. But if South, who cannot himself double, bids four spades, obviously his partner is robbed of the privilege of choice between four hearts doubled and four spades.

That is one typical situation.

Here is another:

South West North East
2♠ Pass 2 N.T. 3♦

Pass!

South's first bid instructed his partner to keep the bidding open to game. His pass over three diamonds cannot alter or withdraw those instructions; he simply wishes North to make a choice that he himself cannot make. North may have a hand more suited to a three diamond double than to any other contract; he must not be deprived of the opportunity for voicing his choice.

There are other subtle variations of forcing passes, but the player who thoroughly digests the reasoning which governs them will be equipped for any emergency.

I take pleasure in presenting an interesting letter from a bridge enthusiast in South America:

Mr. Ely Culbertson, New York city.
Dear sir: In the Phoenix Club of Lima, where we Americans and English play bridge daily—and with frequent hot arguments about "playing Culbertson"—the hand I am inclosing was dealt recently and the outcome was so startling that I have thought it worth while sending to you. After looking at the hand you can imagine the ragging I got.

Very truly yours,

C. E. GUYANT.

How North and South made a small slam in hearts doubled, with all four aces and the queen of trumps against them.

Both sides vulnerable.

Mr. Guyant's explanation:

Bridge Problem

The bidding (neither side vulnerable, East-West 40 point score):

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	1♥	Double
2♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Double (final bid)

[North and South both overbid slightly in order to keep opponents from getting together.]

West opened the king of hearts. How must declarer play to make his contract against any defense?

SOLUTION: North ruffs and leads any club. If East wins and returns a heart (best defense), dummy ruffs with king and leads trumps till ace is taken. East can never regain lead, and defense wins only three tricks—one spade, one heart, and one club. East's club entry must be removed before trumps are drawn to prevent his leading hearts through South when dummy is out of trumps.

"South started the bidding with a pass. West, a notoriously weak bidder, bid one diamond. North then bid one spade and East (myself), knowing his partner, bid one no-trump. South came out with two clubs. West kept on with two diamonds, and then North told his partner of his second suit; two hearts. I had to forget no-trump in view of the heart bid, so I jumped my partner to game in diamonds, thinking that would end the bidding. South, however, thought his freak distribution was worth a chance and bid five hearts. West went crazy and bid a small slam in diamonds, and North, figuring that a one or two down was better than losing the rubber, bid the slam in hearts. Naturally I doubled and the rest passed.

"The play: I had to lead and, as it turned out, if I had led the ace of my partner's original bid (diamonds), I would have set them one trick, but I figured from the bidding and the apparent distribution that North probably had no diamonds, so I made the fatal lead of

The Planets---Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

JANUARY 19—SUNDAY: This is not considered a good day for new beginnings, for you will have a tendency to be brusque and independent, and these qualities do not seem to be able to get over with others. Additional responsibilities made today are likely to meet with restrictions; therefore, avoid new contracts and unions.

JANUARY 20—MONDAY: Sagittarians—that is, people born between November 23 and December 22, any year—should really put their best foot forward during 1936, and take active advantage of all opportunities to advance themselves personally. Today, especially before 2:23 p. m., these people should put in some earnest efforts in their own behalf. Otherwise, people are likely to feel an indifference as to what may happen before 4:08 p. m., and, therefore, not be as cautious in picking up all loose ends, seeing that contracts are entirely completed, and so leave the details to the "other fellow." Don't do this, exert yourself more to avoid any confusion. After 4:08 p. m. is favorable for a general activity in business, social contacts, artistic works, travel, and written matters.

JANUARY 21—TUESDAY: Are you planning on advertising your wares, whether it be strictly advertising or trying to sell yourself? If so, plan to do it today. If you are wanting to accomplish something that others think is too eccentric for practical use, now is your day. Fraternal affairs, humanitarian interests, electrical ideas are all favored before 7:09 p. m.

JANUARY 22—WEDNESDAY: This is apt to prove a very exciting week for many people, but I'm very sorry I can't promise that all the excitement will be what you desire. Before 1:09 p. m., unsettled conditions are in progress, and you may wonder why your affairs haven't been able to run so smoothly. What you want to do and what you are able to do will be two entirely different matters. Avoid changes and break-ups in existing conditions.

Whatever happens, take it and make the most of it—there is more beneath the surface than that of which you are aware. The afternoon hours are more favorable, and you can be more successful in creative endeavors, financial interests, professional interests and travel.

JANUARY 23—THURSDAY: Decisions made today may be a deciding influence on your future. Erraticism, high tension, are in order, so you will profit more by taking the "path of least resistance." That is, do not make a change or enter into some new agreement unless it comes about naturally.

JANUARY 24—FRIDAY: This is a very inauspicious day for new speculations, whether it be taking chances with money or time. However, some new announcements along these lines may come prominently before the world. Before 4:32 p. m. use caution in liquids, art, finances, and around the water. Between 4:32 p. m. and 8:13 p. m. you will feel a greater resourcefulness, and, therefore, will be able to enter into new affairs with grace and ease.

JANUARY 25—SATURDAY: During the morning hours and until 12:41 p. m. is not an auspicious the ace of spades. This was trumped in dummy, a small club was then trumped in the bidder's hand, and the king of spades led for a discard of the lone diamond in dummy. After the trumps were cleared there was nothing to it, as the spades were all good (the jack falling to the queen), and the only trick lost was the ace of hearts."

All the way from California comes the latest tall tale of the bridge table. Please note that I am not its sponsor. I am merely passing it on.

It seems that a certain club in Los Angeles specializes in supervised games for players who wish to "brush up." At one of these games an elderly lady appealed to the supervisor for his advice as to her best opening lead. He politely said, "Lead the top of your partner's bid," and hurried away to another table, where he was needed.

Several minutes later he saw the lady trying to attract his attention by means of frantic gestures. He sped to her side and to his amazement perceived that she still had not made the opening lead.

"Why, Mrs. Blank," he said, "I told you to lead the top of your partner's bid suit."

"Yes, I know," she answered somewhat frostily, "but you forgot to tell me which of these gentlemen is my partner!"

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner and I were vulnerable, the opponents were not. Partner opened the bidding with one spade, next hand bid two hearts. My hand was: ♠ 9 8 7 5 4 3 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 7 5 2 ♣ Q 4. Should I have bid two or three spades?

Answer: You should have passed! without even one-half honor trick, any bid you make at this stage is sure to confuse your partner as to your holding and will almost certainly end disastrously. An immediate free raise must be based on honor trick plus distribution—not on a string of trumps alone.

Question: In playing a four-spade contract I had to finesse for the queen of trumps. I led the jack from the dummy and the player on my right half drew a card, replaced it, fiddled around, and finally followed with a small trump. I finessed and lost to the queen. Later it developed that my right hand opponent had a singleton. I accused him of unethical conduct, at which he became very angry and maintained he was privileged to play his cards as he saw fit. Was I wrong in my accusation?

Answer: You most certainly were not wrong. From your description of the play it is obvious that you would have lost to the trump queen in any event, but that does not condone the conduct of the player who "fiddled." He was unethical in his intentions, practically to the point of cheating.

time for new beginnings. Affairs started now will be limited or cramped. Postpone dealings that pertain to the land. After 12:41 p. m. and continuing throughout the afternoon and evening favors expanding your ideas where finances are concerned. Make the most of this time in a social way.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

Jean Harlow, posing with three of her prize kittens, wears a blue-green cashmere suit with matching beret. Marlene Dietrich (left) gets ready for spring with a dozen suits. This one is of raw silk, with two skirts, one white, one blue to match the jacket.

Feminine Hollywood Makes Tailored Garb a Daytime Uniform, with Stars Buying Suits by Dozens

By Sara Day

HOLLYWOOD.

JUDGING from the number of tailored suits being ordered by stars for spring wear, the tailleur is going to be even more popular this coming season than it has been this winter.

Such stars as Claudette Colbert, Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard, Marlene Dietrich, Dolores Del Rio and Constance Bennett are incorporating not one or two but as many as a dozen suits of various kinds in their spring wardrobes. In fact, the tailored suit has practically become the daytime uniform of the Hollywood stars.

In search of advance fashion news on suits, I interviewed two of Hollywood's most popular tailors, Frank Chester and Eddie Schmidt. Both told me that there will be no radical changes in the spring suits, although Chester is advocating a three-quarter-length suit coat. He says this is ideal for short or medium height girls, because it makes them look taller. Schmidt is showing a new fabric called tropical silk which comes in lovely spring colors. It is a dull finish material which looks like linen but doesn't wrinkle. Gabardine, unfinished worsted, cashmere and English twill are among the most popular fabrics for spring wear.

Mismatched suits will be more popular than ever, according to these two big needle and thread men. Red, blue and plaid coats, with contrasting as well as matching skirts, will be good. Many of the stars have slacks made to match the coats of their suits for resort wear.

MARLENE DIETRICH,

who favors tailored clothes for daytime wear, has just ordered a dozen suits of different types from James Schmidt, who serves the feminine customers at the palatial new Beverly Hills tailoring establishment of his father, the genial white-haired Eddie.

She is having four suits made of tropical silk, in jade green, scarlet, marine blue and white. All these suits have double-breasted coats with wide shoulders, peak lapels and white pearl buttons. There is a skirt to match as well as a white skirt for each suit. The skirts, some split at the side and some straight, are quite short. The marine blue suit has an extra white skirt with an inverted pleat in front and a single pocket on the side.

Marlene is also having a suit of brown cashmere, with slacks to match, made for sports wear. The coat has shoulder pleats. Another of her suits is a very gay Glenurquhart plaid in red, white and blue. The single-breasted coat has a gathered yoke, an inverted pleat in the back and a belt. With this goes a navy blue skirt of unfinished worsted and a white flannel skirt.

whom we always think of as being very feminine, loves tailored clothes and rarely wears anything else for daytime. She relieves the severity of her suits with dainty ruffled blouses of handkerchief linen or dimity. At the neckline she usually wears her big star sapphire pin set in diamonds.

In her wardrobe are two suits recently made for her by Schmidt. One is a strictly tailored navy blue unfinished worsted and the other a sports type of blue-green cashmere. The blue suit has a single-breasted coat and an extra skirt of white striped in green. The coat of the cashmere suit has a gathered yoke and is belted in the back. Jean had a beret made of the same material as the suit.

Carole Lombard, who Jim Schmidt thinks is one of the best dressed women in pictures, also favors tailored garb. She likes to contrast her suits with darker blouses. For instance, she wears a dark brown crepe blouse with the gray herringbone suit Schmidt made for her. Carole likes a wide shoulder in her coats and an easy fit. All her suits are single-breasted and the skirts are made with kick pleats on one side. Carole, like Marlene, wears her skirts quite short, 13 or 14 inches from the floor. For spring wear she is having a suit made of light tan tropical cloth and another of gray-brown unfinished worsted.

In her next picture, the Universal production "Love Before Breakfast," Carole will wear two suits which are now being made by Schmidt. One is to be made of hunter's green cashmere with a single-breasted box coat lined in mink. A similar suit will be made of gray herringbone, the coat to be lined in gray squirrel. Both coats will be reversible. The gray suit will also have a short Tyrolean type jacket of the herringbone.

created a new type of resort suit for Wendy Barrie, who is having a dozen suits made for spring. This suit has a mess jacket of white gabardine with white pearl buttons and a perfectly plain tailored midnight blue skirt. Another outfit, which I think gives food for thought on what variations can be provided with an outfit like this and a few blouses, is of powder blue flannel. This ensemble has a double-breasted coat with matching skirt and slacks and a white gabardine skirt for change. Wendy has several gray suits with which she wears bright green and maroon blouses and accessories for contrast.

Chester made a sports suit of green gabardine for Claudette Colbert to wear during the racing season. This was made with an action back coat and four box pleats in the skirt. He made a sports suit with a red gabardine coat and a gray flannel skirt for Betty Compson and a similar one for Virginia Peine. There is a three-quarter coat plus the usual short jacket. This three-piece type suit, Chester believes, will be very popular for spring.

Frances Drake is getting one of the three-quarter length coat suits which Chester sponsors. Hers is black worsted with an invisible herringbone stripe. The coat flares slightly at the bottom and the skirt has a kick pleat on either side.

ELIZABETH ALLAN,

who has just left for England after completing "Tale of Two Cities" for M-G-M, had several tailored suits made for traveling. One of these was a tan and brown Glenurquhart plaid with a matching hat. With this she wears a dark brown crepe blouse and dark brown accessories. She had a novel idea for another suit. The skirt buttons onto the blouse like a little boy's suit. This suit, of black and white plaid, had a matching blouse made shirtmaker style with patch pockets and large black buttons. There was a plain white tailored crepe blouse to change off with. A coat of the plaid completes an outfit which is not only very smart but very practical for traveling—the plaid blouse for train wear and the white one to change to when you arrive at your destination.

Maureen O'Sullivan is another Hollywood gal who has dozens of suits. In fact, she just has suits and evening dresses in her wardrobe. Just having completed "The Voice of Bugle Ann" for M-G-M, she is getting ready to leave for a visit to Ireland and in preparation has had some new suits made. One of them is a brown tweed with a blue stripe. The four-button coat features patch pockets and the flared skirt has a front panel cut on the diagonal. Maureen likes to wear sweaters, in contrasting shades or white angora. For variation she has white linen blouses with Peter Pan collars.

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

By PETER LEVINS.

ON THE EVENING of Wednesday, May 22, 1935, two fire alarms sounded at the combined police and fire station in downtown Warren, Ohio. The first alarm sent the fire engines to the corner of Main and Spring streets at 8:30 o'clock and proved to be false. The second alarm sounded about 20 minutes later.

Assistant Fire Chief George Mauck and Fireman Dallas Quackenbush had just put the equipment away on their return from Main and Spring streets. The gong sent them to 640 Front street, S. W. They arrived at 9 o'clock to find a two-story frame dwelling in flames. As soon as they could, Mauck and Quackenbush crawled through the window of a front bedroom on the second floor facing the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks.

The room was still choked with smoke, the mattress on the bed was burning, and the bed itself had crumpled to the floor. Suddenly Quackenbush shouted out of the reeking darkness:

"George, there's a body here."

The two firemen dragged the body to the window. As they did so, the body of a bull terrier pup rolled out of the water-soaked mattress. Mauck's electric torch revealed the naked corpse of a slim and attractive young woman. She had been stabbed near the right temple, her upper jaw was broken, and the upper front teeth had been knocked backward as though from a blow from a heavy instrument.

Now a third alarm sounded at the municipal building, this time at the police station.

Victim's Husband Had Been at Work.

Captain George Salen hastened to the scene with several men. The victim was quickly identified, by neighbors as Mrs. Marie Tobin, 22, wife of James F. Tobin, 23, employed in the printing plant of the Republic Steel Corporation. Tobin had not been home at the time of the fire. A telephone inquiry showed that he had gone to work at 4 p. m. and had been working in the hours since.

The house was not in disorder, Captain Salen discovered, and there was no evidence of a struggle. The front door was wide open. Mrs. Tobin's clothes were found distributed through the various rooms. There was no indication that the crime had been planned before the killer entered the house. No kerosene or gasoline had been used to start the fire.

Captain Salen found an ice pick in the bedroom and concluded this had been used to stab the girl. It was impossible to ascertain whether Mrs. Tobin was killed first or the dog. Lady, brought by Jim Tobin so that his wife would have protection while he worked nights. Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, living in the next house to the east, said they had not heard the dog bark, nor had they noticed anything unusual. Mrs. Mose Woods, the neighbor on the west, had seen no one enter or leave the dwelling.

"I was coming up Front street from church about 9 o'clock and met two men hurrying, almost running, down the street toward Highland avenue," said Mason, who had turned in the alarm. "I paid no attention to them because I didn't realize that anything had happened. Then I saw smoke coming out of the Tobin house. I knew Jim was working the second trick at the plant, and I supposed his wife was at a movie or visiting somewhere."

Ray Brownlee, a newsboy, said that when he left a copy of The Warren Tribune at the Tobin place he made arrangements to call for Mrs. Tobin in his father's car at 7:15 p. m. to take her to the City hospital to visit Gladys Baker, a friend who lived in Cortland.

Brownlee said he arrived with his brother, Herbert, at the pre-arranged time but they were unable to get a response at the door, which was then closed. As they heard no sound from within, and as the dog did not bark, the boys decided that Mrs. Tobin had found other means of getting to the hospital. This was an hour and three-quarters before the fire.

Captain Salen asked the neighbors and relatives whether the Tobins, who were married May 15, 1931, had seemed happy together. All replied that Jim and Marie appeared quite happily married. Naturally the officer entertained the theory that the tragedy had developed out of a love triangle, and when the victim's sister, Miss Christine Rishel, of Mineral Ridge, asserted that Marie's dog would fight when attacked, the captain decided that the murderer had been a trusted friend, known by the dog.

Tobin supplied the police with the names of 10 friends, who with their wives and sweethearts formed the circle in which the young couple had moved. He wept intermittently as he supplied this information.

"I can't understand why any one should do this to us," he said. "We had no enemies. It must have been a friend who did this thing."

One by one Captain Salen and his men, assisted by Deputy Sheriffs Cliff Wilson and Abner Good, interviewed and eliminated suspects who furnished alibis. Toward midnight they began to concentrate upon Ray Jutilla, a tall, blonde, powerfully built youth of 20, when he could not give a satisfactory account of his movements during the early hours of the evening. Jutilla, married only a few months, had often visited the Tobin home with his bride.

Viewed Woman's Body Without Emotion.

Jutilla could not remember where he had been at the approximate time of the murder, but he was vehement in his denials of having any connection with the deed. Captain Salen took him to the Gillen undertaking establishment and drew the sheet back from the charred and mutilated body. Deep silence. Jutilla looked at the young woman, lips tight, and without emotion.

"It's too bad," he said then. "Who could have done this terrible thing? She hadn't an enemy in the world."

The police rushed the suspect back to headquarters, and the examination was resumed. Patrolmen Edward Conway and Nelson Johnson joined in the questioning. Two, three, four o'clock passed. Jutilla remained utterly composed. He seemed to be standing the strain much better than his interrogators.

Outside Salen's office reporters from the Youngstown and Warren newspapers watched and waited. The unintelligible frenzy of sound, deadened by barred doors, told them that a suspect was being grilled, but that was all they knew. Nothing had yet been made public about Jutilla and the facts which seemed to incriminate him.

At last the terrified and exhausted prisoner whispered 13 words: "I killed her. She made me mad. I did it. I'll tell you."

A buzzer sounded outside where the reporters were waiting and they all jerked to renewed attention. A stenographer hastened into the captain's office. The clamor of voices had subsided. Another period of waiting, then the door opened and Captain Salen appeared.

"We have the murderer," he said. "Ray Jutilla has confessed. We have a statement."

Jutilla said that he had been a frequent visitor at the Tobin home, usually calling when her husband was at work. He said that he and Marie had been lovers. On the Sunday before the crime he and his wife, Sylvia, and the Tobins had spent the day at the farm of Jim's parents on the Niles-Warren road, about 10 miles from town.

He had visited Marie Tobin at 5 p. m. Wednesday, he said. He knew that Jim had left for work more than an hour before. He and the girl sat on the davenport downstairs for a while, then went upstairs to the bedroom.

Jutilla said that he and Marie

"Two Bits Worth of Fame"

How 24 Youngsters from Dance Palaces Crashed the Studios

By Grace Wilcox

"OH, YEAH! Says you! How'd I like to dance in a picture with Fred Astaire? How'd you like to sing like that Martini guy? You can't fool me, brother. Nobody breaks into moving pictures without a pull. Take your pretty story to somebody else, wise guy. Come on, kid; let's get hot!"

Thus one of the boys at the Mesa Dance Pavilion lost his chance to dance on the set with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Follow the Fleet." His partner, with dewy eyes and a figure that bears no relation to that of the Venus de Milo, looked adoringly at her brave lad, who wasn't a sucker, no sir!

But Pierre Menon, a young Frenchman who advertises cigars, took it easier. He has learned to let the other fellow tell his story; it might be good.

"So?" he questioned. "You want my partner and me to come to RKO-Radio tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. And what do we do when we get there? And how much are we paid?"

Explanations followed and credentials were shown as the RKO scout explained the plan. Pierre Menon and his cute little partner, who dances as lightly as a ribbon fluttering, were the first couple on hand to crash the studio gates.

THIS is the story of 12 young couples who couldn't believe it when lightning struck them.

It is one of those things that can't happen in Hollywood, yet does. If you or you or you had been dancing in a public dance hall somewhere around Los Angeles, and you danced well enough to attract attention, it might have happened to you.

Twenty-four boys and girls will tell you that there is a Santa Claus, that Lady Luck still prowls around and that regardless of what you may be told, it is possible to break into the sacred precincts of a moving picture studio, sans pull, sans beauty, sans an agent and sans Central Casting Bureau. They weren't even passed on by the Hays office.

"And, my gosh, was I excited!" exclaims Margaret Magruder, a little blond who looks like a French doll and who can dance like a firefly on a summer night. "When they told me I was actually going to dance before a movie camera, I couldn't believe it. I didn't eat a bite for two days! Except a doughnut! My gosh, it was terrific."

Because these lads and lassies were chosen from several Los Angeles dance halls, I will draw you a sketch or composite of most of these "spots." They are barn-like places in most instances, but the floor is good and the music adequate. Some of them with eating concessions and bars are more elaborate, with chairs and divans scattered about, a balcony for visitors and an orchestra with a national reputation.

TO THESE places flock the boys and girls who love to dance—and how they dance!

The lynx eye of the RKO scout brightens as he watches that young couple dancing the Varsity jig trot. Pretty thing, the girl, with great blue eyes, a mischievous little bang, a slender figure and wistful smile. The boy, tall and slim, with a long face and an oddly shaped head, leads the girl through some steps that nobody else can follow. They whirl about the dance floor like dancing dervishes. They are intent on winning a cup. They see only each other; they vibrate to the rhythm of the beat, beat, beat of the orchestra, now going to town in "Lady in Red."

Suddenly the dance is over. The scout touches the boy on the arm. He thinks they may have won the cup. No. What? Come to the studio in the morning? Will they? Oh, gee. And how!

YOU wouldn't have argued, either, if you had been Bob Cromer that night. He was spending his last 25 cents on this dance. Why not? He'd rather dance than eat and besides, just recently he had found this nifty little partner. No romance, you understand. Just a girl who can dance.

Only yesterday Bob lost his job as dishwasher at the Beach Club, which closed. Oh, well—dance, dance, dance—who cares? Tomorrow is another day, and it's only a quarter anyway!

Bob Cromer. Strange boy. His mother had been an opera singer in her day. Born in Los Angeles, the boy had gone with his family to Seattle, Tacoma, Portland. Sketchy education, but he managed to get through high school. Only 18, Bob, but things are tough. What of it? Dance, dance, dance—and forget.

Going to a studio. What luck! Anything might happen; anyway doughnuts and coffee for a few days—dance, dance, dance!

And the girl? Dorothy Fleishman hesitated before going to the dance hall tonight. After all, she is worried. What about her mother? What about the mortgage? Why can't she get a job? Other stenographers find work. Why not Dorothy? Oh, well, forget it. Might as well go. Only 15 cents to get in, if you're a girl. Besides, there's that boy who is showing her all those fancy steps. Nice boy, and how he dances! Varsity jig, he calls it. Well, he can't do anything fancy in dancing that she can't follow!

"Going to a studio! Isn't that immense? Isn't it wonderful? Oh, boy—maybe we'll get in. Maybe we'll make a hit. Money, money, money. Will I dance? Just watch me!"

These are the two who have been chosen to appear in the close-ups with Astaire and Miss Rogers. Luck. Perhaps. He down to 25 cents; she with taxes to pay and interest on the mortgage.

HAZEL BURGESS hasn't been having things too easy lately. What does she know except the stage? Didn't she leave home at 16 in order to get into the theater? When times were good, it wasn't so bad. But nowadays—heavens! You have to be able to top Eleanor Powell to get anywhere. Well, anyway, one can dance. Funny thing. Only yesterday she met that old school friend of hers from Kansas City. Can he dance? Say, boy! The "Gandhi," they used to call it. How they can get hot! Well, maybe they can win the cup out of the old meanies tonight.

And the partner? Dick Hildebrandt, swell looking boy, all pep and ginger. Shoe salesman in the daytime. Dancer at night. Look at Dick. Would you think he's the winner of three marathons or walkathons or whatever they are? Takes nerve to stand on your feet for hours and hours and hours. Dick has nerve. Clean chap. Only 21. "Swing It," Hazel. Come on, Dick. Your destiny is about to change, but you don't know it.

That guy over there by the door seems to be getting quite a kick out of your dancing. What? Come to the studio in the morning? Say—will we be there, Hazel? You tell him!

Dick and Hazel won second place with the star dancers, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

Things haven't been too exciting for Hazel. Extra work now and again. Can she use that nice, fat check? And what about you, Dick? Who says you have no right to spend a little money to dance when you'd rather dance than do anything else on earth?

THAT'S Alline Gregg over there, swinging around with that chap. Never guess that Alline has stepped out tonight because her husband wanted to see a movie and she didn't want to go. Alline keeps house and is very keen about her tall, young husband, who likes to dance—in moderation. Keeps house—not much to that. Especially when you like to dance and listen to the music and see the people.

Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, stars of

"Come to the studio? What's that? Will I? Watch for me. I've always wanted to go in the movies." Alline went home the other day with the first check she ever earned in her life. Her quiet, steady husband remarked dryly: "Hope it doesn't go to your head."

Who's this quiet, good-looking young fellow? Can he dance? Watch him! He's going places. Name is John C. Bireline. Born in Texas, attended Bradley University in Peoria, Ill. Lived in Los Angeles long enough to be thoroughly movie-conscious. Works in an office all day. Likes to dance at night. Relaxation. Besides, what's life but a merry-go-round? Fellow either gets on and rides or stays off and watches the others ride. Not the first time John's been in a studio. He knows all the tricks, worked extra for a long time. Maybe this will catch the eye of a director at last. Who knows?

Luabelle Thompson has won lots of cups for her dancing. She is a San Diego girl, but she's in Los Angeles to take a beauty course. Must do something that will bring her a living. What if the great Astaire should say: "Where did you learn that one, Miss—What's-your-name?" But, of course, he won't. Still, there's no harm in wishing.

Let us consider some of the others briefly. John Wilson, graduate of Polytechnic high Mary Conforti, Chicago girl. Always the ballroom dancing. Loves to dance. What did she do with her radio check? Paid for her course at the beauty college.

George Barton is said by one of the boys and girls to be the best dancer among them. Comes from Edmonton, Alberta, and dances for fun. George is a garment worker. Sewing, stitching, stitching. Member of National Guard. Acted as technical director on a William Powell picture once. Technique of National Guard men.

Something he knows all about. French history, East Indian philosophy, economics. A strange, chaotic world, but interesting. Man just take it slowly. Dancing in the studio? Why not? Just been laid off a week anyway. Larry Blackstock has a twin brother. Native son, born in Los Angeles. They had a vaudeville act once, dancing and patter. No more; vaudeville is finished, and now Larry works for a tire and rubber company. Dancing is still his life, but he must eat. Dance with Fred Astaire? A dream, which he and his brother had held between them for years. Is he awake or asleep?

Dorothy and Bob "go to town" in a hot number on the set of "Follow the Fleet" at RKO.

Dorothy Mitchell is 19. Birmingham, Wash., is her birthplace, but she came here to dance with Fanchon & Marco. No money in dancing. A business course provides the bread has scarcely begun the dream in between yet. But he has cups and trophies for dancing. That's his real life.

Bob Johnson started off with a gold spoon. It vanished and he has tried everything since. Alma Gerlach has always danced and played the piano. Just finished at Van Nuys High School. Always wanted to go in pictures. Maybe this is her chance. Lemita Andree, housewife; married twice at 25. Jack Fati, 19. Born in Rhode Island. Works in a print shop. Dances for fun.

And here is a young mother, Lee Williamson; has taught dancing, written poetry and now she has her child. "If we had a little more money, I should be a perfectly happy woman," says Lee, with a wistful smile. "I've been a stenographer, told fortunes, danced. Now I am just a wife and mother—unless I happen to get a call from the studio."

Marjorie Watson is 18. Here is an odd one. She doesn't want to go in the movies. Very nice to experiment, but she can't stand sitting around the sets waiting for something to happen. Dance, dance, dance—that's Marjorie.

THREE of the girls and boys didn't come to the party, so I don't know about them. Except that one is Phyllis MacMurray and she comes from London. Dances with George Barton, the young man from Canada.

You didn't know there was a party? Oh, yes, I gave it. I thought it might be amusing to study a cross-section of American life around the grate fire. A cross-section that may be multiplied by millions more—who want to get into pictures.

And this is the story of the boys and girls from the dance halls around Los Angeles who were discovered by a studio scout and brought before the cameras for "Follow the Fleet," with words and music by Irving Berlin. Dance numbers by Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers and 12 young couples, who have, with few exceptions, never been inside a studio before.

Tonight they are dancing again in the dance halls—praying that Lady Luck may tap them on the shoulder once more. Like the butterfly, they have had their moment in the sun. Will there be another?

and butter, but the dance halls provide the excitement and fun. Inside a studio, actually to see Ginger Rogers dance? What luck! What terrific luck! The check? What girl hasn't use for a check?

THIS can go on indefinitely, but we must learn brevity. "Life can be told in two sentences—birth, death and a dream in between," says the philosopher. Maybe, but it is the time in between that makes the story. "That's What You Think," beats out the orchestra.

She Refuses to Be a Hollywood Captive

Maureen O'Sullivan Lives Her Life and Fears Only Herself

By WILLIAM H. McKEGG.

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN is not a Hollywood captive. By that I mean she is the one exception in the galaxy of the movie great.

Every other star declares herself to be free from all artifice. She says she lives her own life. None does. They can't. Even Garbo cannot escape being a captive. The Garbo legend surrounds her. Everywhere she goes she must be conscious of it.

Hollywood's stars declare that they find complete happiness in their position, money or friends. But they are not sincere in saying so. They couldn't be. They never admit they are occasionally wrong. They never confess they have weaknesses of any sort. They hide their shortcomings. Their frailties are kept in a dark room. Yet they insist they know themselves inside out!

"I don't know myself yet," Maureen once remarked to me at her home. "How very clever these other people must be who declare they have learned all they need know of themselves. Only outsiders misunderstand them," they say. Temptations of any kind never come anywhere near them.

"Since coming to Hollywood I have faced wrong and know what it means. But," she added, by way of explanation, "it has helped me to gain a better understanding of myself."

"I've heard other girls say, 'I take my mother's advice, for she loves me and knows what is best.' Now I don't see how that has anything to do with it. I love my mother, but I did not accept everything she told me. I've always wanted to find out things for myself."

"Ever since I was a child, I've had the firm conviction that my only way to know anything was to learn to know myself. Hollywood is, I'll admit, the best place for that."

"At home I was taught to do right. That is, to hold fast to religion, to take things for granted. I had my doubts about everything. For it seemed to me to be accepting everything by blind faith. And ignorance isn't innocence."

"While I was in France at finishing school, I met an English boy at the home of some Paris friends. He was the most interesting and engaging fellow I'd ever met. In his 22 years he had on his own declaration, been, seen, and done everything but murder."

"I was warned that he was not a 'nice' young man for me to know. Blindly, I took that verdict, and never turned up at parties when I knew he'd be there. But now I believe that I lost someone who might have turned into a very good friend."

Maureen is the type of girl that everyone wants to advise and to guide. People seem to take it for granted that she must be saved from herself.

"I wish I were six different Maureens," she remarked one day. "I meet certain people and I want to be like them. Sometimes I feel very elevated and want to be with someone who knows a great deal. Again, I feel I want to be with someone who likes to have no responsibilities but plenty of excitement. Another time, I want to have only a very worldly person near me."

No wonder, hearing her speak this way, Hollywood offers itself as her guardian!

Hollywood has insisted on poking a finger into Maureen's private life and emotions. For four years her name has been coupled with that of John Farrow, the writer.

In a town of romances, where the least acquaintance is regarded as an eternal passion, the romance of Maureen O'Sullivan and John Farrow has gone against the grain. Everything has been done to break it up. The people that know the least say the most.

In 1934, at the wedding of Carmelita

Geraghty—another actress—and Carey Wilson—another writer—Maureen caught the bride's bouquet. You know what that means; marriage within the year, Maureen told me so herself.

Maureen, however, braved all superstitious ideas. Today she wears a diamond engagement ring, but that is all.

Maureen follows rules for living. No one can change them. I remember once, at a party, someone started to tell what was obviously an unsavory joke. As it was being told, with its inference looming ahead, Maureen got up and left the room.

That was right, according to her own thinking. But what other Hollywood player would have such courage?

Don't think Maureen poses as an innocent little wall-flower. She speaks often very frankly. She is honest and truthful. She has often annoyed her acquaintances with her conscious unconsciousness. She changes quickly in moods.

I recall that, just before his marriage, while working with her in "Tarzan," Johnny Weissmuller called to take her to dinner. At 7 o'clock he arrived. But there was no response from the O'Sullivan apartment. He came back every 15 minutes till 8. Then, putting his Tarzan mood into practice, he banged at the door.

Maureen had fallen asleep and did not awaken until Tarzan Weissmuller all but broke down the front door.

She always wants you to understand these unlooked-for events. "I am never aware of willingly disappointing friends," she said, when she was once 40 minutes late. "Those that like me ought to know I like them too well."

Several years ago, during Farrow's absence in Europe, Maureen was seen at places with James Dunn. She liked Jimmy a lot. In fact she let him see she liked him.

Maureen has been accused of "using" her acquaintances as her moods vary. But Maureen is a many-sided personality. Many in one. Each, I think, possesses her mind at different times. And then it is that she seeks an individual to correspond to her fleeting mood.

Maureen O'Sullivan photographed in the garden of her Hollywood home. She has just finished another picture with Johnny Weissmuller.

"I am not afraid of other people," she stressed, when informed that her ways of reflection were dangerous. "I am afraid only of myself, I am trying to know myself. And to know yourself is the most difficult thing."

So far as danger is concerned, Maureen is quite free. She is too frank, too honest, to run into danger. Her rise in pictures has been done in a fascinating way. It has grown from amateurishness into brilliance.

As Maureen has developed herself in her years in the film mecca, so have her histrionic talents formed into the true things.

You either like Maureen or dislike her. There seems no half measure in her case. She has always been cleverly aware of things. I have known her since her entrance to Hollywood, six years ago. In her first year, she told me what she intended to do.

"Hollywood accepted me as a simple little girl," she remarked. "For the parts I was first given to portray, that personality fitted in. I did not bother to insist that I had a mind of my own. Yet I saw that if I had to pose as the constant ingenue of gentle mien, I'd soon become strained and upset."

"Later, I realized that by being myself I'd get the best results. So far, my decision has brought about good results."

In a town of artificiality and synthetic glamour, Maureen stands out like a crystal-clear diamond amid the jewelry department at Woolworth's.

Other players get dimmed and unreal through creating a false front. They become Hollywood captives.

Maureen O'Sullivan brought the wisdom of the old world with her. She has planned out her mode of living, her career as an actress, and her future—all free of captivity.

Chaplin News is Good News

One of the significant things about Charlie Chaplin is that whenever he makes a public appearance he is followed by a crowd of youngsters from five to 10 years old. . . . It is interesting to note that only a very few of these have ever seen the star in a picture. . . . His last film, "City Lights," was released nearly five years ago.

There are two tenants at the Charlie Chaplin studios who are as valuable to the great comedian as any of the people who help him make his picture. . . . They are Teddy, the dog; and Topaze, the cat. . . . When Charlie leaves Hollywood he also leaves complete instructions for their care and feeding. . . .

Charlie Chaplin is the only producer who has never employed a film cutter. He prefers to cut his own film, foot by foot.

In a recent poll in Italy, the question asked was: "If four out of five people died who were important to the world and only one could survive, whom would you choose?" Charlie Chaplin was almost unanimously elected as the one.

I WAS A NERVOUS WRECK!

It came upon me all of a sudden. The least physical or mental effort exhausted me. I had frequent headaches—lost my appetite, couldn't sleep, my nerves were shattered. I was a wreck. If you're in the same miserable condition, send me your name—a postal will do—and I'll tell you how I regained my health and happiness in a simple, inexpensive way. Lieut. Taking Steps to PERFECTION

Most legs start life in good shape; it's the treatment they get later that counts. Here are the most famous youthful legs in Hollywood—Shirley Temple's.

By Grace Grandville

HOLLYWOOD.

LAST week-end I went down to Palm Springs, where motion picture queens, local Blue Bookers and Eastern millionaires meet and mingle in the warm desert sunshine. They all wear shorts. It amounts to a uniform. Palm Springs, therefore, is a place of exposed knees. One sees famous knees, aristocratic knees, 18-carat knees; beautiful knees, knobby knees and pudgy knees. It's amazing. Anyway, I came home leg conscious.

Why do so few women have attractive legs? Pretty faces are not half so scarce. Yet practically all children have nice legs. It seems to be a birthright which is lost too frequently with maturity. Something should be done about it. So, unless you can beam with proud satisfaction upon your nether reflection in a mirror when you are clad in a play suit that ends well above the knees, pay particular attention to what follows.

There is very seldom anything wrong with the bony structure providing a girl is neither bow-legged nor knock-kneed. Both conditions are much more uncommon than they used to be. We have learned so much about vitamins that children needn't have rickets any more. Also, a tendency to such misbehavior of the bones can be corrected very early in life by lifts added to the proper shoes under the direction of qualified experts.

Unfortunately nothing can be done for adult bow-legs and knock-knees except to show them as little as possible. Longer skirts are merciful and carefully chosen shoes of flattering line help a great deal. So do dark-toned, fine-gauged hose. One of the biggest stars in Hollywood has definitely bowed legs. But she has been so clever about it that you don't know.

VERY well then, if the bones are all right, it is the development of muscle and the deposits of fat that are wrong. They can be changed. Contours can be improved always. It's hard work, but it can be done. I'm not pretending that every girl can attain the divine symmetry of legs like Marlene Dietrich's, Claudette Colbert's, Patricia Ellis' or Ruby Keeler's. I'll admit that perfection like the lovely legs of Toni Lanier, which were insured for $20,000, is born, not made. You can have a pretty good second best, though, if you care enough to work for it.

Ankles aren't possible to hide any more. They must be good. It's sometimes sad, but invariably a man's glance jumps directly from the face to the ankles of a pretty girl who has attracted his attention. And every woman with thick ankles is painfully conscious of them. Here is a simple exercise which will reduce them. It will, really. One girl under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox took off an inch from each ankle by doing it faithfully. An inch makes a lot of difference around your ankle as well as on the end of your nose.

Sit in an ordinary chair with an ordinary pair of shoes on and rest both heels on the floor. Now draw an imaginary circle in the air with the toe of each shoe. You can do the exercise simultaneously with both feet or alternate. The grand thing about it is that you can do it anywhere and almost any time. Stenographers can give themselves an ankle beautifying treatment while sitting at their desks typing letters for the boss, and still keep their minds on their work.

ANOTHER variation of the same exercise I heard Joan Crawford recommend to a girl several years ago. Stretch the legs straight out from the seat of the chair and then draw imaginary circles with your toes, making each circle as large as possible. Joan also suggested this: with the legs elevated, point the toes straight out hard and then draw them forward toward the body. Don't bend your knees. You are supposed to repeat that rapidly 20 or 30 times with all the muscles tense. Joan has swell legs.

Walking up and down stairs is a famous ankle reducer if the body is raised on the toes as each step is taken. The business of stair climbing also develops calves which are too spindly or tautens flabby ones, as the need may be. Less wearing and almost as good for the ankles and lower legs is stationary rising up and down on the toes 15 or 20 times daily. Fling your arms high as you do it and take deep breaths, and you include the whole body in the benefits.

FOUR sets of muscles control the locomotion of your legs. In the back and sides of the hips are muscles that rotate the thigh and permit us to raise and lower ourselves. That's the set that seems to have such an affinity for fat as we approach middle age. Then there are two sets of strong muscles in the thigh. One set sends the knee forward and back. The other moves the whole leg forward from the hip joint. The point in mentioning any of them is that none of the four sets can be permitted to get lazy if the legs are to be developed perfectly.

Dancers strenuously exercise all these muscles in the every-day routine of dance training. That, in simple truth, is why dancing legs are the most beautiful. Most actresses have had dance training; it's part of the game. And that is why as a class they have better than average legs.

Well, you can't all take dancing lessons. Neither, I suppose, can you all swim, which is the next best thing. But you can all go for walks, long walks, up hill and down dale. In the course of such a walk all the leg muscles will be exercised. The more they are exercised the better looking your legs will be.

kind to the thighs, knees and calves. With your feet together and your arms outstretched for balance, try making a deep knee bend with the right leg while stretching the left leg out in front of you, stiff kneed, and not quite touching the floor. If you can do it on the right side you can do it on the left side. But even Eleanor Powell would tell you she couldn't make it the first time she tried, especially since to complete the exercise you are supposed to rise again to a standing position, still without touching the extended leg to the floor. You'll have painfully sore muscles afterward. But if you seriously want results these exercises will give them to you.

About knees. All the hip and thigh exercises affect the knees. Squatting will keep them young and supple. Don't bend over to pick up things from the floor and dust the chair rungs—squat. Here is a little specialty number for those sisters, and their name is legion, who develop lumps of fat at the back of the knees. Lie face down on a bed with the lower legs, up to and just above the knee joints, extending over the edge. Raise and lower the feet by bending the knees. To do away with flabbiness along the inside of the knees and thighs, lie on the side with the legs up to the hip joint hanging over the edge of the bed. Then pull the upper leg back up on the bed and keep it there. Now raise the lower leg, the one of the side which supports your body, straight up as high as it will go and then lower it as far as possible. Repeat until the leg is tired, then change to the other side. Do the same thing with the other leg.

That will be about all for today. For a parting thought—remember, legs are made for action. They deteriorate with idleness.

quarreled, that he struck her with his fist as she stood near the bed. The blow knocked her over the bed and she lay still. He bent over her and realized that he had broken her jaw. He began to slap her face in the hope of reviving her. Falling, he grabbed a heavy ash tray and struck her in the head with it.

Feared Dog Might Bark, So He Killed It.

He went out of the room and saw the dog playing. In his panic he feared that she would bark suddenly, and so he picked up the unsuspecting little terrier and . . . killed it. He dropped the body on the bed, to which he had dragged Marie Tobin. Then the murderer spread newspapers around the bed.

But he did not start the fire yet. It was still light outside. He wandered about for an hour, waiting for the darkness. He moved from the front to the rear, peered out the windows, pulled a cupboard against the side door. At about 8:30 he set a match to the papers and fled as the flames began to leap about the bed.

He said he ran east to Park avenue, walking as he crossed each intersection and running again between blocks, circled to a gasoline station at Chestnut and Market streets, where he met a friend. The friend drove him to the home of his wife's parents, where she had been staying.

What about the ice pick found in the room? He insisted he had no recollection of stabbing Marie with this weapon.

Jutilla was not well known in Warren, for he had gone about mostly by himself, and had no close friends. As he had no job, he had been living with his parents on Parkman street, while his bride lived with her own people on Grandview avenue. He had known Jim Tobin and his wife for two years.

Crime Seemed to Follow Pattern.

Recently he had helped dig a cellar under the Tobin home and had also done some painting and repair work. According to him, it was during this period, when he was so much around the house, that he and Marie became intimate. However, the reader of this story may feel, and rightly so, that more evidence is needed to prove that there ever was an affair between Jutilla and his friend's wife. Thus far the crime seems to follow the usual pattern of a virtuous wife struck down while resisting an attempted assault.

The prisoner elaborated upon his story in the trial. But the reader will still probably feel unsatisfied as to its truth.

Angry crowds began to gather the evening after the youth confessed and he was removed for safe-keeping to another county. His family hired Attorney Jay Buchwalter for the difficult task of defending the son, and the trial opened December 9 in the Trumbull county common pleas court before Judge Dewey B. McVicker. The prosecutor was George Secrest.

The highlight of the trial was the defendant's own testimony as drawn from him by Attorney Buchwalter. Jutilla admitted that he had desired the wife of his friend for two years, and the more he saw her on the Saturday nights when various young people gathered at the Tobin home the more he lusted for her.

As pictured by the defense, these Saturday night affairs were rather wild and abandoned. Sometimes they lasted until 7 o'clock Sunday morning, said the defendant.

"During these parties did you always stay in one room?" inquired his attorney.

"No. We generally scattered around."

"Were some of the people in the bedrooms?"

"Yes."

"More than one couple at a time?"

"Yes."

"Did they stay long?"

"Well, I used to go in myself."

"Were the lights on or off?"

"They were generally turned off, especially after midnight."

Jim Tobin attended these gatherings but the time came when Jutilla, according to his story, was visiting Marie while her husband was at work. Sometimes he would find two or three young men there when he arrived. And frequently he would call in the afternoon and remain at the house after Jim left for the factory.

Came the evening when Jutilla took Marie to a picture show with another fellow. After the show they had some ice cream, then went to the Tobin place. Presently the other fellow left.

"Tell the jury what happened then, Ray," said Attorney Buchwalter.

"I asked Marie if she would step out on her husband."

"What did she say?"

"She said I could kiss her, but nothing else."

He saw her the next day, he continued in response to the lawyer's questions, but it was not until three or four days later that he and Marie became intimate for the first time. After that they were together about once a week. She never resisted his advances, he told Buchwalter and the jury.

"After you were married to Sylvia did you carry on your intimacies with Marie?"

"Only two or three times."

And what happened on the evening of Wednesday, May 22? If you have believed Ray Jutilla's story up to this point, then perhaps you will believe the rest of it. If you find it open to question, then his version of the homicide will also arouse grave doubts.

His account followed the lines of his confession. He said that he took some money from his wife's pocket-book, bought some whisky, which he drank, then went to the Tobin home. He found Marie sitting on the davenport, scantily clad, and followed her upstairs into the bedroom, where an argument ensued. In the midst of it, he struck her.

Court adjourned at this point on December 12. The next morning Jutilla slashed his wrists with a spoon he had sharpened on the concrete of his cell. The trial was postponed until the 19th.

Prosecutor Secrest failed to shake the pale defendant in his story. The capacity crowd in the courtroom leaned forward to catch his almost inaudible answers.

"Isn't it true that you never had intimate relations with Mrs. Tobin and that you struck her down because she refused your advances?" shouted Secrest.

"No, it isn't."

"Why did you hit her?"

"Because of what she said to me."

"Isn't it true that you had to hit her with the ash stand because if you did not you were afraid she would tell her husband that you came to her house and assaulted her?"

"No, that isn't true." He was "still drunk and felt dizzy" after hitting his victim, he said. Then he had decided to erase everything by burning down the house. "It seemed a long time until dark," he added—which was probably the truest statement in all his testimony.

Various rebuttal witnesses flatly contradicted Jutilla's assertions about the Saturday night parties and the alleged affair. Jim Tobin, who had heard the defendant brand his dead wife as an immoral woman, stated that the relationship between Marie and Ray had been casual, and that "there was nothing intimate about it." Marie's sister, Christine, also asserted she knew of no intimacy in the friendship between the victim and her murderer.

The jury of six men and six women did not believe the prisoner's story, either. They quickly found him guilty of murder in the first degree on December 21, and after seven hours of wrangling over the penalty they fixed his punishment at life imprisonment.

Six Pairs (12 Photos) Constitution Stars Offered This Week

Two more attractive pictures of well-known movie stars appear below, and they are mighty popular stars, too. Pictures will continue to be offered in Screen and Radio Magazine of the Sunday Constitution in pairs until and including February 2. Thereafter they will be offered in groups of eight pictures.

Coupons will continue each week as now, showing two pictures. These coupons are to be clipped and held until four pairs, or eight pictures have been offered under the new plan.

This week the photos of Myrna Loy and Robert Taylor are offered. Next week, January 26, the pictures of May West and James Cagney will be offered.

This is the sixth week that we have offered portraits in pairs. As a special inducement and accommodation to those desiring favorite screen and radio pictures which have heretofore been offered by The Constitution, this offer is made:

If you have not saved the other five coupons, viz: No. 1, December 15, Rochelle Hudson and Ralph Bellamy; No. 2, December 22, the late Lon Chaney and Joan Blondell; No. 3, December 29, Randolph Scott and

Reviews of the New Films By The Boulevardier

"Last of the Pagans."

One of the better South Sea films, but not sufficiently different from others to be distinctive. The Eskimo Mala and Lotus Long give good performances, with an excellent supporting cast of Tahitians. Recommended. (M.-G.-M.)

If "Last of the Pagans" had been among the first of the South Sea films, it could be highly recommended as entertainment. Unfortunately, it follows a considerable number of pictures dealing with the native life of that region, the idyllic scenery, and the struggle between white man and Polynesian, and it lacks a plot sufficiently different to make the film distinctive.

Nevertheless, it is well up among the best of the South Sea pictures and worth seeing both for the authentic presentation of Polynesian background—M.-G.-M. sent Director Richard Thorpe with his crew to Polynesia, and hundreds of natives help the story unfold—and for the intelligent acting of the two principals, Mala and Lotus Long. Mala and Lotus will be remembered as the principals in "Eskimo." Mala is an Eskimo.

In the story, Mala captures "Natita" in a raid on an enemy island and takes her back, as his woman, to his own home. The chief, coveting "Natita," signs Mala up for practical bondage in the white man's phosphate mine many days' sail distant and takes "Natita" for his Number One wife. "Natita" stows away on a schooner, reaches the phosphate island, is snatched again from Mala's arms, but—with the help, incidentally, of a typhoon rejoins him, and the two sail together for an uninhabited islet where they can rule their own lives.

From the start of the picture, with native women swimming below a foamy waterfall, to the end when Mala and "Natita" shove their boat silently into the Pacific swell, the action proceeds as if none of the actors were aware of the camera, a fine unconsciousness quite foreign to Hollywood tradition. Crowds of Polynesians are handled with skill by the director, the illusion of being an actual on-looker at their activities heightened by the fact that almost all the dialog is in Polynesian. Subtitles explain the meaning, though the acting is so graphic that subtitles are scarcely needed.

One of the best sequences is that in which Mala sets out to woo the woman whom he has captured. The wooing proceeds not only with fire, but with delicate humor. Mala brings an offering of shellfish, strutting before the hut in which his lady is ensconced, proclaiming himself a great hunter. "Hunter of shrimps?" the lady inquires, with a glance at his offering.

While the whole village chuckles at his discomfiture, Mala, chin furiously set, rushes for his canoe, puts out to sea, has a ferocious struggle with a big shark, brings this trophy to the lady's hut. It is a long while since there has been a more expert bit of acting than Mala's when he stretches the great shark on the ground, plants his foot upon it, raises an eyebrow and begins to chant again his song of the hunter. The circumstance that this time the lady isn't home does not detract from the comedy of the situation.

People interested in primitive life, people who have not seen too many South Sea epics, will get most enjoyment from "Last of the Pagans." Even those who have seen each South Sea film in turn will note a sincere, poetic air about this one which was missing from some of its predecessors.

The Eskimo Mala and Lotus in a scene from the South Seas romance, "Last of the Pagans," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production filmed, in part, in Polynesia.

"Ceiling Zero."

James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are flying buddies again, with Stuart Erwin in one of his best roles. An unusually gripping picture. Recommended. Warner Brothers.

Only too seldom does a picture come along with so generous a supply of suspense and excitement as are to be found in "Ceiling Zero."

The film, which deals with commercial aviation, creates most of its suspense through Zero."

The films, which deals with commercial aviation, creates most of its suspense through the emotions of people on the ground, in the Newark field office of an air mail and passenger company. Surprisingly little of the action takes place in the air, and the effect is vividly dramatic when the executives gather about a radio telephone on an office desk, call to an airman lost in the dense that darkens the office windows, and set out desperately to "talk him down" with directions and altitude data as he tries to find the field.

As Dizzy Davis, ace flier and ex-war aviator, James Cagney plays with consistent strength a strangely unsympathetic character. He alternates between the attractive and the contemptible almost to the end, when he atones for past offenses by a feat of reckless heroism.

Dizzy, the Peck's bad boy of the airways, believes rules were made to be broken. He breaks the company's rules with approximate impunity because of his splendid reputation as a pilot. As a man his reputation is not so good. He's the philandering type, a girl in every airport, and there are moments when the spectator despises him.

These moments arrive, for example, when the pilot's attempts to involve Tommy, a girl flier (June Travis), in a superficial love affair, when Dizzy knows Tommy is engaged to one of his fellow pilots.

Stuart Erwin, as Tex Clark, a pilot, comes close to stealing the picture. Tex runs into fog. After a period of terrible tension, with his receiving set dead so that he hears none of the instructions from the ground, he comes down just outside the office windows in a crackup that spreads fire half the length of the field and constitutes a "special effect" of which Director Howard Hawks may well be proud.

In addition to an absorbing plot, "Ceiling Zero" has clear-cut characterization and capable acting. Pat O'Brien, inevitably present in a Cagney film, is the airport manager. Isabel Jewell, as the wife of Tex Clark, denounces Dizzy in a manner not easily forgotten. Mike Owens (Garry Owen), a former flier whose brain has been unsettled by a crash, and "Buzz" (James Bush), who mans the telephone, are memorable. The tingling excitement Bush puts into a telephone call is extraordinary.

The picture has some faults which seem inexcusable in view of its general excellence. At one point the direction appears to curdle, with shots of machinery turning around and people making speeches about the glory of the United States mails. But the few dull spots fade before sequences so gripping that they make the beholder forget that what he sees are mere shadows on a screen.

"King of Burlesque."

A musical with Warner Baxter wistfully romantic and Jack Oakie so funny that he steals the show. Alice Fay and Dixie Dunbar head the song and dance department. Recommended. Twentieth Century-Fox.

Warner Baxter in a rather serious role, wistful but flecked with romance, is billed as the lead in "King of Burlesque." But to Jack Oakie in his cleverest comedy mood goes credit for turning this musical into the bright much-ado-about-nothing which it was evidently meant to be.

The film is largely Oakie; and largely, by the way, is the correct adjective, for the renowned Oakie diet seems to have been in abeyance.

Gay dialog lifts the film over threadbare places in the plot, though one of the funniest of the jokes (the censors may pounce on it) is a mere wordless look from Oakie after a remark by Baxter about blonds. Some beautiful dances help, too, and half a dozen new songs of which the catchiest are "Shooting High" and "Merry-Go-Round."

In the dance and song department the biggest single item of help is a personality not yet widely known to films, Dixie Dunbar. A small dynamo in tap shoes. Dixie whisking about among a chorus goes far to divert the minds from its troubles.

The story, not too old and certainly not too new, goes backstage to find Kerry Bolton (Warner Baxter), who moves his popular burlesque show uptown against the advice of his henchman, Joe Cooney (Oakie). Bolton marries an aristocrat from Park Avenue, Rosalind Cleve (Mona Barrie), when all the time his burlesque troupe dancer, Pat (Alice Faye), loves him.

Bolton puts on such high-class shows after going uptown that he loses his money. In a short while he likewise loses his wife.

Then Pat finances a show for him, paying Kokolpeck (Gregory Ratoff) to pretend that he instead of she is the angel. The show succeeds, and what do you think? Pat and Bolton marry.

The picture could be definitely improved by eliminating several surplus dancers and singers and scenes. Like most musical comedies on celluloid, this one is too long and has a tendency to grow a dozen dances where three would be plenty. Except for and in spite of these tiresome intervals, "King of Burlesque" (and that's an inane title, too) is good fun.

Recent pictures which have been reviewed and recommended in Screen & Radio Weekly are as follows: "Annie Oakley" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "Stars Over Broadway" (Warner Bros.); "Mary Burns, Fugitive" (Paramount); "So Red the Rose" (Paramount); "Ah, Wilderness" (M.-G.-M.); "Crime and Punishment" (Columbia); "I Dream Too Much" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "The Story of Louis Pasteur" (Warner Bros.); "Two Faces" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "The Littlest Rebel" (Twentieth Century-Fox); "Tale of Two Cities" (M.-G.-M.); "Seven Keys to Baldpate" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "Last of the Pagans" (M.-G.-M.); "The Bride Comes Home" (Paramount); "We're Only Human" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "Riff Raff" (M.-G.-M.); "Chatterbox" (R.-K.-O.-Radio); "Two in the Dark" (R.-K.-O.-Radio).

Eddy Will Not Desert Screen

With both radio and concert stage beckoning, Nelson Eddy will continue in his sensational career as a film star.

He was given a long-term contract at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the studio which discovered him and made him a star.

The contract was signed the same day on which Eddy finished "Rose Marie," his second major M-G-M musical and his first since the smash hit, "Naughty Marietta."

Like its predecessor, "Rose Marie" co-stars Jeanette MacDonald, with W. S. Van Dyke as director and Hunt Stromberg producing.

Amazingly successful, it has been shown in film magazine polls that he receives more fan mail than any other screen star.

With "Rose Marie" completed, Eddy left soon after New Year's on a four-month leave of absence from the studio for a tour in which he will be seen and heard by more than 750,000 persons.

The Lone Boswell Carries On

By Hilda Cole

CONNIE BOSWELL, radio's Maid of New Orleans, paused during her rehearsal with Ray Noble's orchestra for the current Coca Cola series over CBS, to explain why she is carrying on alone this season without her two harmonizing sisters, Martha and Vet.

"We're delaying all definite plans for the trio," Connie says. "Mostly on account of Vet. She's down South now nursing her new husband, John Paul Jones, through some sinus trouble. When Johnny's better, he may be sent to South America—he's an engineer for an oil company—and Vet may go along with him. Martha and I want her to do exactly as she likes, so we're not making any commitments for the trio until Vet makes up her mind."

"And Martha—where's she?"

"Down in New Orleans visiting mother. She might marry a New York man soon, but she's about as indefinite with her plans as Vet. We may go on together, and we may not. I want the kids to be happy first and foremost. I'd miss them terribly—I do now—but I'll carry on alone in the meantime."

CONNIE has been the guiding star of the famous trio since they began as an instrumental outfit in New Orleans, as children. They have already fulfilled their ambition to become top ranking radio stars. Now, if it happens that Martha and Vet prefer home life to careers, Connie will continue as a single star instead of one of a constellation. She has always been famous in her own right, having done solos on almost all of their programs.

With Martha and Vet away, and more time on her hands, Connie is launching a new side career—song writing. Her genius for arranging is well known among musicians, and now she is carrying it one step further.

ENERGETIC

Connie finds time not only to write songs, but to paint excellent pictures and teach her bulldog, Buzz, to do tricks as astonishing as those of canine circus performers.

Buzz, incidentally, was given to Connie by Eddie Lang, famous guitarist, before his death. Buzz can croon like Bing Crosby and ring a dinner bell when he's hungry.

When asked how she finds time to tutor Buzz, write songs and cover canvases with rich colors, besides rehearsing and performing on the radio, Connie waves a hand in a quick deprecatory gesture.

"When I hear people talking about what a long time they have to rehearse for half hour and hour programs, it makes me laugh," she said. "Radio nowadays is nothing compared with what we had to put up with when we started singing. We've worked hard these last five years."

Compared to the Boswells' routine when they were on their way up as a trio five years ago in California, Connie's present schedule is just loafing.

EACH day except Sunday the sisters had a 12 to 2 program of constant performing on the Warner Brothers station. The sponsor changed every 15 minutes, but the girls kept right on. Russ Colombo was also featured on that show with them, but occasionally he was called away for picture work and the entire program was on their shoulders.

"We did everything. I whistled solos, sang solos, did piano duets with Martha, Martha did classic piano solos, we did trio work, instrumental and vocal, Vet did sax solos.

After that two-hour grind, the girls hurried home to their small apartment near the studio and rested for a while. Then they reported back for a 4:30 to 6 p. m. program, doing four numbers with Everett Hoagland's band.

Three nights a week the sisters put on a special program over the same station, Connie soloed on her own program twice a week, and Martha appeared as a stooge, Connie Boswell, carrying on without her sisters, is heard over CBS with Ray Noble's orchestra.

"Samophone," in a black-face dialog program.

Besides that, the three were responsible for about two transcription records a week. There were five numbers on each side, so it amounted to doing 20 numbers.

THEY also "side-miked" in pictures. Which, in those days, meant that the trio often doubled for the voices of a whole troupe of singing chorus girls on the screen. They recall "side-miking" in a picture where an up-and-coming young star, Dixie Lee (later Mrs. Bing Crosby), danced. At that time the girls often ran into Bing; he was one of the Rhythm Boys.

"Looking back on it now—I don't see how we did it," Connie laughs.

The girls were, all told, making quite a lot of money. But Connie kept her two younger sisters down to a strict budget. Fifty dollars a month for their small apartment. Ten dollars a week for food. They limited themselves to little more than $100 a month on expenditure, banked the rest.

IN 1931, Harry Leedy became their manager. Connie, Vet and Martha had saved thousands of dollars, enough for independence. They set out for New York and Harry Leedy had little difficulty placing them, first on guest appearances, then on a commercial series.

They worked hard at guest appearances, too—almost as hard as they had on the Coast. During one cigaret series, they alternated in shows at the Brooklyn Paramount and the New York Paramount, singing with Bing Crosby one week and Russ Colombo the next. They went through the same routine with both crooners, doing "hot licks" in St. Louis Blues.

The last program on which the sisters were featured together emanated last season from the Coast, where they were co-starred with Bing Crosby.

Then Vet's romance came into the picture, Martha went home—and Connie, the lone Boswell, keeps busy in New York.

Will you please tell me who was in the cast of "Top Hat" and the characters they played? When was the picture released and from what studio? Who was the director? What famous song writer wrote the music and songs for it?

ASTAIRE ADMIRER.

TO SETTLE

a friendly argument, will you please state whether Hal Skelly appeared in "Burlesque" on the screen as well as on the stage. I remember him on the stage, but it seems to me he had a similar role in a picture by another name, although I may be mistaken. My friend insists that it was "Burlesque." What has become of him?

READER.

Hal Skelly had the leading male role in "Burlesque" on the stage. It was later made into a picture as "The Dance of Life," and he was featured. Skelly was killed when a train struck the truck he was driving in the East in June, 1934.

Please tell us the cast of "Baby Face Harrington." Was that a gangster photoplay?

JACK AND JILL.

Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel, Harvey Stephens, Eugene Pallette, Nat Pendleton, Ruth Selwyn, Donald Meek, Dorothy Lively, Edward Nugent, Robert Livingston, Stanley Fields, Raymond Brown, Wade Boteler, Bradley Page, Richard Carle, G. Pat Collins, Claude Gillingwater. It was a farce comedy.

Who was in the cast of "Forty-Second Street" and when was that picture made? What studio made it?

MUSICAL FAN.

Warner Baxter, Bebe Daniels, George Brent, Una Merkel, Ruby Keeler, Guy Kibbee, Ned Sparks, Dick Powell, Ginger Rogers, George E. Stone, Eddie Nugent, Allen Jenkins, Robert McWade, Harry Axt, Clarence Nordstrom, Henry B. Walthall. Released in March, 1933. Warner Bros.

Kindly tell me the age, height, weight and coloring of Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell. What pictures have they appeared in together? Are they going to make a picture called "Navy Sweethearts" and, if so, when will it be ready for release.

DOTTY.

Miss Keeler is 22, 5 feet 4 inches, 105 pounds, brown hair, blue eyes; Powell is 29, 6 feet, 172 pounds, red hair, blue eyes. They have appeared together in "Gold Diggers of 1933," "Footlight Parade," "Dames," "Flirtation Walk," "Shipmates Forever." The title of "Shipmates Forever" was changed several times before release and the name you mention may have been one of them. No such title is now scheduled.

PLEASE give some information about Lili Damita.

MAM'SELLE.

Miss Damita was born in Paris, July 10, 1907, and educated in convents in Portugal, Spain and Greece, her mother being a professional dancer. Lili was trained for the stage in Belgium and was popular in Paris and other Continental cities as a dancer and singer before she came to America. She has appeared in pictures here and abroad and also has been on the New York stage. Most recently she has been in Hollywood appearing in pictures. She recently married Errol Flynn, Irish actor imported to play the title role of the picture "Captain Blood."

When and where was Melvyn Douglas born? What is his height, weight and coloring? Is he married? Wasn't he on the stage and a stock actor before he became prominent in pictures?

MINERVA D.

Born in Macon, Ga., April 5, 1901; 6 feet 2 inches, 180 pounds, fair hair, brown eyes. Married. Stage actor before entering pictures, and continues to alternate between the stage and screen.

I used to be a great fan of Billie Dove's and have often wondered why she is not seen in pictures any more. Please describe her looks to me.

JOHNNY BOY.

Miss Dove married and retired. Her last picture was "Cock of the Air," with Chester Morris, made in 1932 at United Artists Studios. She is 5 feet 6 inches, 119 pounds, brown hair, hazel eyes.

Please give the age, height, weight, coloring of James Dunn, Kay Francis, George Brent. Is Emma Dunn Jimmie Dunn's mother?

JIMMY'S GIRL.

Dunn is 30, 6 feet, 157 pounds, dark brown hair, blue eyes; Miss Francis 36, 5 feet 5 inches, 112 pounds, brown hair, brown eyes; Brent 31, 6 feet 1 inch, 170 pounds, black hair, hazel eyes. No relation.

PLEASE give the names of the pictures in which Ross Alexander has appeared. What is his next picture?

A ROSS FAN.

"The Wiser Sex," "Social Register," "Flirtation Walk," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Backfire," with Patricia Ellis, and "Applesauce," with Anita Louise, will be his next pictures.

When and where was Ricardo Cortez born and what does he look like? Is he married?

A FAN.

Born in Vienna, Sept. 19, 1899; 6 feet 1 inch, 175 pounds, black hair, brown eyes. Married.

WHAT has become of Louise Dresser, who often was the wife of Will Rogers in his pictures? Please give a short biography of her and what she looks like off the screen. Was she ever a stage actress?

AN ADMIRER.

Miss Dresser has not retired, although she has not been seen in pictures recently. Born in Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5, 1882; 5 feet 7 inches, 160 pounds. She has blond hair and blue eyes and looks in real life as she does on the screen, unless she is playing a role that requires character make-up. She was widely known as a legitimate actress before going into pictures several years ago.

Please print a short biography and description of George Raft. Please give the pictures he has played in. Give the casts and characters of "Bolero" and "Limehouse Blues."

MIMI.

Born in New York, Sept. 27, 1899; 5 feet 10 inches, 165 pounds, black hair, brown eyes. Played professional baseball, fought in prize ring and danced in night clubs before going into pictures. "Hush Money," "Quick Millions," "Scarface," "Dancers in the Dark," "Night After Night," "Undercover Man," "If I Had a Million," "The Eagle and the Hawk," "Pick Up," "Midnight Club," "The Bowery," "All of Me," "Bolero," "Trumpet Blows," "Limehouse Blues," "Rumba," "Stolen Harmony," "The Glass Key," "Every Night at Eight."

"Bolero" cast: Raoul deBarre, George Raft; Helen, Carole Lombard; Annette, Sally Rand; Leona, Frances Drake; Mike deBarre, William Frawley; Lord Coray, Raymond Milland; Lucy, Gloria Shea; Lady d'Argon, Gertrude Michael; Theater Manager, Del Henderson; Hotel Manager, Frank G. Dunn; Belgian Landlady, Martha Baumattre; Bailiff, Paul Panzer; German Manager, Adolph Milar; Young Matron, Anne Shaw; Leona's Angel, Phillips Smalley; Porter, John Irwin; Orchestra Leader, Gregory Golebeff.

"Limehouse Blues" cast: Harry Young, George Raft; Toni, Jean Parker; TuTuan, Anna May Wong; Eric Benton, Kent Taylor; Pug Talbot, Montagu Love; Herb, Billy Bevan; Rhama, Louis Vincent; Ching Lee, E. I remember having seen a picture called "Tol'able David" some years ago, but cannot recall when it was, or who was in it with the exception of Richard Cromwell. I think it was, who had a leading part. Can you enlighten me?

FORGETFUL.

"Tol'able David" was released in November, 1930. It had as principals Richard Cromwell, Noah Beery, Joan Peers, George Duryea, Henry B. Walthall, Edmund Breese, Barbara Redford, Helen Ware, Harlan E. Knight, Peter Richmond, James Bradbury, Sr., Richard Carlyle.

What has become of Pola Negri? Isn't she appearing in pictures any more? What is her coloring?

ANN.

Miss Negri is in Europe. Brunet.

Did Kitty Carlisle do her own singing in "A Night at the Opera"? Who was Ricardo in that picture? What pictures has Nancy Carroll appeared in and to what studio is she under contract?

KURIOUS.

Miss Carlisle did her own singing. Allan Jones played Ricardo. Miss Carroll's pictures include "Abie's Irish Rose," "Sin Sister," "Close Harmony," "Dance of Life," "Illusion," "Shopworn Angel," "Sweetie," "Dangerous Paradise," "Scarlet Dawn," "Child of Manhattan," "Hot Saturday," "Under Cover Man," "Woman Accused," "I Love That Man," "Kiss Before the Mirror," "Trans-Atlantic Merry-Go-Round," "Jealousy," "Springtime for Henry." Columbia Studios.

IS Nigel Bruce,

who plays so many English comedy parts, really an Englishman, or where was he born? Is he as large as he looks on the screen? How long has he been in pictures, and what will be his next one?

DOUBTFUL.

Nigel Bruce is an Englishman, although he was born in San Diego, Calif., Feb. 4, 1895, while his parents, Sir William Walter Bruce, Bart., and Lady Bruce, British subjects, were touring the United States. Nigel Bruce is 6 feet tall and weighs 206 pounds. He has been in pictures since 1931. His next picture will be "Under Two Flags," now in production.

Please tell me who appeared with Grace Moore in "One Night of Love." What company made the picture? Where can I address Miss Moore? Who directed the picture?

MILDRED MORSE.

Tullio Carminati, Lyle Talbot, Mona Barrie, Jessie Ralph, Luis Alberni, Nydia Westman, Rosemary Glozier. Columbia made the picture. Address Miss Moore in care of that studio. Victor Schertzinger.

Who was the star of "Biography of a Bachelor Girl"? Was that picture taken from a stage play? If so, what was its name and who was its star? Who was in the picture besides the star, please?

BINNY.

Ann Harding. The picture was adapted from the stage play "Biography," in which Ina Claire played the leading role. Robert Montgomery, Edward Everett Horton, Edward Arnold, Una Merkel, Charles Richman, Greta Meyer, Willard Robertson were in the picture with Miss Harding.

Please settle an argument by stating who took the part of Aunt Tillie in the movie "Aunt Tillie and Uncle Gus," produced in 1933 or 1934?

MARY LOUISE NUNN.

Allison Skipworth played Aunt Tillie in "Tillie and Gus," released in August, 1933, by Paramount.

PLEASE give the players in "The Little Minister." What studio produced the picture?

SCOTTIE.

Katharine Hepburn, John Beal, Alan Hale, Donald Crisp, Lumsden Hare, Andy Clyde, Beryl Mercer, Billy Watson, Dorothy Stickney, Mary Gordon, Frank Conroy, Eily Malyon, Reginald Denny, Leonard Carey, Herbert Bunston, Harry Beresford, Barlowe Borland. RKO-Radio was the producing studio.

Where can I address Shirley Temple?

MILDRED BARLESS.

At Twentieth Century-Fox Studios, Hollywood, Calif.

WHO played the wronged girl in "Way Down East" and who was the young farmer who protected her? Will you please print the whole cast with the parts they played?

NEW ENGLANDER.

Rechelle Hudson and Henry Fonda had the leading roles. The cast follows: Anna Morse, Rechelle Hudson; David Bartlett, Henry Fonda; Constable Holcomb, Slim Summerville; Lennox Sanderson, Edward Trevor; Martha Perkins, Margaret Hamilton; Hi Holler, Andy Devine; Squire Bartlett, Russell Simpson; Mrs. Bartlett, Spring Byington; Kate, Astrid Allwyn; Cordelia Peabody, Sara Haden; Hank Woolwine, Al Lydell; Mr. Peabody, Harry C. Bradley; Doc Wiggins, Clem Bevans; Mrs. Poole, Vera Lewis; Musicians, Seymour and Corn-cob; Abner, Phil LaToska; Amos, William Benedict.

Could you tell me if there are two Pat O'Brien's? I ask this because I saw "The Irish in Us" on the same day that I saw the serial "Tailspin Tommy," and both casts included a Pat O'Brien but they did not look alike.

PUZZLED.

Pat O'Brien, who played with James Cagney in "The Irish in Us," is a well known screen and stage actor. He did not play in "Tailspin Tommy."

Could you tell me who played opposite Claudette Colbert in a recent picture whose initials are M. D.? Could you also give me a brief biography of him?

JAC W.

Melvyn Douglas in "She Married Her Boss." Born in Macon, Ga., April 5, 1901; well-known stage actor; married Helen Gahagan.

Who had the leading roles in "The Merry Widow"? What foreign director made the picture?

MARTA DOAN.

Jeanette MacDonald, Maurice Chevalier, Edward Everett Horton, Una Merkel, George Barbier, Minna Gombell. Ernst Lubitsch directed.

PLEASE tell me

if the man who played the butler in "She Married Her Boss" and the butler in "Top Hat" were the same person.

GAY M.

Raymond Walburn played the butler in "She Married Her Boss" and Eric Blore was the butler in "Top Hat."

Could you tell me if Charlotte Greenwood will return to the American screen and if Sidney Fox will return to the screen? Please list the pictures the late Marie Dressler appeared in?

X. Y.

In all likelihood both actresses will return to the screen.
